TRIBUNE BREAKS ALL AD RECORDS.

Prints Largest Number of Advertisements Ever Printed in Regular Issue of a Newspaper.

PROVES LEAD AS MARKET.

Publishes Over Four Times as Many Classified Advertisements as Nearest Competitor.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE yesterday printed the largest amount of advertising ever published in a regular issue of any newspaper, breaking its own record made April 10, 1904.

The total amount of advertising printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE was 344.18 columns, its previous record, which also was the Chicago record, being 329.46 columns.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE also broke its record for classified advertising, publishing 9,226 of these announcements, occupying 164.46 columns, a gain of 890 announcements, or 9.58 columns, over the best previous record, made on April 1, 1906.

The supremacy of THE TRIBUNE in the advertising field is shown by the following figures, giving the amount of advertising carried by the various newspapers:

	Display. Col's of 300 agate lines.	Classified. Col's of 300 agate lines.	Total. Col's of 300 agate lines.

Inter Ocean	87.81	34.98	122.79
Chronicle	30.65	7.67	38.52

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE published within seventy-eight columns of as many columns of advertisements as the Record-Herald and American combined, and within ten columns of the total carried by the American, Inter Ocean, and Chronicle combined.

Merchants Show Their Preference.

That Chicago merchants realize the preeminence of THE TRIBUNE as an advertising medium is shown more clearly by a comparison of the space used by local advertisers in THE TRIBUNE and its two principal competitors. The figures are given in agate lines.

"Tribune" Is Market Place.

That THE TRIBUNE is unquestionably the market place in which the Chicago public makes known its wants is shown by the fact that THE TRIBUNE published 9,226 classified advertisements—four times as many as the Record-Herald and fifteen times as many as the American.

THE TRIBUNE is the market place of the west for help, publishing over four times as many advertisements as any other newspaper.

The situation wanted advertisements clearly indicate the attitude of the general public. They know that the employers read THE TRIBUNE and place their advertisements almost exclusively in this paper. This is shown by the following figures:

Leads in Boarding and Rooms.

The people who advertise rooms and boarding must place their ads in the newspaper read by the large army of industrious young men and women in Chicago. They show their appreciation of THE TRIBUNE'S value in this direction by favoring THE TRIBUNE before all other papers.

Great Real Estate Medium.

Real estate advertisements are the highest grade advertisements appearing in any daily newspaper. People who have real estate for sale advertise it in the paper read by people who have money to buy. These people constitute the buying power of Chicago. A comparison of THE TRIBUNE with other papers would seem to indicate that the majority of real estate owners consider THE TRIBUNE the only market in Chicago.

VESUVIUS IN RAGE MENACES POMPEII

Great Molten Stream 600 Feet Wide Threatens to Ingulf a Second Time the Historic City.

PALL OVER SOUTH ITALY.

More Villages Destroyed and Thousands of People Flee in Panic from Smoke, Ashes, and Flame.

BULLETIN.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ROME, April 8.—The entire Italian Mediterranean fleet now at Gaeta, has been ordered to Naples to take orders from the duke of Aosta, now there. The warships will assist in embarking refugees at the coast towns. The king and queen have started for Naples. The minister of finance and many other high officials already have gone.

THREATENS ENTIRE COAST.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

NAPLES, April 8.—Vesuvius hourly becomes more destructive. The eruptions, which increased with frightful violence, now threaten to destroy the entire coast from Portici to Pompeii.

Thirty bodies have been taken from the ruins of the church San Guiseppe Vesuviano, which collapsed from earthquakes. At Boscotrecase seven persons were killed and six bodies were found at Torre Annunziata. The injured can be counted by thousands.

Molten Flood Sweeps On.

Pompeii, buried under ashes 1823 years ago, is now threatened with engulfment by lava. A great molten flood, 600 feet wide and 21 feet deep, after sweeping over the town of Torre Annunziata, is approaching the ruins of Pompeii at a rapid rate. Already the cemetery and some houses northwest of the town have been destroyed.

The work of excavating the buried city of Pompeii cost infinite labor during many decades and the expenditure of enormous sums of money.

Now the lava flood threatens to fill the streets, temples, forums, gardens, and terraces excavated with so great an expense of time and money. The ruins of Pompeii, once overwhelmed by the lava flood, can never be reexcavated.

Greater Destruction in Store.

But the second destruction of Pompeii is not all of the havoc threatened by the present eruption. Not in centuries has Vesuvius been so terrible in its rage.

Countless new craters are emitting a molten flood simultaneously, and the attendant earthquake shocks have caused the panic to spread to Naples. More villages have been blotted out and the people in other towns are fleeing in terror.

Breathing momentarily is becoming more difficult, because of the poisonous fumes and smoke, while the dense shower of hot ashes adds to the horror.

The Royal Meteorological observatory on Mount Vesuvius has been destroyed and Signor Metteucci, the director, and the employes had narrow escapes. They passed last night in the darkness, save for the frequent flashes of lightning, as the gas works and electric lighting plant also were destroyed.

Scientist Tells of Horror.

Dr. Mattucci made the following report before he left the observatory, but owing to the stoppage of the telegraph it has only arrived:

"The eruption of Vesuvius has assumed extraordinary proportions. Yesterday and last night the activity of the crater was terrific and ever increasing. The neighborhood of the observatory is completely covered with lava. Incandescent rocks thrown by the thousand to a height of 2,400 and even 3,000 feet, fell back, forming a large cone. Another stream of lava has appeared from a fissure, the position of which is not well defined. The noise of explosions and rocks striking together is deafening. The ground is shaken by strong and continuous seismic movements."

Ashes are falling over a large part of southern Italy, even the east coast. These and the dense smoke have blotted out all sight of the mountain, the island of Capri, and the town of Sorrento from Naples. During the day many areas around the mountain were in darkness.

Towns and villages have been abandoned. Hence the extent of the damage is unknown fully.

Lava Sweeps Over Barriers.

Torre Annunziata, on the shores of the Gulf of Naples, one mile to the southward, is almost surrounded by the invading lava and has been evacuated by its 30,000 inhabitants. The people were brought to Naples by trains, street cars, military carts, and steamships.

Refugees from Torre Annunziata reported a lava stream striking the villa on the outskirts. It divided, one current flowing in the direction of Pompeii, while the other threatened to destroy Torre Annunziata. It since has been reported that the lava reached the town, sweeping over barriers that had been erected with the utmost energy by the military engineers. The latter, together with all the officials and the whole population, were compelled to abandon the town.

Ottajano, Poggio, Marino, Somma, and other towns and villages have been abandoned. Lava is flowing several feet deep through the streets of Ottajano and many houses have fallen.

Two strong earthquake shocks, which

WOMEN RESENT AGE LIMIT.

Trouble in Holy Name Cathedral Young Ladies' Sodality.

CAUSED BY PRIEST'S RULING.

Members More than 40 Years Old Put on Honorary List.

Trouble, and plenty of it, is brewing among the members of the Young Ladies' sodality of Holy Name cathedral. So strong is the feeling of indignation among certain members that, were it not for the fact that this is jubilee week of the organization, at least 100 of the members probably would resign in a body.

This condition of affairs in the usually tranquil body came about as a result of the Rev. M. J. Fitzsimmons' interpretation of a clause in the constitution regarding age limit of active and "honorary" members. In effect the interpretation settles the question of when a young woman ceases to be "young."

The age limit question has been a mooted one in the society for several years, in fact, ever since the sodality was organized and the constitution adopted twenty-five years ago. The reason for this appears to be that none of the priests at the cathedral could summon up enough courage to fix an arbitrary age limit for members of the Young Ladies' sodality.

Forty Years the Age Limit.

Father Fitzsimmons, after several consultations with Father Code, director of the sodality, and much hesitancy, decided that it must be done. Two weeks ago he announced that all members of the sodality who have reached the age of 40 shall retire from active membership and be placed on the honorary list.

To say that certain of the members were indignant is putting the truth mildly. Several of the members who have done active work in the society for years simply are boiling over with "righteous wrath."

Of the 700 members of the society, at least 100 will be affected by the ruling. The officers are Miss B. Lynch, president; Miss Margaret Gildea, vice president; Miss Mary McCune, secretary; Miss Molly Cannavan, treasurer. The age limit for admission to the sodality is from 18 years to 25, inclusive.

At a meeting of the sodality held in the chapel yesterday afternoon the "40 years age limit" rule was the one topic of conversation. One member, who implored that her name be withheld, said it was a "shame" to be "retired" after having worked faithfully in the society for twenty-five years.

Strong Protests Are Made.

"There is a great deal of objection to the age limit set by Father Fitzsimmons," said Miss M. Lynch, another member, formerly president of the society. "The younger members object to it as well as the older ones. We younger members prefer to have the older members on the active list because of their experience in the work."

Miss Molly Cannavan also declared that much dissatisfaction existed among the members because of the ruling.

"There are a few disgruntled members, as there are sure to be in every large society," said the Rev. John J. Code, whose duty it will be, as director of the sodality, to enforce Father Fitzsimmons' ruling. "The question had to be settled some time. There will be a little objection at first."

A new marble pulpit costing $5,000 will be presented to the cathedral by the members of the sodality on Easter Sunday.

MORMON CHURCH DEPOSES TWO POLYGAMOUS APOSTLES.

Influence of Reed Smoot Said to Be Back of Action Toward Men Who Took Plural Wives Recently.

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 8.—[Special.]—Matthias F. Cowley and John W. Taylor, two of the twelve apostles of the Mormon church, were deposed by the order of the first presidency at the annual conference of the church, which closed a three days' session this afternoon.

It was announced from the pulpit that the two apostles had "resigned," but it is admitted universally by the Mormon people that the leaders of the church forced them out because they have taken plural wives since the manifesto forbidding plural marriage.

Both men have been in hiding since the Smoot investigation started before the senate committee nearly three years ago. Subpoenas were issued for them, but they were never found. The pressure from within the church to depose them has been strong, and Senator Reed Smoot, himself an apostle, is credited with having urged the president of the church to depose them, in order to relieve him of embarrassment in his fight to retain his seat.

It is claimed they refused to go to Washington, although commanded to do so by the president of the church.

THREE POLICEMEN ATTACK AND ROUT SOCIALIST MOB.

Demonstration in San Francisco Is Quelled by Trio of Flying Clubs—Orators Hauled from Perches.

San Francisco, Cal., April 8.—[Special.]—A crowd of about 3,000 socialists, headed by a brass band, marched down Market street this afternoon, displaying banners denouncing the government. At Lottas fountain, in the center of Newspaper square, the procession halted and speakers climbed up on the fountain and addressed a great crowd that filled the streets and stopped the cars.

Red flags were produced and waved and the socialist demonstration was in full blast when three policemen charged and dispersed the crowd and arrested the orators.

The crowd became ugly, bricks and stones were thrown, and by the time a patrol wagon appeared one policeman was badly cut in the neck by a stone and several onlookers were hurt. It was several hours before the excitement ended.

PRINTERS' INK INCREASES ATTENDANCE AT BIBLE CLASS.

Page "Ad" in Newspapers Draws Many to First Cumberland Presbyterian Church at Knoxville, Tenn.

Knoxville, Tenn., April 8.—[Special.]—That a page "ad" in a Sunday newspaper will increase the attendance of the young men's bible class has been proven in this city by O. P. Sterling and the Rev. W. T. Rodgers, pastor of the First Cumberland Presbyterian church.

The attendance at the church bible class was not as large as desired and it was decided to try newspaper advertising to draw a crowd. Last Sunday a novel advertisement appeared and attracted no little attention and comment.

All week the ad has been getting in its work and its practical results were noticeable this morning.

The membership has in the week increased one-third and scores of inquiries have been made to the church officials about the class and many young men have promised to attend. The officials say that no money ever was spent more advantageously by the church.

AWAIT IN WRATH DOWIE'S ARRIVAL

Prophet's Former Followers Pledge Themselves Not to Greet Him at Railway Station.

GUARDS STICK TO VOLIVA.

Doors of Public Buildings in Zion City to Be Closed Tomorrow Against First Apostle.

In a remarkable massmeeting held yesterday afternoon and evening in Zion City defiance was hurled at John Alexander Dowie, who is about to descend on his people with the fury of an avenging angel.

Under the program mapped out and unanimously approved by the 5,000 followers present, Elijah the Restorer will arrive tomorrow in his Jerusalem an outcast and virtually a prisoner.

In an impressive service in Shiloh tabernacle lasting five hours, Deputy General Overseer Voliva and his lieutenants labored to nerve the community for the impending clash with the prophet. The people were commanded to remain away from the railway station and make the entry of the deposed apostle unmarked and without welcome. He will be allowed shelter in his residence, Shiloh house, but that is all. There he will be received by Mrs. Dowie as his wife and by Gladstone Dowie as his son, but no longer as his followers.

Barred from Public Buildings.

From the tabernacle and from the factories and all other public buildings Dowie will be barred. If he obtains a public hall and attempts to hold a meeting the people are commanded to remain away.

"If he talks to you it will be through a keyhole," declared Voliva.

The plan is then to give the prophet a trial before the overseers on all the charges brought against him in the last few weeks. His absolute surrender is demanded and his submission to permanent retirement from the ecclesiastical and financial affairs of the community on a pension.

To all these things the 5,000 followers gave their full approval. Again and again in unanimous rising votes they signified their allegiance to the revolt against the founder of their faith.

Lacks Funds for Private Car.

The changes for the presence of any cheerful elements in the home coming of Dowie were reduced in the evening by the admission of Deacon J. H. Paxton that he had not sufficient resources to order the private car ordered by his leader. He would not state that there remains no chance for Dowie to secure a car, but he said that he felt he did not have sufficient funds for either the car or the tickets for the party.

Fielding H. Wilhite, whom Dowie ordered to meet him at St. Louis with "one hundred," was still in Zion City at a late hour, and declared that he still was considering the question of going south to meet the "prophet." As a matter of fact, however, he previously had admitted to friends his intention of catching an early train this morning. His delay is thought to have been caused by an effort to raise the amount of money required of him by his commander. There has been some difficulty about this, although Wilhite had access to some of the Mexican funds, which are kept separate from the rest.

Pledged to Support Voliva.

Voliva besought the people to guard against falling once more under the mysterious spell of the wonderful white bearded Elijah. He warned them against the insidious influence of Dowie's personality, his promises, prophecies, and wheedlings by which he will attempt to regain his power.

Not only was the approval of the revolution sealed by acclamation but written pledges to support Voliva and the new administration were signed by all present. The entire force of the 200 armed guard, with the exception of one man, also took the oath to support the community in compelling the surrender of Dowie. A spokesman for the guards declared that they would refuse to bear arms to assist the apostle in recovering his city.

Dowie Wires to Deaconess.

Almost the only friend whom the fallen prophet has left in the community he founded is his former housekeeper, now Deaconess Nielsena Hansen, and to her Dowie yesterday telegraphed his confidential directions for his reception tomorrow. The message follows:

San Antonio, Tex., April 7.—Deaconess Nielsena Hansen, Zion City, Ill.: Expect to arrive in Zion City in private car Tuesday afternoon with party of six. Tell Peters [Shiloh house coachman] to bring victoria and brougham to depot. Tell Deacon John Johnson and Deacon Freeman Hanael to meet me at Englewood on Wabash early Tuesday morning. JOHN ALEXANDER,
First Apostle.

But even these commands cannot be observed. Deacon Johnson, after the reading of the telegram in the meeting, came forward and told Voliva he would not stir a foot to meet the apostle, and Deacon Hanael is in Michigan.

Crowd Assembles Early.

The meeting at which Dowie was put beyond the pale of the institution he created was the regular Sunday afternoon gathering for worship—the impressive service which the leader developed in the course of ten years. The hour of assembling was set for 2:30, but before 1:30 fully 4,000 followers were in their seats patiently awaiting the promised revelations.

Shortly after 2 the orchestra began playing sacred music. Half an hour later the famous white surpliced choir of 300 voices made its appearance, marching slowly from the prayer rooms around the hall and winding up to the choir loft beneath the rafters studded with the crutches, braces, bandages, and other trophies Dowie claimed as the proof of his power to heal the afflicted. Then followed the officers of the church and lastly the overseers, who took seats on the platform on either hand of Voliva. Conspicuous among them was Overseer Speicher, restored to power, and he it was who read the scripture before Voliva began his attack on the prophet.

Voliva started out by announcing a meeting for Wednesday night—the day and hour announced by Dowie for his meeting. Voliva thus plans to be in possession of the tabernacle, with the doors barred to the apostle.

Prophet Is Called Scoundrel.

The five hours' session in the tabernacle, during which the anxious people went without their supper, was remarkable in many respects. The people whom Dowie had healed and led to a new paradise heard their prophet denounced by the newly risen leader

HOW TO CHOOSE A GOOD WIFE

Look at Her Tongue, Young Man, Before Proposing.

THEN INSPECT GARBAGE CAN.

Cleveland Evangelist Gives Unique Advice in Sermon.

Cleveland, O., April 8.—[Special.]—Evangelist Manley Wilson delivered an address on "Choosing a Wife or a Husband and How to Treat Them After You Get Them" at the Gospel church this afternoon. He said in part:

"It's a crabbed old man who never had a wife. It's a crabbed old maid who never had a husband.

"My advice to young men contemplating marriage is this:

"Before you wed examine the girl's tongue. If it's tied in the middle and runs at both ends don't marry her. Also measure her tongue. If it's longer than ten inches don't marry her, because she will spend her time climbing trees to gossip with the neighbors.

Look Into Garbage Can.

"Then again, look into the family garbage can before you take the leap. If it's filled with half pies, biscuits, cake, and bread, don't marry her, because she can't cook.

"A woman can put more out of the back door with a spoon than a man can bring in the front door with a shovel. Choose a wife in keeping with your profession. In short, don't get hitched unless you hitch.

Advice to the Girls.

"If any of you girls have your eyes upon prospective husbands, I would say:

"Beware of those spider legged dudes, who possibly have money but certainly no occupation. If your admirer is posted on all the races, make him trot. Don't think you can reform a drinker by marrying him. I'd at least make him try the drink cure first.

"Now for the married folks:

"When you marry, you marry a wife or a husband, not a mother-in-law."

FOURTEEN CENTS A GALLON? THAT'S TOO HIGH—JOHN D.

Rockefeller Has Tilt with Grocer Over Price Charged for Kerosene—Finally Admits Dealer Is Right.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—John D. Rockefeller and a grocer at Lakewood had a tilt over the telephone Friday night concerning the price of oil. The grocer charged the magnate 14 cents a gallon for kerosene oil. Rockefeller called him up and said:

"You have charged me 14 cents a gallon for oil. That is high—yes, indeed, too high."

"O, no, Mr. Rockefeller," returned the grocer. "Your company makes me pay 13 cents a gallon and I couldn't sell it for that and keep my store open, could I?"

The oil king thought for a moment and then returned in a conciliatory voice: "Indeed? Well, you couldn't charge much less then, could you?"

After the grocer had said "No, sir," the Standard Oil chief said: "Good-by," sweetly.

John D. Rockefeller III. will be introduced to his grandfather this week at the oil man's home at Lakewood. The youngster will be taken to Lakewood by his father and mother in a special train.

as a scoundrel of many hues. They heard him called the despoiler of the poor, a sham, a hypocrite, a liar, a swindler, a teacher of polygamous doctrine, and an immoral man in his relations with women.

Among those thousands who thus calmly heard their leader condemned on all counts were two upon whom all eyes were fixed. They were Mrs. Jane Dowie, the prophet's wife, who occupied a seat at the right hand of Voliva on the platform, and Gladstone Dowie, the son, who sat in the front row of the congregation. Both listened to the stinging and unsparing arraignment without visible emotion, and when Voliva called on those to rise who had evidence of Dowie's polygamous leanings, both wife and son stood up with the overseers and several other officers. Gladstone Dowie furthermore took charge of the meeting in which the Zion guards took the oath to oppose Dowie.

In one respect the promise of the spectacular day was not fulfilled. Voliva had announced that at this meeting the proof of the guilt of Dowie on all the charges made would be submitted to the people. Proof he did submit on the minor charges, but it was not forthcoming in regard to the accusations concerning polygamy and the prophet's relations with wor[men]. The insinuations with which the name of Miss Ruth Hofer, the Swiss convert, was connected were amplified but the real nature of the charge concealed. It is believed that Voliva decided to keep his attack within bounds, from fear of arousing the sympathy of the people to such an extent that a reaction in favor of the accused leader would set in.

The principal meeting, which consumed the entire afternoon, was given over almost entirely to Voliva's detailed denunciation of Dowie. The plans for forcing the apostle into subjection did not come out until the second meeting, early in the evening.

More Extravagance Cited.

"I hear complaints from some people that they are asked to forswear one leader and follow another leader," began Voliva in addressing what he announced would be a quasi business session. "Now I want to make it plain that you are not asked to follow me or any other leader. You are asked to follow only God and the right."

At this point the energetic little orator produced Dowie's telegram to Miss Hansen and read it.

"He's coming in a private car, is he?" shouted Voliva. "And, good people, do you know that private cars cost $50 a day? Fifty dollars a day of your money, while you starve at home!

"Now, when John Alexander Dowie gets here I don't propose that he shall speak to the people. He has no right to speak to you. He shall not get possession of the printing plant nor of any other industry in Zion. I don't expect he'll accept the offer to give him a trial on these charges before the overseers, but we'll make the offer just the same.

Tells of Finding Immoral Book.

"The charges are of a nature that I hesitate to reveal. I wasn't going to tell what they are, but I might as well give you some idea. Over in the administration building, in Dowie's private chambers, there are thirty-five bookcases. There are keys to all except one. The key to that one Dowie alone carries. Recently that bookcase was opened, and within it was found a little book not more than eight inches long and six wide and an inch thick. It was full of vulgar and obscene pictures—well, I'm sure I couldn't find filthier pictures if I searched the whole world over. I would blush to tell a party of men what is in that book. And for that little volume containing all that iniquity Dowie paid $600. This shows where his mind has been during the last few years.

"Dowie told one man," concluded Voliva, "that there was in that book enough to send a man to hell—and he knew if any one did.

"Now what about the time when Dowie will return to us? I ask that all of you stay in your homes and do not go near the railway station when he arrives. Any one who shall undertake to go to the station and welcome Dowie will find things made uncomfortable for him. Measures shall be taken to see that you don't go near the station, anyway. I am not going to have you going to meet him and submit to his egotism and gusto of manner, to hear him shout: 'O, my loyal people' and try to win you back again.

"Some of the things I know I am not going to tell until I confront Dowie himself and alone. If then he denies the charges I shall at once make them public to the entire congregation.

Scandalous Kissing of Women.

"The fact is that he has been indiscreet. If he tells people that he has not been I shall expose him. He talks about the girl (Miss Hofer) being like a daughter to him. Well, this daughter business doesn't go with me. If I had daughters and went around kissing them the way he did I should expect my wife to take a broomstick to me. It is scandalous the way he was going around kissing women. That was scandalous, his kissing those women in San Francisco.

"And all these years he has been saying that he would never see a woman unless his wife was present and preaching that elders should not make calls on sick women unless there was somebody present. Why, he has not followed his own teachings. When a man goes to a young woman's bedroom and stays for hours when his wife has forbidden him to associate with her, what do you think of him? Well, that's what he did.

"His talk from the platform is responsible for a lot of the trouble in Zion City. A man who is always talking about the things he discussed is a man I suspect of being guilty of the things he talked about. You know what I mean."

Fears Old Leader's Magnetism.

Repeated outbursts of applause greeted the young leader's withering accusations of the absent prophet. Mrs. Dowie sat with bowed head while Voliva ran on.

"Now, suppose Dowie comes back and succeeds in getting a public building and tries to hold a public meeting. In that event it will be the proper thing for every man, woman, and child in this city to stay away. Once he gets you together, he'll weep over you and work on your emotions and try to exercise a spell over you. You're out from under the spell now and you must keep out. Be men and women.

"Dowie is a sick man, but what are the reasons for his sickness? When anybody died in Zion he used to say 'Ah, there was sin in his life.' What about his own life? It's his sins that make him sick. He is only 58 and the fault is not overwork. He is suffering from paralysis, tuberculosis of the right lung, kidney trouble—three or four incurable diseases, all because of his transgressions."

Declares Granger Is Owner.

Then Voliva turned for a moment to financial matters. He said:

"Now, you all understand that Deacon Alexander Granger owns this tabernacle and owns this entire estate, and what I want you to do is to pay all your tithes and offerings in the name of Deacon Granger, instead of that of Dowie. All checks and postoffice orders and other paper should be made payable to Deacon Granger.

"Now, I have some questions to ask you and you will have the opportunity to respond. If you want to keep your seats, keep them, but understand the time has come for you to act as men and women, to use the God given free will with which you are endowed, to act without constraint. Don't let it be said in the future you acted in a moment of excitement or impulse. I don't want any but persons of principle with me.

Open Defiance Is Expressed.

"So, my friends, if you want to stand for downright hypocrisy, lying, dishonesty, and shameful misuse of funds, keep your seats and the devil will know where to find you and take you to hell in a bunch. That will be easier than to pick you out one at a time. But if you are going to stand for truth against falsehood, righteousness against unrighteousness, honesty against dishonesty, then you may rise to your feet.

"If John Alexander Dowie thinks he is dealing with a man easily frightened he has made a greater blunder than ever before. If he believes the officers frightened as he approaches this city he blunders. We are going to stand no longer for lying, hypocrisy, crass ignorance, exaggeration, dishonesty, and defiance of all business laws and principles.

"Those who are ready to comply with my request and send their tithes and offerings to the storehouse in the name of Deacon Granger instead of Dowie will stand."

The response was a sound like the rush of suddenly loosed water, as the people rose swiftly to their feet. Not a man, woman, or child remained sitting. A moment they stood while Voliva cast his eye over the throng—a still and solemn moment in which the gaze of all was mutely centered on the figure of the little black haired, swarthy leader.

"I think we should thank God for this demonstration," said Voliva, turning to the overseers as the people resumed their seats.

Trouble of Long Standing.

Getting down to brass tacks on the charges against Dowie, Voliva said:

"Dowie has declared publicly that we thought he was going to die and hoped for it. We did not consider it; it did not enter the minds of the people or the officers of the church whether he was dead or alive. Upon the great question it made no difference, for we simply are following God without reference to man.

"The action was not caused by his disability, and in proof of that statement there have been placed in my hands copies of cablegrams sent over a year ago by Deacons Sloan, Peckham, and Judd demanding that the course of managment be changed before the certain crash came.

Tells of Futile Protests.

"All protests were futile. The good business men who had come into Zion and knew the proper conduct of business were powerless. Deacon Johnson of the coalyards has told me hat $3,000 was paid in advance on coal orders, but it went along with the rest, and when he came to buy the coal he found that funds could not be secured. The $3,000 had been spent for something else."

Voliva then took up a hurried consideration of the telegrams which passed between Dowie and the overseers last week. His reading was interspersed with sarcastic comment.

"He demands that I keep my promises," he said. "I never promised to do wrong. He demanded that I should remove Alexander Granger. I refused to do it, and you supported me. He said I should take this man who has not been given in exchange for his excellent services enough to buy bread for his children and dump him out in the street without a penny.

"You backed me up in my stand, and now will you rally around this man?"

A great shout of "No" came, but there was one "Yes."

"I meant Granger," hurriedly explained the man who had uttered it.

"Let all who will rally to oppose John Alexander Dowie stand up," asked Voliva, and hardly a person remained in his seat.

Trying to Rout the Devil.

When they were seated again, the general overseer continued his reference to the telegrams.

"He talks about not letting the devil get in," he said, "and I've been trying to find a hole to kick the devil out of. He told me to prepare a house in Elijah avenue, furnish it in white, every one of the fourteen rooms. Had I been an avaricious man I would have done it. But I am a simple man and believe in the simple life.

"He announced that he would ordain the apostles in June, and now he has expelled every man who was to be an apostle. It's a funny thing that a man one day is fit to be an apostle and the next day is bad enough to be expelled.

Mexico Plan Condemned.

"Now, as to Mexico, let me say that Dr. Dowie has taken a position that compels me to fight against the proposition. It is not opportune. To talk under the present circumstances of launching such a plan is criminal; and it could not help injuring this city. Are we in a prosperous condition? On June 20, 1903, we had as many people here as we have now, and we had no empty houses in contrast to a total of 115 that now stand vacant. If Dowie had been allowed to keep on two years more, they all would be vacant.

"He says that our charges are false. Is it a false charge that he has been extravagant?"

"No," shouted his hearers.

"You'd better get out committal papers for him," said Voliva to Judge Barnes. "He's a dangerous man to have at large.

"He warns me. What do I care for his warnings? He has struck the wrong man this time. I know more law in twenty-four hours than Dowie will ever know. I have done only that which was right and which I had the power to do. The people are with us, and that all over the world, for I have received word to that effect from London, Zurich, New York, Milwaukee, and Boston. There are a few who are still unfriendly. But I want to have two hours with John A. Lewis. From what I have heard of him, he is level headed, and I believe I could convince him that he is barking up the wrong tree.

Charge of Hypocrisy Made.

"We haven't the funds to finance the Paradise plantations. Our former leader once said in a general apostolic letter that he had been offered a loan of $7,000,000 and that he would accept it. He went over to Ben McDhui and when he returned he stood on this platform and enunciated the policy of never borrowing from the world. I want to pull the wool from your eyes. That loan never was offered. If that was not hypocrisy, what is? I am determined to show you that he has been departing from the ways of God for several years and that now there is but little if any of God left in him. I will pile the proof mountain high.

"Money was raised for the Mexican plantation, and yet, when they got down there, why did they give up the Gonzalez ranch? They did not have money enough to buy one corner of that ranch, and yet they began looking around for other property. They spent $30,000 of Mexican funds and haven't bought even a mosquito.

Refers to Paralytic Stroke.

"John Alexander Dowie, before leaving for Mexico, declared on this platform that there was no power on earth or hell could keep him from going, and that day paralysis struck him to the earth. Now he says that he is coming back if he dies on the way, and I say right here that he would better not challenge God too far.

"He says the opponents of the Mexico scheme are enemies of Zion and of God. It is utter nonsense. He tells Zion to get back into line, and I can tell him we are at such a rate that he will have to come at a hop, skip, and jump to catch us. He demanded that every officer opposed to the Mexican plan should resign. Now will all the officers stand up?"

When they had arisen he asked all those opposed to the Mexican plan to sit down and only one officer remained standing.

Refuses to Obey Orders.

"Instead of obeying the orders of the telegrams," Voliva continued, "I refused to carry them out, and you said you would back me up, that you would stand by righteousness. Had you not said that I would have packed my trunk and gone to some distant city to take up the work of spreading the gospel. The officers of the church have said they will stand by us in the protest which we voiced in our telegram to him.

"In it we charged him with polygamous teachings, and he denies it. Now, will all of you who have heard him talk polygamy stand up."

On the platform Mrs. Dowie, Overseers Speicher, Brasefield, Excell, and Sloan arose, and in the congregation Gladstone Dowie and several others got to their feet.

Dowie All Right at First.

"Now as to the charge of exaggeration," Voliva resumed. "In the first place, God established Zion. Don't make any mistake about that—don't get foolish or become an atheist or go crazy because of the faults of one man. That won't justify you in making mistakes. John Alexander Dowie was all right until he made his first trip to Europe. Up to that time he was well used of God. When he returned his head was turned. He was told he was a financier in the class with Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan.

"Dowie has been guilty of thousands of exaggerations. It is the weakness of the man. From the beginning he has seen $3 when it was only $1. He sees great things. He has talked in the superlative degree so long that he has forgotten there are any other degrees. He said there were 10,000 people in Zion City, and when he was told that was a misstatement he said it was all bosh. People came here and heard such statements, and went away thinking Zion people all liars. But Dowie refused to correct the statement.

"He said the Zion lace factory has a floor space of eight acres, whereas it has only four acres. Burton Ashley told Dowie the statement was wrong, and Dowie frothed at the mouth with rage. Now I suppose there are 155,000 people here today and counting you all again at the aftermeeting makes a total of 350,000."

A shout of laughter greeted the sarcasm and when it had subsided Voliva continued:

"My friends, the least prevarication will make a liar out of you. Now the fact is that Zion today has 5,387 inhabitants. Let the truth be known to all.

"As another example of Dowie's exaggeration, let me cite the tabernacle at Fitzroy, a suburb of Melbourne. Dowie described his service in that tabernacle, saying there were 'thousands standing and thousands sitting.' The fact is the building holds barely 1,000 people. That is the kind of exaggeration that has driven many out of Zion into atheism. Instead of curbing that weakness, instead of searing it out of himself, John Alexander Dowie has fostered it.

"He says the Zion estate is worth $21,000,000. I say it is not worth $10,000,000. Any one who says it is worth $21,000,000 is either an ass or an infernal liar, or both. I won't let such a statement go out to the business men in this vicinity. We are now working for a loan of $1,000,000 with which to pay off our debts—$500,000 with which to take up the mortgages on the land and the other $500,000 to take up the biggest claims. The estate is worth enough to put on it a blanket mortgage of $1,000,000 and settle our debts. Dowie could not get such a loan. I tell you our credit is better today than ten days ago."

Voliva was pacing the platform back and forth in the Dowie style, but talking in clear-cut, crisp tones without ranting and without hysterics.

"Now I want to read you some things," he continued, "because when Dowie comes back to Zion I want you to understand the situation, and if you do what I tell you to do you will make him talk through a keyhole if he talks to you at all. If you allow him to talk to you, you're not faithful—remember that. Remember that his day is done forever.

Overdrafts of $475,167.

"Listen to these facts. Dowie's total overdrafts on Zion amount to $475,167. He attempted to liquidate these overdrafts by a draft on Zion financial institutions, which was merely transferring the money from one fund to another. Later he overdrew $6,570 more. Then Dowie deposited lace stock in the bank to make good his overdrafts, and as the stock is guaranteed to pay 10 per cent, we found ourselves paying 10 per cent on the money he owed us. The interest on his overdrafts amounted to $88,510.

"You people when you put your money in the bank expected to get it out, didn't you?"

"Yes, yes," came the chorus from the whole gathering.

"But Dowie says you gave him the money to use as he liked," continued Voliva. "If you did you were foolish. Why, the first thing he did when he opened the Zion bank in Chicago was to withdraw $65,000, with which he paid personal debts. Now all bank depositors stand."

Half the congregation rose.

"Well, I feel for you," said Voliva. "You must be patient and we will get your money back for you in time. Remember that Dowie went on taking your money till he had $475,000, but if he could get on this platform he would tell you that instead of taking your money he has been the heaviest giver to Zion. Where did he get the money if not from your pockets? The Zion industries never paid a cent. He claimed the lace mills were making 85 per cent profit, and people sold their farms and houses to invest in stock that was said to be making 85 per cent profit.

Watered Stock in Industries.

"One trouble with the Zion institutions is the watered stock. There is watered stock to the amount of $277,020, distributed as follows: Lace factory, $133,700; bank, $89,100; building and manufacturing association, $50,020; land, $4,200. All of that is water.

"Then tnere are the gifts. A woman in England gave $140,000 to Zion. Now I want to ask you, Overseer Cantell, if Dowie did not take that $140,000 and make presents of it to various people?"

"He did," replied the overseer.

"Well, Dowie is not the Christian Catholic church in Zion, and never was, and never shall be," shouted Voliva. "And they who received those gifts owe it to Zion and to themselves and to common honesty to turn back the money where it belongs. Zion now is paying 20 per cent interest on those gifts. O, Dowie will try to explain these things—he'll try to wriggle out, but he can't do it this time.

"The fact is that had Dowie remained what he was—a man of the common people—he never would have got into the trouble he is in today. But he has spent thousands of dollars on furniture and luxuries—money which would have bought lace machines for his people. He spent $107,000 on the furnishings of Shiloh house. That would have purchased twenty-nine lace machines, and we might have had plenty of lace hands working and Zion would be prosperous and have 15,000 people today.

"New York took $300,000 out of this little town, and what did the New York visitation amount to? It was all to take vengeance on Buckley [author of a magazine article on Dowie]. Then Dowie went around the world, handing out $20 gold pieces as souvenirs, while you people slaved and starved at home. If he had lived modestly he could have remained at the head of Zion City and the people might be happy and prosperous today."

Son Denies Father's Statements.

Gladstone Dowie, aroused by some of the statements made by his father, last evening asserted that there is sufficient evidence against him to secure a conviction before a jury.

After reading reports of the interview given out by his father Saturday night Gladstone discussed them at some length. He denied that Dr. Dowie's will had anything to do with the estrangement between Dr. Dowie and his family, declaring that his indiscretions with young women were the real cause for it.

"His indiscretions during the summer of 1904 had been so great that the affair came to an issue, and mother and I spoke to him about it in the parlor at Ben Mac D'Hui. We told him emphatically that the condition was unbearable; that we would not stand for any more such conduct. He had been foolish with women and Mrs. Dowie had made a will leaving Ben Mac D'Hui to him for life and to me afterwards. He had just learned the contents of that will and was indignant over her willing the property away from him.

"I left everything to you," he said, "Why did not you do the same with me?"

"She told him that old men frequently made foolish second marriages and then willed the property away from the first family.

"Have you any reason to think I would do such a thing?" he asked, and she told him that his actions with Miss Hofer led her to think it quite possible."

"I did not know the contents of the will at that time," continued Gladstone Dowie, "and his charge that I influenced the making of it is therefore untrue. Instead of opposing his leaving us 5 per cent of the estate we were quite in sympathy with it. Had it proved a large sum mother would not even have accepted tha[t] much. He says we are indignant at his changing his will when, in fact, we have never said a word to him about it. In fact, we never knew until his trip to Mexico that he had cut down our share from 5 per cent to 2½ per cent, but at that time he spoke to the servants on the train about it.

Real Cause of Estrangement.

"The real reason of the estrangement is that in the fall of 1904 we remonstrated with him because of his relations with Miss Hofer, and told him that they must cease. He indignantly denied that he had paid her any more attention than would be expected of a man in his position. We told him we were not utterly blind.

"After this dispute he promised that he would avoid any appearance of evil and stop the indiscreet behavior we had complained of. He said Miss Hofer was going to Europe. She returned here later, however, and took up her residence in a $3,500 addition to Deacon Ely's residence, next to Shiloh house. This addition was built against Ely's wishes and the contract for it stands in John Alexander Dowie's name, to his everlasting disgrace.

"He says Mrs. Dowie is insanely jealous. Can any sensible man consider that there is insanity in the suspicion that there is something the matter, when such tokens of esteem are manifest to every passerby on Shiloh boulevard? His conduct last summer with Miss Hofer was such that we remonstrated strenuously. He became angry, put the matter before the overseers and others called in conference. He declared that it was insane jealousy. Overseers Bracefield and Speicher came to Ben MacD'Hui, where we were, and arranged a truce on his express promises that there would be no further cause for complaint. He broke this promise as he has broken every other made on this subject. When the man speaks of that woman, he loses all sense of truth. When I returned from Jamaica certain statements were made to me and I insisted that they be investigated. I was not present at the investigation, and I will not say at present what these charges were, but the evidence was sufficient to convince five overseers, and if necessary will convince a jury of twelve men.

Doesn't Want to Succeed Father.

"Concerning the idiotic twaddle that I desire to be his successor, were it not that he is seeking to gain sympathy truly I would not deign to reply. At no time have I ever sought ecclesiastical office, as Overseer Speicher can testify. I was unwilling to accept the office of deacon (the lowest in the church), which was forced upon me in 1902. As I never studied for the ministry every sensible person can see how foolish it would be for me to seek the highest ecclesiastical office. The whole thing is either hallucination or deliberate falsehood. For a long time I have held that the man was subject to hallucinations, but some later developments have caused me to come to a less charitable conclusion."

CHICAGO ZIONISTS STAND FIRM.

Overseer Piper Addresses 1,500 Persons, Who Sign Pledge to Support Voliva Administration.

While the great meeting at Shiloh tabernacle was in progress yesterday, more than 1,500 Chicago members of the Christian Catholic church gathered in the central tabernacle at 1625 Michigan avenue and heard Overseer Piper deliver a stern arraignment of the deposed leader and his family. In response to a request for an expression of opinion, the audience almost unanimously voted to stand by Overseer Voliva and his cabinet in a fight to a finish.

The address of Overseer Piper, one of the most eloquent leaders in the church, contained a cold and merciless exposé of the conditions that prevail in Zion City and the methods that brought the people to their penniless condition. He accused Dr. Dowie of teaching polygamy. Through it all was a note of sorrow for the shame of the old leader, but paramount in the sermon was a challenge to Dowie to do his worst.

Reception Awaiting Dowie.

"You will not find the people of Zion City standing behind the lace factory when Dr. Dowie gets back," said the speaker. "What will he do? I don't know. He may find some judge foolish enough to grant him an injunction or some court silly enough to put him back in control, but I don't believe so.

"If he gets back in power those of you who have invested money may as well say good-by to it. He's a master at weeping. All he'll need to do is to weep and some of you will fall on your knees.

"People are starving in Zion City. I know of one member of the law department who has subsisted on potatoes for three weeks. People have been standing fifty and sixty deep in Zion City for hours to get 50 cents or $1 to buy food. Deacon Granger's wife has stood in line. The 'sin' for which Dr. Dowie expelled Deacon Granger was that the latter refused to send him $500 a week for his support while the people were struggling for food.

Questions for the Family.

"What right had Gladstone Dowie to a summer home when that young man never earned a dollar? Let Mrs. Dowie sell her $1,000 bracelet and her Parisian gowns. Dr. Dowie spent $50,000 in his trip around the world and I doubt if he saved twenty-five souls on the trip. His bank account is overdrawn $140,000. Hundreds of thousands and millions of dollars have been squandered. Whose money was it? It was yours. Dr. Dowie says he is the largest contributor [to] the church. The statement is false.

"I know some Godly old farmers who have put in money that was earned by calloused hands, by self-sacrifice, and the denial of wives and daughters. Dr. Dowie preached against the borrowing of money by Zion.

"He got every Tom, Dick, and Harry to borrow money from their friends. I have found a copy of a letter asking John D. Rockefeller to lend him $7,000,000. Standard Oil was all right when Dr. Dowie was in a hole. He didn't worry about the people standing in line in Zion City so long as he could get money for his own support. He used funds that were given him in trust to make big gifts to particular friends in Zion City.

Big Threats Prove Empty.

"He told you that 'if you didn't obey the voice of the prophet you would die.' None of you is dead yet. Nonsense! Nonsense! His last set of apostolic robes perhaps cost $1,000. When I saw a picture of him dressed in apostolic robes I thought of an old woman in a ridiculous attire."

Overseer Piper then furnished figures of Dowie's expenditures. He declared that Dr. Dowie exaggerated the population of Zion City, setting it at 10,000, while the actual number of people now there is said to be 5,365.

"Dr. Dowie set the membership of the church at 50,000 when it is actually about 20,000," said Overseer Piper. "When he was on his trip in Australia I understand that his pockets were filled with $20 gold pieces which he threw around for tips to porters. The fine dog that the family had cost $500."

Overseer Piper said that huge amounts were invested in Zion industries, but that only a fraction of the money was utilized for the purposes intended:

"I don't believe he will repent," said the overseer in closing. "He boasts that he never takes anything back. If he repents we will receive him back into the church as an individual, but he has forfeited his right to a claim as a leader.

Repeats Polygamy Charge.

"If he goes into the courts we have witnesses ready to testify that he secretly taught polygamy. He did teach it."

At the close of the meeting most of those present signed pledges to support the present leaders of the church. There were a few dissenters who hissed the speaker and otherwise interrupted the meeting to a slight extent. Overseer Piper warned them that "there might be a scene in the tabernacle" if they persisted.

SECRET OF DOWIE'S SUCCESS.

Oak Park Pastor Says Shortcomings of Medical Science Gave "Apostle" His Chance.

John Alexander Dowie's success was made possible because of "the loose morals of many medical students and the uncertainty of medical science," according to the Rev. Hilton B. Williams, pastor of the First Methodist church of Oak Park. He preached last evening on "The Passing of Dowie." He said:

"Dowie and Dowieism may be classed as religious phenomena peculiar to the close of the nineteenth century. Dowie's teachings upon healing were extreme and neither safe nor sane. He taught that trust in God and trust in earthly means were contrary one to the other.

"And the secret of Dowie's success and also of his downfall is his amazing egotism and consummate selfishness. The Zion experiment was dictated, no doubt, by his desire for lordship. Vanity and almost diabolical pride have obtruded from his evil movement."

"As long as people believe in Elijah the First they will believe also in Elijah the Third," M. M. Mangasarian declared in his lecture before the Independent Religious society in Orchestra hall.

"To prevent imposture we must strike at the original Elijah, who was even less civilized than his American descendant. The respectable churches are responsible for Dowie and his kind. Dowie and all other self-appointed prophets hide behind the bible. The bible sanctions polygamy, theocracy, and union of church and state. Dowie can knock down all his opponents with the bible."

DOWIE INSANE WITH RAGE?

Overseer of Zionist Church in Harlem Denounces Leader in Address to Congregation.

New York, April 8.—Overseer George E. Mason of the Christian Catholic Apostolic church in Harlem today denounced John Alexander Dowie in an address from the pulpit.

"His lively imagination," said Mr. Mason, "makes Dowie a picturesque prevaricator. In raising money he saw unlimited possibilities and estimated that $11,000,000 had been invested in Zion City and that he had raised about $9,000,000 abroad. The latter has never been discovered.

"If he is insane he has become so by his uncontrollable anger and his insatiable pride. He is to be pitied and prayed for. John Alexander Dowie seems to be the self-deluded 'First Apostle.'"

DOWIE UNAFRAID; COMING LIKE LION

Answers Reports of Zion's Action by Saying He Will Enter City in Triumph.

VENTS WRATH IN PULPIT.

Bitter Arraignment of Wife's Disloyalty Marks Sermon Before Leaving San Antonio.

San Antonio, Tex., April 8.—[Special.]—Undismayed by the report that practically all Zion had pledged its allegiance to Voliva, John Alexander Dowie left San Antonio tonight simply bristling with defiance and firm as a rock in his determination to fight his enemies to the last ditch.

An alteration of the train schedule prevented his departure from this city until 8 o'clock tonight, five hours later than was planned. He will reach St. Louis about 8 o'clock tomorrow night, and will proceed directly to Chicago over the Wabash. On Tuesday night, or the first thing Wednesday morning he hopes to hurl himself like an "avenging angel" upon disloyal Zion.

When he left here tonight, after a day thronged with incidents and marked by a bitter arraignment of his disloyal wife and son and the "devil-inspired traitors" who had deposed him, delivered in scorching language from the pulpit of the local Zionist tabernacle, Dr. Dowie was confident that he would enter Zion like a conqueror.

Will Enter Zion in Triumph.

His last words in San Antonio were:

"I will enter Zion as I left it. I will pass within the walls of the city which I have built as a monument to God as a leader and not as a suppliant. At St. Louis I will enter my private car and go to Chicago in a fitting manner. There will be no slinking in, no appeal for the gate to be set ajar that I may enter, but surrounded by a large body of my faithful I will go back to my own.

"Those who seek my undoing will be dumbfounded, and the illegal act of my inferiors will be set aside by the courts. The faithful shall be rewarded by God, through me, and the enemies of Zion will be driven out. Mark well what I say, for the battle is won."

Overseer Lewis handed this statement to a group of newspaper men as the train pulled out of the depot, "as a reward," he said, "for the fair treatment Dr. Dowie has received here."

Fumes and Storms at Delay.

It was not Dr. Dowie's fault that an hour was wasted there. He fumed and stormed at the train's delay, declaring it was "the work of the devil," who was in league with his enemies in Zion.

He appeared to be burning up with a desire to start on the journey north and hurl himself at those who had disowned and dethroned him. But local Zionites seized the delay as an opportunity to secure the presence of Dr. Dowie at a meeting which was arranged as soon as it was ascertained that the train would not leave until 8 o'clock.

The meeting was secret in its nature, for the Zionists feared if the general public became aware that the "First Apostle" was to deliver an address the hall would not hold the audience who would come to hear him. As it was, every seat in the local temple was filled fully an hour before Dr. Dowie was to make his appearance. Previous to his coming L. C. Hall, pastor of the local Zionist church, made a vigorous address, in which he defended Dowie at every point. Throughout his talk ejaculations of "Amen!" and "Yes!" and "God be with thee!" were made by the audience.

His Texas Followers Loyal.

Preacher Hall made the statement that every man, woman, and child in Texas who was connected with the Zionist movement indorsed everything that the "First Apostle" had done and believed thoroughly in his innocence. He said:

"Even if the 'First Apostle' has been guilty of every one of the charges which have been brought against him, Voliva and his henchmen have acted in an unchristianlike manner throughout the whole of this trouble. From out of this great turmoil Zion will arise regenerated and purified, and I believe before my God that the 'First Apostle' will be vindicated and cleared of these malicious and cruel charges. If he is not then may God demolish Zion. We are not people of peace. We fight always for God and the right and in this fight we will win."

A hymn was sung and then the audience joined in a silent prayer that strength might be given the "First Apostle" to overcome his enemies in Zion.

Bitterly Assails His Wife.

When Dowie entered the hall the audience arose and sang a hymn of praise. He walked down the center aisle, bowing and uttering "God be with thee." For ten minutes he and the audience prayed together to banish the devil from Zion. Then Dr. Dowie told his story to the expectant people. His entire address was centered about the subjects of polygamy and the conduct of his wife. The audience was with him in all that he said, even when he bitterly disparaged Mrs. Dowie.

A dramatic incident occurred after Dr. Dowie had been speaking about twenty minutes, when Mrs. Emma Rapp and her husband arose and faced the apostle. The audience craned their necks forward in tense expectation.

"Have you anything to say, sister?" said Dr. Dowie.

"I lived in your house for a number of years," said the woman, "and I want to tell these people that never was there a kinder husband nor a better Christian gentleman. I want to say also that when your every act was one of kindness and consideration to Mrs. Dowie she made life unsufferable for you by her insane jealousy and fiendish perversity. I often wondered how you could be so kind under the conditions that existed. I make this statement of my own free will because God has told me to speak."

Deacons Attack Mrs. Dowie.

Then Deacon Lewis and Deacon Peters arose and spoke of the unwifely conduct of Mrs. Dowie, which they characterized as almost beyond human endurance. Throughout all of this testimony the audience sprinkled exclamations of "Amen" and "Yes, yes."

Dowie closed with a peroration in which he declared that so long as breath remained in his body he would fight for the rehabilitation of Zion.

"I have not long to live," he continued, "but I pray that God may spare me just long enough to win this fight. Then I shall be willing to go to that long sleep, knowing that I shall be eased to the last by the 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant,' which will be uttered by all of my people, for they will have seen the light and learned that John Alexander, 'First Apostle,' was chosen by God to give the word to Zion."

After the benediction the audience filed past Dowie and shook his hand, each reiterating an assurance of loyalty. When Dowie returned to his hotel he was presented with the following telegram, which arrived when his people were making their pledges of loyalty:

At Zion City today everybody was for Voliva. Communicate this to Dowie.

Message from Zion Shocks Him.

Dowie seemed shocked at the bluntness of the message, but declared that it would be unwise for him to make any comments on it at the present time, owing to the fact that it might betray his plan of battle.

After his strenuous hunt for money yesterday and the exciting incidents of a busy day Dr. Dowie did not rise with the lark this morning. Not a sound was heard from his room until nearly 10 o'clock, and then his bell rang and the prophet had Overseer Lewis send up a couple of poached eggs, a cup of tea, and a slice of toast. He ate his breakfast in bed.

At 11 o'clock a little group of Zionists gathered under his window in the Hotel Patio and sang several hymns and offered prayers. Dr. Dowie stepped out upon the balcony for a moment, clad in a black robe, and murmured his old salutation: "Peace be with you," and gave a benediction. He then retired from sight and the service ended.

Fifty Women Bring Him Flowers.

At noon more than fifty women bearing in their arms great masses of hothouse and Texas wild flowers made their way to Dr. Dowie's suite and banked the reception room with greenery and bright hued flowers. One large bunch of cape jasmines was taken to Dr. Dowie by Deaconess Hall of the local church, and the old man thanked her for her thoughtfulness in a choking voice. He then went into the reception room and greeted his followers, assuring them that the troubles of Zion were over, and the rule of peace would succeed strife, turmoil, and hate.

During the afternoon more than 500 cards were sent to the prophet's room, some by people impelled by curiosity, others by adherents who desired to touch the hand of their leader, but to all appeals the same answer was returned: "Dr. Dowie will see no one."

One woman succumbed to hysterics in the apostle's anteroom. Her shrieks could be heard on the streets. She believed that Dr. Dowie's enemies in Zion were awaiting his return with poison drafts, and that he was about to give his life in the attempt to win back his rebellious flock. "Save him, O, save him!" she wailed, between sobs. She was taken away in a cab, after being almost dragged to the sidewalk.

Inundated with Telegrams.

Telegrams began to pile in at 8 o'clock in the morning and continued to arrive until night. The last batch was handed to him as he took his seat in the train. Few were answered. Dowie left by the side door of the hotel to go to the station, and as he stepped from the sidewalk to the carriage he faltered. Twice he essayed to enter, but each time his foot missed the step. Overseer Lewis rushed to his side and helped the old man in. He appeared to have been overcome by a momentary weakness and sank down on the seat with an audible sigh.

Crowds lined the streets as he was driven rapidly to the depot, and at one point so anxious were the people to catch a glimpse of the man that a blockade occurred, and it was feared that he would miss his train.

But when the party arrived at the station the train was posted five hours late instead of four. Dr. Dowie expressed disapproval of railroads which did not run trains on time.

Train's Delay Makes Him Rage.

"The devil is in this delay," he declared. "But cast what obstacles in my path that he may, it leads straight to the gates of Zion. An hour, a day, a week, it matters not. I am God's commander and will triumph."

The hour's wait was passed in a drive about the city and the party came back with not a moment to spare. Two hundred Dowieites saw them off.

Two staterooms and two sections were reserved for the Dowie party on the St. Louis Mexico limited, and Dowie disappeared from view the moment he boarded the train, taking a room at the extreme end of the Pullman.

Today Dr. Dowie appeared to lack some of the strength and firmness of purpose he displayed yesterday, and last night when in his room at the hotel he spoke for more than two hours of existing conditions at Zion and the future of the colony.

ST. LOUIS ZIONISTS ARE LOYAL.

Dowie Is Upheld and Voliva Denounced at Meeting—Jealousy Blamed for Present Strife.

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—[Special.]—Zionists of St. Louis are loyal to Dr. Dowie. At a big meeting this afternoon a vote of confidence in the deposed leader was adopted. The Rev. Archie E. Harrington, elder in charge in this city, made an impassioned plea for the "first apostle," and denounced Voliva, whom he charged with deliberately and maliciously stirring up discord at Zion City. Harrington declared the whole trouble in Zion City is due to jealousy and the mercenary motives of commercial interests, who fear Dr. Dowie might cause a great exodus to Mexico. The charges against Dr. Dowie were taken up individually and after discussion declared false.

Dr. Dowie will arrive at the Union station Monday night at 8 o'clock. Union station officials tonight said he will leave St. Louis over the Wabash either at 9:17 p. m. or 11:47 p. m. Arrangements for his departure have not been completed.

George F. Lupton, general passenger agent of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass railway, and an intimate friend of Dr. Dowie, arrived at St. Louis tonight from San Antonio, his headquarters, on the way to Chicago and Zion City. He denied he was going north in the interest of Dr. Dowie, notwithstanding rumors from San Antonio to the effect that his trip north is for the purpose of acting as special envoy and to assist Dr. Dowie in his present troubles. Lupton declared he knew nothing of Dr. Dowie's intentions, but admitted he was a member of his church.

"I am in sympathy with Dowie and some of his teachings," he said, "and I admire him. Dowie has not been fairly dealt with by the general public. He has been placed in a wrong light."

ALIENIST CALLS DOWIE SANE.

Zionist Elder Says Leader Underwent Thorough Examination Successfully While in Mexico.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 8.—[Special.]—"John Alexander Dowie submitted himself to a week's examination as to his sanity by an alienist in Mexico because his wife and the faithful believed him crazy," said Elder Frederich G. Hendrickson, who passed through this city tonight from New York to Chicago. "Two weeks ago in San Luis Potosi, a little Mexican village where he could avoid publicity, Dowie allowed himself to be put under surveillance by a prominent English alienist now in Mexico, and was pronounced absolutely sane and rational."

CHURCH WRECKED BY STORM.

Heavy Wind Demolishes Structure at St. Jacob, Ill.—Two Persons Are Injured.

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—[Special.]—A heavy wind storm passed over the southwest corner of Madison county and the east part of St. Clair county in Illinois this afternoon. Two persons were injured, one house demolished, and a church at St. Jacob, Ill., wrecked. One hundred worshipers were in the little church and they made a hasty exit. Hardly had they cleared the yard when the edifice was torn to pieces.

BRYAN BOOM TO BE STARTED AT DEMOCRATIC CLUB DINNER.

Movement for His Nomination for President Probably Will Be Set on Foot Next Monday Night.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—A movement to nominate W. J. Bryan for president in 1908 is expected to be set on foot at the annual dinner of the Democratic club at the Waldorf-Astoria next Monday night.

Bryan's friends are responsible for the statement that he will, either in personal interview or in his paper, state that the silver question has been relegated to oblivion by the great production of gold since 1896 and is no longer an issue.

The Democratic club men believe this statement will surely rally the conservative democrats to Mr. Bryan and that they, joining with his personal following, can easily nominate him.

RAIN POSTPONES AUTO WAR.

North Shore Suburbs Take a Rest While Bad Weather Keeps Motors from Streets.

Rain and chill winds caused the postponement yesterday of the opening of the annual crusade against automobile scorching in the towns along the north shore. Sheridan road became one of the most disagreeable thoroughfares in Cook county for autoists. Chief of Police Frost and Justice J. F. Boyer of Evanston found nothing at all to reward their remaining on duty.

In Glencoe Justice Lane retired from the scene of expected action and concluded to let the "bumps" at the crossings protect the interests of the village speed limit rules. The village authorities in Kenilworth and Wilmette also rested.

Chief Frost announced that the judgment of the policeman who arrests a chauffeur will be accepted as sufficient evidence that the speed regulations are being violated, and the stop watch will not form a part of the Evanston policeman's field equipment.

BLAZE SCARES FIVE FAMILIES.

Many Persons Flee from Building at 1615 Wabash Avenue, but Only One Apartment Is Damaged.

Fire which started shortly before 8 o'clock last evening on the third floor of a three story brick apartment house at 1615 Wabash avenue caused five families to flee to the street.

The blaze originated when Mrs. Charles Shiplet entered a clothes closet with a lighted match, which ignited some of the clothing. The only loss, amounting to less than $100, was suffered by the Shiplet family.

Firemen in the downtown district were kept busy responding to false alarms of fire sent in from signal boxes only short distances apart. Efforts to arrest the "joker" were made, but despite the fact that a good description of him was obtained he escaped.

POLICE AND DOCTORS PUZZLED.

Man, Apparently Unhurt, Is Unable to Reveal His Identity to Physicians at County Hospital.

A fairly well dressed man, apparently [illegible] years old, who is unable to reveal his identity, is puzzling the police of the Twenty-second street station and physicians at the county hospital.

Policemen O'Brien and Finerty found him at 2 o'clock yesterday morning at Armour and Archer avenues. They thought he had suffered an injury of the skull, and they took him to the hospital.

Physicians at the hospital found no evidence of a bruise or injury, but were unable to obtain coherent replies to their questions. At times he was unconscious, and he had not regained full use of his faculties in the evening.

LARGEST DOG ATTACKS WOMAN.

Miss Helen Hobbs' Wrist Is Lacerated by Animal Which Belonged to Fred C. Fischer of Evanston.

The largest dog in Evanston attacked Miss Helen Hobbs, 19 years old, 1504 Ashland avenue, Evanston, yesterday afternoon as she was passing a florist's store in 614 Dempster street, and bit her severely. The dog sprang toward her throat and as she raised her right hand to shield herself the dog closed his teeth on her wrist.

The dog then ran to its owner, Fred C. Fischer, who was in the florist's store. When Miss Hobbs recovered from her fright she hurried to her home, where a physician cauterized the wound.

Robert Hobbs, the father of the young woman, reported the matter to the Evanston police at once and the dog was shot.

If this state of affairs had been kno[wn to] the governor earlier, or if the call ha[d been] delayed another day, he would have in[cluded] the question of appropriation for the […]mission instead of striking it out.

There was no way of remedying the [mat]ter by amending the call then, and […] service apparently was "double cro[ssed]." He now is preparing his message [to the] legislature. In this, in addition to ex[plain]ing briefly the necessity for the specia[l ses]sion caused by the overturning of the [pri]mary law, he will ask for more mo[ney to] carry on the Illinois Central investigat[ion].

It is possible that an […] ment as to the facts can be reached, a[nd this] will save the state the expense of usin[g wit]nesses to testify to facts which are set […] the result of the inquiry. These fact[s …] relate to the division of traffic betwe[en the] charter and subsidiary lines of the com[pany].

The investigation of the passenger ea[rnings] of the company has not been complet[ed en]tirely. The company asserts that it in[cludes] in its reports all the earnings of its sub[urban] passenger service in Chicago. The st[ate is] not convinced this is so, but the inqu[iry is] not finished yet.

The questions raised on disputed poin[ts …] have to be decided by a jury, and th[e state] will bring suit against the company a[s soon] as complete reports have been submit[ted to] Attorney General Stead. An appropr[iation] for this purpose must be made by the le[gisla]ture, but the governor does not desire to […] in the subject of appropriations to a g[reater] extent than absolutely is necessary. […] is a deficit in the railroad and warehous[e com]mission. A mistake in the appropriati[on] passed by the last legislature gave th[e uni]versity of Illinois $35 for the installatio[n of a] new heating system instead of $35,0[00] intended. These and other "emergen[cies"] would have been pressed upon the legis[lature] if the matter of appropriations had be[en ex]tended.

New Primary Law Problem[s].

The drafting of a new primary law […] to be simplified considerably, but wh[en the] legislature meets on Tuesday there w[ill be] plenty of time for trouble to start if […] developed. As a compromise between m[ajor]ity and plurality nominations it is po[ssible] Chicago political organizations will be […] to agree to a provision permitting the […] nation of candidates by 35 per cent o[f the] total vote.

Chicago is standing first of all fo[r ma]jority nominations, republicans there a[re say]ing that local conditions make it a[lmost] impossible to undertake plurality no[mina]tions by primary vote. Outside of Ch[icago] sentiment is strongly for pluralities, a[nd the] democrats will stand solidly for thi[s pro]vision. A tentative plan, which has bee[n dis]cussed by leaders and the governor, [pro]vides for majority nominations, but it m[ay be] found necessary to compromise on this.

Chicago's Position Difficult.

To allow nominations by 35 per cent o[f the] total vote is about as near to plurality [nom]inations as Gov. Deneen and his f[riends] are willing to go, and they will go th[is far] only in case of necessity.

As an illustration of the unfitness o[f plu]rality nominations for Chicago prim[aries] the manner in which they would oper[ate in] the selection of candidates for the c[ounty] board is pointed to. For each place o[n the] board there would be a large number o[f can]didates. In all probability it is likely […] the total number would approximate […] 100.

Excluding the presidency of the b[oard] there would be nine city commissione[rs] to fill. With 90 or 100 candidates ru[nning] from the city at large for these nomin[ations] it is asserted that it would be impo[ssible] ever to get first class men to be candi[dates]. Such men have no guarantee that th[ey …] they were not defeated in the prim[aries] would be on a ticket with men with […] they would want to be associated in the […]agement of county affairs.

Effective Working Impossible.

So long as the county commissione[rs are] not elected from districts but from th[e county] at large, it is asserted these nomin[ations] will be a bar to the effective working o[f plu]rality nominations in Cook county, the t[heory] being that where there is a big territo[ry and] a small office pluralities never will […] satisfactorily.

DARK DAYS AHEAD FOR MERIT SYSTEM

Civil Service Commission Has No Money; Is Turned Down by State Institutions.

GOVERNOR CAN'T GIVE AID

No Appropriation for It in Call for Special Session; New Primary Law Difficulties.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., April 8.—[Special.]—Civil service in Illinois is having about as much trouble as the primary law. The commission has no money and seems to be unable to get any. Gov. Deneen has about decided there will be no way for it to obtain any from the special session of the legislature which convenes on Tuesday to draft a new primary law and make some emergency appropriations.

When the last legislature adjourned it was discovered no appropriation had been made to carry on the work of classifying the services in charitable institutions and of putting employés under the merit system.

Many statesmen in both houses had swallowed the civil service bill because they had to and a failure to provide appropriations did not produce great grief. Friends of the bill had been so occupied with getting it through that they forgot all about details, such as appropriations.

Ever since then the commission has been maintaining a precarious existence on the governor's emergency fund, which now is exhausted. Nevertheless it had hopes. An assessment for its expenses had been levied on the state institutions, pro rata, and it was assumed they would pay up promptly, thus putting the commission on its feet until the next regular session of the assembly.

Subject Cut Out of Call.

When the call for the special session was being prepared Gov. Deneen intended to include civil service appropriation as one of the subjects to be considered. Just as the call was about to be issued he changed his mind, deciding that the commission would be cared for properly and adequately by assessments on institutions and that he did not want to drag in the question of appropriations.

The call no sooner had been issued and the scope of all possible legislation limited by it to the exclusion of a civil service appropriation than he received a communication from the Elgin asylum board notifying him of the decision of the trustees not to pay their assessment. Robert Rew, one of the trustees, a lawyer, had advised the board it was not lawful for it to pay money for such purposes. About the same time Secretary J. Mack Tanner of the state board of charities conveyed to the governor the decision of other institutions not to pay assessments.

Civil Service "Double Crossed."

If this state of affairs had been known to the governor earlier, or if the call had been delayed another day, he would have included the question of appropriation for the commission instead of striking it out.

There was no way of remedying the matter by amending the call then, and civil service apparently was "double crossed." The refusals of the institutions were turned over to Attorney General Stead, who was asked to look up the law in the matter and ascertain if they could or could not pay such assessments. The legislature could find a way out of the difficulty by making an increase to the governor's emergency appropriation sufficient to take care of the commission, but he doubts that money can be appropriated to him for use of a state administrative body.

If Mr. Stead rules that the institutions' trustees are right in refusing to pay for the support of the commission, the merit system will have to continue to exist as an object of charity, dependent on the governor's ability to find something for it from time to time in his emergency appropriation.

He now is preparing his message to the legislature. In this, in addition to explaining briefly the necessity for the special session caused by the overturning of the primary law, he will ask for more money to carry on the Illinois Central investigation.

Illinois Central Suit Near.

Frank D. Whipp, auditor, who has been directing accountants in the investigation, returned from New York today and made a verbal report to the governor. Additional money will be required for court proceedings in which the state will press its claim against the company. It is possible that an agreement as to the facts can be reached, and this will save the state the expense of using witnesses to testify to facts which are set up as the result of the inquiry. These facts will relate to the division of traffic between the charter and subsidiary lines of the company.

The investigation of the passenger earnings of the company has not been completed entirely. The company asserts that it includes in its reports all the earnings of its suburban passenger service in Chicago. The state is not convinced this is so, but the inquiry is not finished yet.

The questions raised on disputed points will have to be decided by a jury, and the state will bring suit against the company as soon as complete reports have been submitted to Attorney General Stead. An appropriation for this purpose must be made by the legislature, but the governor does not desire to bring in the subject of appropriations to a greater extent than absolutely is necessary. There is a deficit in the railroad and warehouse commission. A mistake in the appropriation bill passed by the last legislature gave the University of Illinois $35 for the installation of a new heating system instead of $35,000, as intended. These and other "emergencies" would have been pressed upon the legislature if the matter of appropriations had been extended.

New Primary Law Problems.

The drafting of a new primary law seems to be simplified considerably, but when the legislature meets on Tuesday there will be plenty of time for trouble to start if any is developed. As a compromise between majority and plurality nominations it is possible Chicago political organizations will be forced to agree to a provision permitting the nomination of candidates by 35 per cent of the total vote.

Chicago is standing first of all for majority nominations, republicans there asserting that local conditions make it almost impossible to undertake plurality nominations by primary vote. Outside of Chicago sentiment is strongly for pluralities, and the democrats will stand solidly for this provision. A tentative plan, which has been discussed by leaders and the governor, provides for majority nominations, but it may be found necessary to compromise on this point.

Chicago's Position Difficult.

To allow nominations by 35 per cent of the total vote is about as near to plurality nominations as Gov. Deneen and his friends are willing to go, and they will go that far only in case of necessity.

As an illustration of the unfitness of plurality nominations for Chicago primaries, the manner in which they would operate in the selection of candidates for the county board is pointed to. For each place on the board there would be a large number of candidates. In all probability it is likely that the total number would approximate 90 or 100.

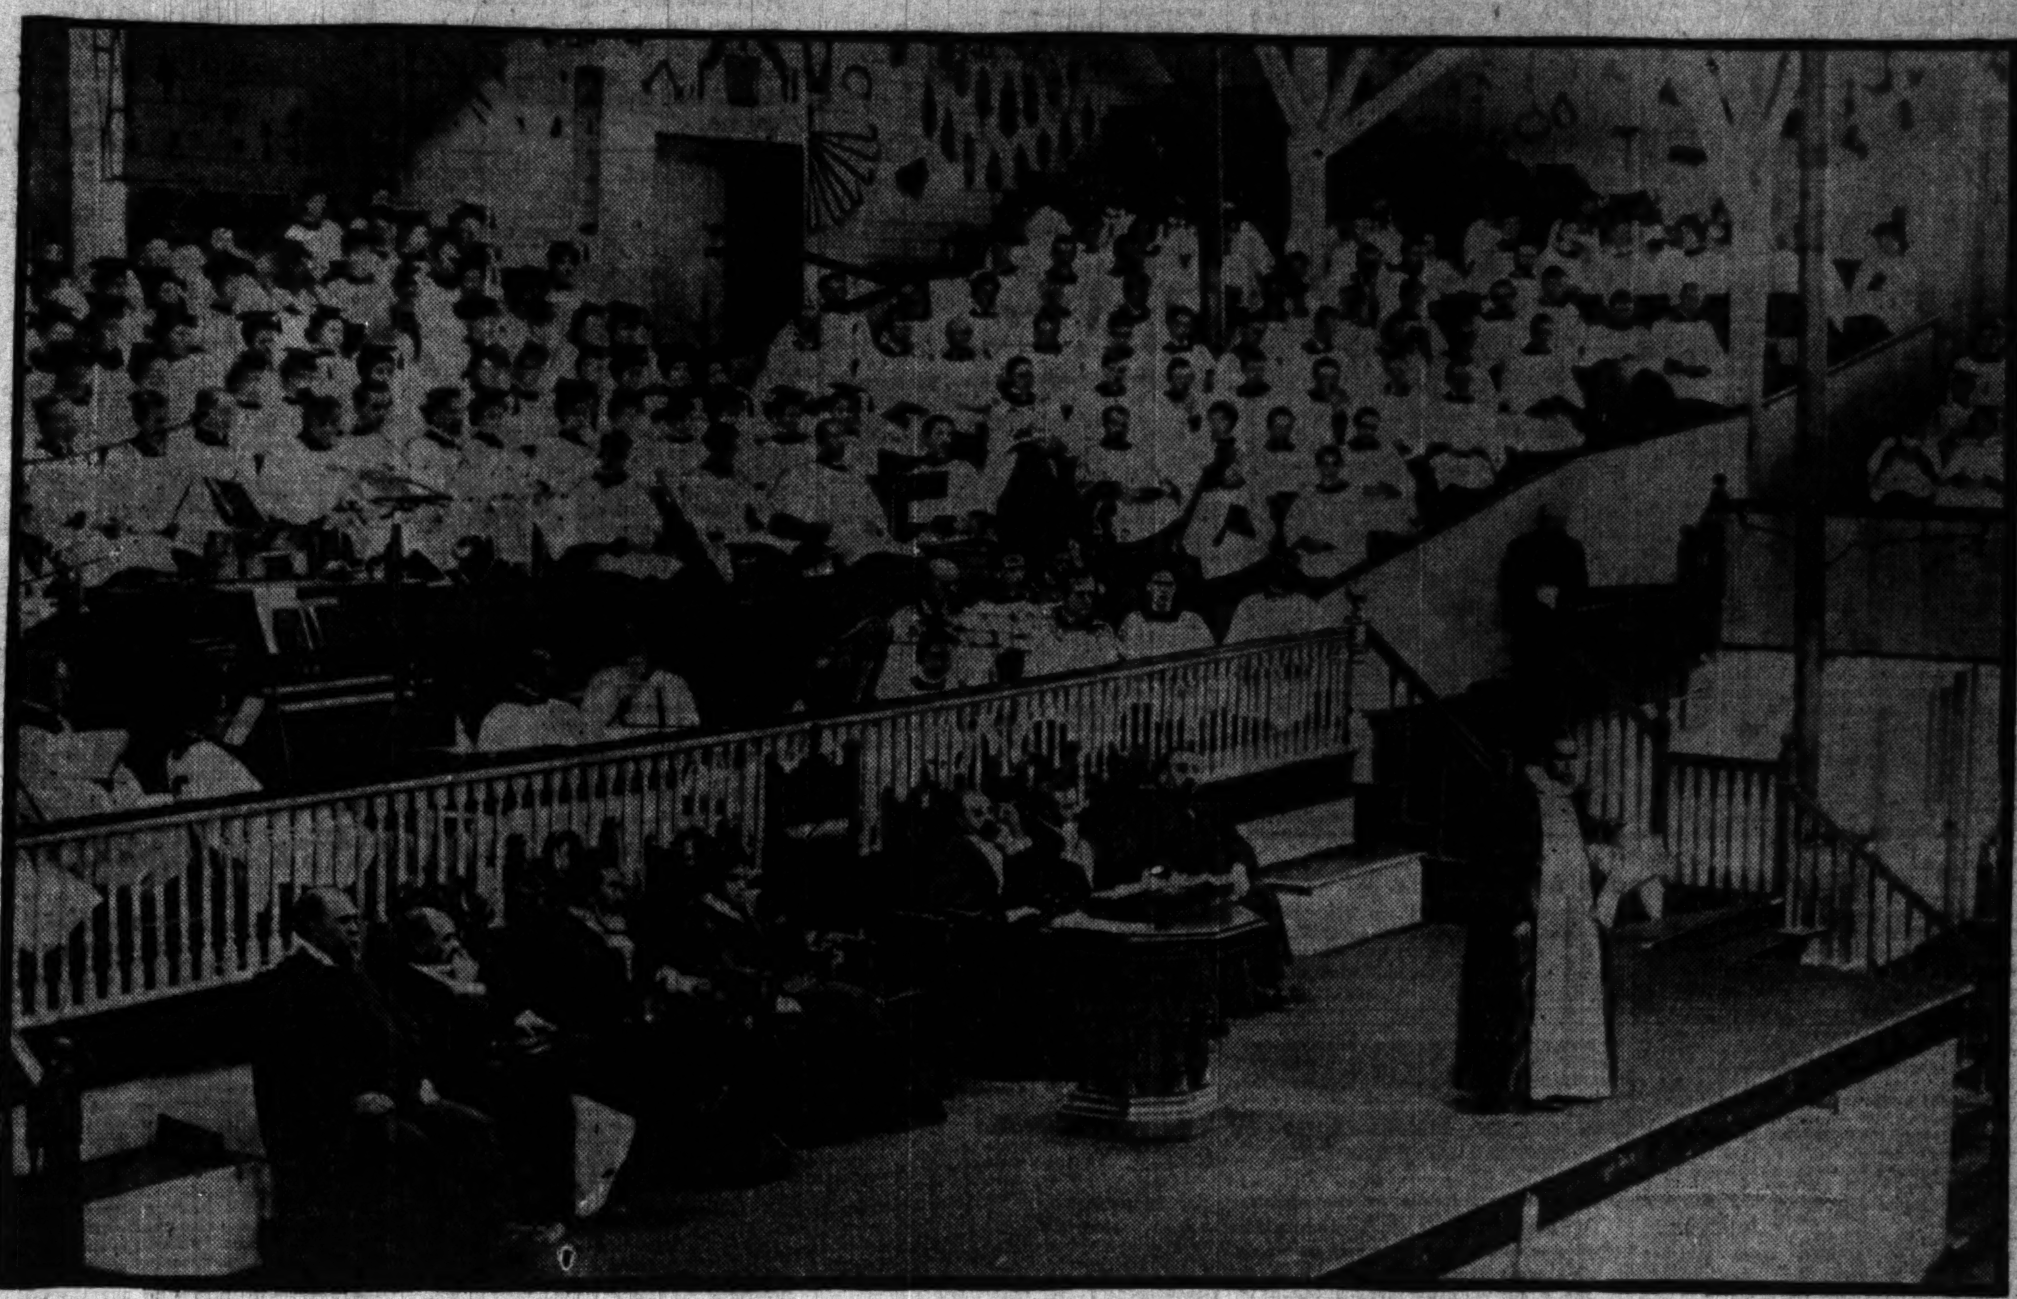

Excluding the presidency of the board, there would be nine city commissionerships to fill. With 90 or 100 candidates running from the city at large for these nominations it is asserted that it would be impossible ever to get first class men to be candidates. Such men have no guarantee that they, if they were not defeated in the primaries, would be on a ticket with men with whom they would want to be associated in the management of county affairs.

Effective Working Impossible.

So long as the county commissioners are not elected from districts but from the city at large, it is asserted these nominations will be a bar to the effective working of plurality nominations in Cook county, the theory being that where there is a big territory and a small office pluralities never will work satisfactorily.

General Overseer Voliva Denouncing Dowie at Shiloh Tabernacle Meeting, and Urging Hearers Not to Be Overawed Tomorrow When "Elijah" Arrives.

[From a photograph taken for THE TRIBUNE.]

The accompanying photograph shows General Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva concluding his five hours' arraignment of Dowie at Shiloh tabernacle yesterday. Clad in the full robes of his office and holding in his hand the documentary evidence with which he hopes to substantiate his charges against the deposed prophet, he held the audience of 5,000 persons in rapt attention during his long and vehement denunciation of Dowie and his works. On the platform, wearing black cassocks with flowing sleeves, sat the officers of the church who have arrayed themselves on Voliva's side. Their names in order, beginning at the left end of the row, are: Judge V. V. Barnes, Overseers H. D. Bracefield, John G. Speicher, Mrs. Jane Dowie, John G. Excell, H. E. Cantell, and Deacon H. E. Sloan. Flanking the sides of the rostrum and filling the seats at the rear sat the surpliced choir of 300 persons.

ARREST 85 MEN IN RAIDS.

POLICE ACTIVELY WAR ON GAMBLING RESORTS.

Lieut. Harding and Aids of West Lake Street Station Descend on Robert Thomas' Saloon, Where Dice Was Being Played, It Is Said—Same Game Stopped at South Side Resorts—Poker Devotees Also Captured by Detectives.

Men who wanted to throw dice or play poker yesterday had to do so under difficulties. The police became decidedly active and in four raids arrested eighty-five men. Most of them were caught playing dice.

The places raided, with the names of those charged with running the games and the number of men arrested at each, follow:

William Brown and Otto Mason, 2836 State street. 16
H. S. Smith, 3659 Dearborn street 14
George Wilbur, 110 Dearborn avenue 8
Robert Thomas, 809 West Lake street 47

Escape Through Special Doors.

At Thomas' saloon the police under Lieut. Harding of the West Lake street station encountered automatic doors leading to the basement and windows. The devices enabled several men to escape.

Two "watchers" were standing in front of the saloon to notify the players when the police arrived. The police thwarted their scheme by going to the place on a street car instead of the patrol wagon.

So surprised were the "watchers" that one of them failed to press a button which would alarm those at play within. Once inside, Lieut. Harding locked all doors and closed windows that had been opened by the persons who had escaped. The men were taken to the West Lake street station. William White, said to be a porter in the saloon, is charged with operating the game.

This resort, known as the Needmore club, has been the source of many complaints. Opponents of Ald. Maypole charged that, in consideration of Thomas' political support, he furnished him with police protection. Ald. Maypole denied the accusation.

For some time the police have kept a close watch on Thomas' saloon, since many women reported that their sons had lost their earnings there. Previous attempts to raid it had failed.

Jumps from Upper Window.

George L. Noel, 23 years old, 2953 La Salle street, was injured severely in leaping from a window, endeavoring to elude the detectives who raided Brown & Mason's place. Detectives McGrath and McDermott of the Cottage Grove avenue station said there were more than twenty-five negroes playing craps when they entered a room on the second floor. There was a scramble among the inmates and all but sixteen escaped, some leaping from windows. Noel fractured a bone in his right foot and suffered severe bruises about the body.

He was taken to the Chicago Emergency hospital.

Betrayed by Rattling Chips.

The rattling of poker chips attracted the police of the Chicago avenue station early in the morning to the Dearborn avenue flat where Wilbur is said to be running a poker game. The policemen confiscated the cards, chips, and other gambling paraphernalia, and then took the players to the station.

The prisoners will be given a hearing before Justice Mayer today.

LONGWORTHS TO BE IN CHICAGO.

Bride of Ohio Congressman Accompanying Him on Trip to Speak to Hamilton Club.

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth left for Chicago tonight over the Pennsylvania road. The congressman is to be one of the Appomattox banquet speakers at the Auditorium hotel tomorrow night.

Congressman Longworth's speech, it is said, will deal with the needs of party organization, and the necessity of resisting the clamor of sensationalists who are attacking the public men of the day.

The failure of the train carrying Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth to arrive before 4 o'clock this afternoon makes impossible the reception and breakfast planned for them by the Hamilton club this morning.

Congressman Claude Kitchin of North Carolina will arrive on schedule time at 8:30 this morning and, with the Rev. J. Wesley Hill, pastor of the Janes Methodist church of Brooklyn, will be given a reception at noon as planned.

"WAS FAILURE IN HIS LIFE AND BUNGLER IN DEATH."

L. W. Hoch of Worcester, Mass., Kills Self in Kansas City Hotel After Several Ineffectual Attempts.

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.—[Special.]—L. W. Hoch of Worcester, Mass., formerly of Adrian, Mich., who declared in a letter left that he was "unsuccessful in life, and even bungling in trying to die," shot and killed himself in the Midland hotel.

Hoch went to the hotel about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon and secured a room. Nothing more was heard of him until a chambermaid found his body this afternoon. It was found that he had cut an artery in his wrist, but had bandaged it afterwards.

In one of the letters left he said he made an attempt to kill himself with morphine in El Paso on Monday night, but only made himself sick with an overdose. On Tuesday he tried another method and failed again.

A dispatch from Worcester says Hoch was 47 years old and a former mayor and postmaster of Adrian, Mich. He is survived by a wife and three children; also two brothers, George M. of Iola, Kas., and Henry Hoch of Chicago, two sisters and a mother, living in Adrian, Mich.

RETIRED BANKER IS KILLED BY FALL FROM STREET CAR.

Abraham Barker, Prominent in Philadelphia Financial Circles for Many Years, Victim of Accident.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 8.—Abraham Barker was killed by a fall from an electric car in New York tonight. He was a retired banker and for more than sixty years was a familiar figure in financial circles in this city. He was also one of the founders of the Union league.

Mr. Barker was for fifty-four years a member of the Philadelphia stock exchange and was three times president of the exchange. He was born in New York eighty-five years ago and entered the stock brokerage business in New Orleans at the age of 16 years. He came to Philadelphia in 1842.

He was the father of Wharton Barker, financial agent in this country for the Russian government. Wharton Barker was also the populist candidate for president of the United States in 1900.

BOY SLOW COOK; MOTHER SLAIN

Father Chides Son, and Sick Woman, Who Interferes, Is Beaten to Death.

Baltimore, Md., April 8.—Because his 9 year old son, Thomas, did not cook a meal quickly enough to please him, John T. Kennedy today beat him. His sick wife tottered from her bedroom to the kitchen and was so badly beaten that she died soon afterwards.

Meeting at Church of the Epiphany in New York Appeals to President Through Former Gov. Curtis Guild Jr. of Massachusetts—Boston Pastor Drew Picture of Dismembered Toilers and of Soldiers Forced to Shoot Bondsmen.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—It was announced today in the people's meeting of the Church of the Epiphany that an appeal had been made to the United States by former Gov. Curtis Guild Jr. of Massachusetts to intercede against the atrocities being practiced in the Congo Free State under the rule of King Leopold of Belgium. Mr. Guild is vice president of the Congo Reform association.

The Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Street Baptist church of Boston, said he had left the pulpit for three months in order to tour the country and obtain the facts about the terrible crimes which are being perpetrated in the Congo state.

Tells Source of Information.

"I got my information," Dr. Johnson said, "from the report of King Leopold's own commission of inquiry and from the Protestant and Roman Catholic missionaries. The report states that in six months 6,000 right hands were cut off from subjects whom King Leopold compelled to work for him without remuneration. These subject slaves were guarded by the army, whose soldiers were provided each with a chicotte. This instrument of torture is made of strips of green hippopotamus hide which are twisted and dried and made into whips. The spiral edge of each strand when the whip hardens is as keen as a knife blade. When a slave falls short of his day's work he is stripped and held face downward while the chicotte is applied.

Die While Being Whipped.

"Ninety lashes is the usual punishment. In many instances death has resulted before the full punishment was meted out.

"The soldiers, whenever ordered to shoot men who failed to work, expended their cartridges on game. When this was discovered the soldiers were ordered to bring back the right hand of a slave for each empty cartridge."

CUTS UP HUSBAND'S SUIT WHEN HE STAYS OUT LATE.

Mrs. Anna M. Burt Arrested After She Punished Spouse for Tarrying Away from Home.

When her husband came home after midnight yesterday morning Mrs. Anna M. Burt, 130 North State street, it is said, tore his new spring suit to shreds. Then she made vain efforts to eject him from the flat.

Burt's objections were heard by Mrs. Mary Anthony, the landlady, who called the police.

"I have a perfect right to do anything with my husband's clothes," said Mrs. Burt when she was questioned by Policeman W. Sederberg. She seized a pair of scissors and tried to finish her husband's overcoat. At the Chicago avenue police station she justified her actions, saying:

"My husband has been in the habit of staying out late nights, and I was just getting sick and tired."

Later she said she was sorry, and her husband obtained her release on bonds.

CROWD STONES A STREET CAR.

After Peter Giovenco Is Run Over Other Italians Attempt to Wreak Vengeance on Motorman.

After a Larrabee street electric car had run down and severely injured Peter Giovenco, 11 years old, yesterday afternoon, a crowd of angry Italians stoned the car. Several passengers narrowly escaped the flying missiles. The motorman, James Wilson, turned on the current and in a short time was out of danger.

Policemen from the Chicago avenue and Larrabee street stations had some trouble in dispersing the crowd. Young Giovenco was taken to the German hospital, where the attending physicians found that his left leg was crushed below the knee. Amputation may be necessary.

FOUR STREET CARS INVADED BY A TRIO OF PICKPOCKETS.

Three Passengers Are Robbed and One Puts the Thieves to Flight by Strenuous Resistance.

Peter Jantz, 945 Bryn Mawr avenue, while on the rear platform of a Bowmanville electric car at North avenue last night made a futile effort to prevent the theft of his wallet containing $175 by three pickpockets.

One of the men, after assaulting Jantz, took the pocketbook and jumped off the car. Jantz followed, but was unable to overtake them.

From descriptions given by Jantz, the police believe the pickpockets are the same men who endeavored to rob Edward Hickman, a florist, 1687 North Clark street, in a North Halsted street electric car. Hickman fought them and they fled, escaping arrest by boarding a west bound North avenue electric car.

Norman Hegglend, 515 Crystal street, reported that he was robbed of $35 by three pickpockets on a Chicago avenue electric car near Center avenue. Soon afterwards the police at the Rawson street station were notified by Nicholas Leichter, 2601 Princeton avenue, that he had been robbed of $10 and a watch on a North avenue car.

Richard Burke, 21 Austin avenue, was kicked, beaten, and robbed of $14 by two men early Sunday morning at Desplaines and Fulton streets, two blocks from the Desplaines street police station.

Samuel Cohen, 57 Carpenter street, reported to the Desplaines street police that his house had been robbed three times within a month.

FUMES FATAL TO A WOMAN; ACCIDENT, SAYS HUSBAND.

Mrs. Belle Speed Found Dead in Bedroom with Gas Escaping from Open Jet Near By.

With gas escaping from an open jet, Mrs. Belle Speed, 6648 Union avenue, was found dead in her bedroom early yesterday morning. Her husband, William P. Speed, a retired insurance broker, said she had been ill for some time.

While Speed said his wife has declared recently on a number of occasions that she was tired of life, he was certain her death was accidental. The body was found lying upon the bed where Mrs. Speed had retired Saturday evening.

"My wife always left the gas burning in her room all night," Speed said, "and I believe she arose shortly before daylight to extinguish it. In turning the valve the finger piece went all the way round, as there is no catch on the fixture. Owing to her physical condition, I believe my wife did not notice she again had turned the gas on."

Physicians at the Michael Reese hospital said Mrs. Julia C. Gibson, the accused midwife who tried to commit suicide on Friday, probably will recover.

WILD WEST CAREERS CHECKED.

Two Chicago Boys Who Stole Money and Started Out to Kill Indians Are Arrested in Ottawa.

The police at Ottawa, Ill., have arrested Arthur Pitz, 16 years old, and Henry Ross, 17 years old, of this city, who stole $37 from Frank Henser, 763 West Thirteenth street last Friday and boarded a train for the west to kill Indians.

Before leaving Chicago the boys purchased two revolvers and ammunition. They exhausted the money when they reached Ottawa, Ill., and applied at the police station for lodging. Before going to the station the boys hid the revolvers.

While Pitz was placing the revolver in his pocket yesterday it was discharged and the bullet inflicted a slight wound in his left leg. Ross became alarmed and reported the accident to the police, who arrested both boys. They will be brought back to Chicago.

CANOEING FATAL TO STUDENTS.

Two Seniors of Trinity University, Toronto, Ont., Drown Near Mimico Point.

Toronto, Ont., April 8.—Two third year art students of Trinity university, A. C. Moorhouse of this city and W. W. Hart, son of the assessment commissioner of Guelph, Ont., were drowned while canoeing near Mimico point last night. Hart was head of the class of 1906, and winner of the Wellington scholarship in classics last year.

DEMOCRATS TALK OF WOES

DISTRESSED BY COYNESS OF THE LABORING CLASSES.

Members of County Organization Blame Grover Cleveland for Sending Troops to Chicago During the Debs Insurrection and Censure Former Mayor Harrison for Alienating the Workers by His Efforts as Strikebreaker.

Members of the County Democracy vexed themselves for several hours yesterday trying to determine, apropos of their proposed affiliation with the laboring vote, why it is "such hard work to get the common people in line."

Except for burning references to ex-Mayor Harrison, the county central committee, and the newspapers, it was a rather coy analysis of the charms of the County Democracy and the general deathlessness of its principles. It was concluded that Grover Cleveland, in sending troops to Chicago during the railway strike of 1894, had "queered" the party in the eyes of the "working class," and thus necessitated a laborious precinct organization to take off the curse.

Jacob W. Richards Discouraged.

Jacob W. Richards, former south town assessor, pointed out the paradox involved in the democratic party being obliged to "sweat and hustle for votes."

"Why should we have to toil like this?" he demanded. "Why should we have to scheme to get lists of union men and beg them to come out and vote for our candidates? Why aren't they inflexible democrats, tumbling pellmell into our organization?

"I tell you, Mr. Chairman, I get discouraged when I think of the apathy and indifference of the working class. Don't they know their own interests? Don't they know that we are it?"

"That's just the trouble," said a voice from the rear of the hall. "We aren't it. The county central committee is the democratic party and you can't blame the toilers for being shy of that crew."

Grover Cleveland Is Blamed.

This was cheered as a comforting reflection as also was speech analyzing ex-Mayor Harrison's record as a "strikebreaker."

Frank Buchanan of the structural iron-workers pointed out the serious damage done the democratic party by Grover Cleveland, declaring he had been "surpassed as a democrat by both the republicans who succeeded him."

The organization was cheered somewhat by the discovery that the meeting in Brand's hall had chosen as its chairman and secretary two members of the County Democracy—Arthur McCracken and Axel Gustafsen. It was then decided to continue the fight. Each congressional district will be given over to the supervision of one man, forming a campaign committee of ten. This committee will be appointed during the week.

NAME LINN'S SUCCESSOR TODAY

Judges of the Circuit Court Will Meet at Noon—Three Candidates in Field.

Chief Justice Lockwood Honoré of the Circuit court bench announced last night that he would call a meeting of the judges this noon to appoint a successor to former Circuit Court Clerk John A. Linn, who resigned on Saturday prior to pleading guilty to the charges pressed against him in the Criminal court.

Three candidates are in the field, as follows:

James J. Gray, democrat, master in chancery to Judge Kersten of the Circuit court, former member of the board of assessors.

Charles H. Bradley, republican; served as chief deputy clerk of the Circuit court since his appointment by Henry Best in 1884.

Frank F. Gaulter, democrat, clerk of the Circuit court from 1888 to 1892; first democrat to get such a berth in thirty years.

Bradley's experience probably would have secured him the place had not the county commissioners appointed James Pease, a republican, to fill Sheriff Barrett's unexpired term. The new appointee will have but a few months to serve, as Gov. Deneen is expected to issue a call for a new election in November to fill that post.

NOVEL POLITICAL SOCIETY IS BORN.

Chicago Progressive Alliance Organized to Capture Democratic Primaries.

DISPUTE OVER PLATFORM.

Labor Unions and Various Leagues Represented at Brand's Hall Meeting.

Something new in the way of a political organization was born in Chicago yesterday. It is not a party or a reform society, its promoters announced. To say it is T. P. Quinn's party nearly describes it.

The new organization, which celebrated its first birthday at a delegate meeting in Brand's hall in the afternoon, is known as the Chicago Progressive alliance. Its announced object is to capture the democratic primaries and nominate its slate. The delegates represented many labor unions and "progressive" societies, who met after several weeks of agitation.

At its first meeting the permanent organization was completed, officers were selected and a platform was drawn up.

Serious Obstacles Overcome.

But the work of the delegates was not accomplished without much trouble and the overcoming of many serious obstacles. The authorship of the platform, as presented for the first time, was credited to a member of the Longshoremen's union, and consequently smacked of the sea. Some of the nautical terms used were objectionable to delegates from other union bodies and the trouble began.

The first objection was to the first paragraph of the platform, which read as follows:

"Realizing that we are at the mercy of an industrial despotism engineered by as merciless a crew of pirates as ever ravaged a main or scuttled a ship."

Dr. Alex Gustafson, chairman of the committee on resolutions, did not consider this strong enough to represent the feelings of the backers of the party, and the following was substituted:

"A merciless band of pirates, more absolute and cruel than the Russian autocracy, more far reaching in its effects upon the people's weal, and more dangerous to the happiness and perpetuation of the republic than the condition of affairs preceding the civil war."

Delegates Without Credentials.

Following the reading of the preamble of the platform it was discovered that the delegates present had not shown their credentials and that almost anybody who entered the hall could vote upon the questions at issue. Little printed slips were circulated at once among the unionists upon which to write their names and the organizations which they represented.

But this only caused more trouble, for it was discovered that the printed slips did not bear the union label. After much talking the delegates consented to place their names upon the slips and the business of the convention proceeded.

Officials were selected in a short time, with the following result:

Chairman—Arthur McCracken.
Vice presidents—William Jones, W. A. Moran, Charles E. Stevens, W. C. Perry, and John Vail, all affiliated with labor organizations.
Secretary—Fred Lee.
Treasurer—Steve Sumner.

Report Seats 300 Delegates.

By this time the committee on credentials, headed by Henry Huer, had made its report and it was found that there were more than 300 delegates present, representing fifty-three union organizations and many municipal ownership and other "progressive" bodies.

This report evoked considerable criticism. Delegate William Sherman decried the presence of so many I. M. O. delegates among the voters at the convention. This gave rise to the suggestion that the letters should be interpreted as meaning: Immediate Municipal Officeseekers' league. Huer, himself being a delegate from the Twenty-fourth ward I. M. O. organization, did not take kindly to the suggestion, and the delegates from every organization finally were permitted to retain their seats in the convention.

Platform Which Is Adopted.

Then the discussion returned to the platform and the following is a summary of the conclusions placed in the document:

"We denounce all interference with the rights of the individual to pursue natural enjoyments, which do not interfere with the rights of others, as tyrannical and unjust and opposed to the genius of American institutions.

"That the people may fully and rationally enjoy their suffrage, we favor an enactment requiring a suspension of business on primary days.

"The nomination of all candidates for elective offices by direct vote of the people at primaries held for that purpose.

"Uncontrolled representative government being debauched and corrupted by those who buy privileges, we favor the adoption of initiative and referendum by the people, whereby they may initiate the legislation they desire and which is refused them by their servants.

"We favor that most rational and necessary change in the method of dealing with the public servants, that of the power of recalling the faithless ones.

For Public Ownership.

"The only issue before the people in the matter of the public utilities being whether the money paid by the people for service shall as at present go into the pockets of stockholders or whether the operation of them shall inure to the benefit of the people who use the utilities in better wages and better working conditions for employés and improved service and reduced charges for patrons, that can be obtained through municipal and government ownership and operation; we therefore favor the government ownership of railroads and telegraphs and the municipal ownership of street railways, telephones, lighting, and water systems.

"That inequalities in taxation may be remedied and that the enactment of matters affecting taxation may be brought within the purview of the people to be affected by it, we favor local option in taxation, and pending the obtaining of it we favor an apportionment of police, fire, and other protection by wards in proportion to the amount of taxes paid by each ward.

"Feeling that the abuse of the writ of injunction by certain corporation stalking horses who have obtained place on the bench in federal and state courts requires a limitation to be placed upon it, we favor such legislation as will require a trial by jury of alleged acts of contempt of court committed out of the presence of the court.

"Recognizing that Chicago has outgrown the limitations placed upon it by the aged cities and villages act and that legislators assembled from all over our state, some of whom are ignorant of our needs, others of whom are not in harmony with our aspirations, still others of whom are mere hirelings, who, for a consideration, would sell us into further bondage, are not competent to deal with Chicago's needs and desires, we pledge our earnest and utmost endeavors to obtaining for our city a charter that will give to the people of Chicago complete control of their own affairs."

Candidates of Alliance.

The candidates already slated for office were printed in THE TRIBUNE some days ago. All officers elected will have signed resignations and placed them in the hands of the board of commissioners, to take effect at any time a majority of the voters of Cook county may decide that the "will of the people is not being carried out."

Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco is to be invited to Chicago to assist the new body. The adjourned meeting of the alliance probably will be held at Brand's hall next Sunday afternoon.

DRAINAGE CANAL FIGHTS NIAGARA.

Sanitary District Protests Against Efforts to Limit Draft of Lake Water.

M'CORMICK TO BE HEARD.

Senator Cullom and Other Illinoisans to Back Interests of Chicago and Big Ditch.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Chicago is so vitally affected by the scheme to preserve Niagara Falls that the sanitary district has protested formally against its adoption. The protest has come from President R. R. McCormick in a letter to Senator Cullom as chairman of the committee on foreign relations of the senate, asking that the drainage district be allowed an opportunity to make a statement in opposition to the proposal to limit the diversion of the lake water to the Chicago drainage canal to 10,000 cubic feet per second.

Mr. McCormick states that such a limitation would be harmful to the interests of the city. Senator Cullom wrote to Mr. McCormick stating that his committee will consider the scheme to preserve Niagara Falls at a meeting to be held on Wednesday, and that it will be glad to have him appear and make an argument in order to demonstrate how Chicago may be affected by the plan recommended by President Roosevelt. Mr. McCormick is expected to reach Washington tomorrow.

President Roosevelt Promotes Plan.

The scheme President Roosevelt wants adopted is that formulated by the American members of the international waterways commission for the preservation of Niagara falls. It was submitted to congress ten days ago. The president at first contemplated the negotiation of a treaty with Great Britain for the preservation of the falls, but Secretary Root came to the conclusion that it would be useful to have immediate legislation, and the president suggested that a law should be put in such form that it would lapse at the expiration of three years provided during that time no international agreement should be reached.

In accordance with the president's recommendation, the foreign relations committee of the senate has called upon the American members of the international waterways commission to submit a draft of a bill, and this will be presented tomorrow. It will contain provisions as follows:

1. Authorizing the secretary of war to grant permits for the diversion of 28,500 cubic feet of water per second, and no more, from the waters naturally tributary to Niagara falls, distributed as follows: Chicago drainage canal, 10,000 cubic feet; Niagara Falls Hydraulic Power and Manufacturing company, 9,500 cubic feet; Niagara Falls Power company, 8,600 cubic feet; Erie canal, or its tenants, in addition to lock service, 400 cubic feet.

Limiting Use of Tributary Waters.

2. Prohibiting all other diversion of water which is naturally tributary to Niagara falls, except such as may be required for domestic use or for the service of locks and navigation canals.

3. Prescribing penalties for any violations of the law.

4. The law to remain in force for three years and then to continue in force, if in the meantime the Canadian government shall have enacted legislation prohibiting the diversion of the water which is naturally tributary to Niagara falls, in excess of 36,000 cubic feet per second, not including the amount required for domestic use or for the service of locks in navigation canals.

Gen. Ernest, chairman of the American members of the commission, claims that he and his associates have apportioned an ample supply of water to the Chicago drainage canal for all present use and for the future of the city. He states the present amount of water permitted to be diverted into the canal from the lake is only 4,200 feet per second. The canal now has a capacity of 5,000 cubic feet per second.

Overlooks Chicago's Possibilities.

Gen. Ernst suggests that for Illinois and the people of the middle west to build a canal for navigation purposes, the depth of which shall be greater than fourteen feet, will be to do injury to the greatest scenic wonder in the United States. He and other persons who are interested in maintaining the Niagara falls in all its present glory neglect to consider, however, the effect upon Chicago of a limitation of the water supply of the canal.

The wonderful growth of that city within the last fifteen years warrants the prediction it will double in size during the next quarter of a century and to meet the requirements of such a vast number of persons the drainage canal undoubtedly will have to be employed to the full capacity fixed by the waterways commission. This at least is the opinion prevailing here, though an accurate estimate has not been worked out.

It is expected that Mr. McCormick will come to Washington able to furnish the committee with all the statistics necessary to demonstrate the inadvisability of placing a limit upon the inflow to the drainage canal such as recommended by the commission.

Private Concerns Use Power.

There are five principal corporations engaged in furnishing or preparing to furnish electricity for commercial purposes generated from the great water power at Niagara Falls. The commission has sought to limit them to the amount granted by their charters. The Niagara Falls Hydraulic Power and Manufacturing company is taking about 4,000 cubic feet per second and is extending its works so that eventually it will use about 9,500 cubic feet per second.

This company has paid nothing to the state of New York for its privileges. It is estimated that the power plant and industries dependent upon it represent an investment of $10,000,000. The Niagara Falls Power company is authorized by the charter granted to it by the state of New York to take about 17,200 cubic feet of water per second from the falls. Its plant takes about 8,000 cubic feet per second.

The investment represents about $14,000,000. It has paid nothing to the state for its charter, but it is required to furnish free of charge electricity for light and for power and also water for the use of the state and in the state reservation at Niagara. The Canadian Niagara Power company, the Ontario Power company, the Electrical Development company, and the Niagara Falls Park railway company are Canadian enterprises which are authorized to divert 34,400 cubic feet per second from the Canadian side of the falls.

Grave Danger to Cataract Seen.

It was estimated by the waterways commission that when these American and Canadian plants are in full operation 27 per cent of the average discharge and 33 per cent of the lower water discharge of the Niagara river will cease to pass over the falls and this in general is calculated to have an injurious effect upon them. It is estimated that the volume of water to be diverted eventually is about equivalent to the entire discharge of Lake Superior through Sault Ste. Marie. The commission believes if all the water taken by the American companies should affect the American fall alone, it would practically leave it dry.

"In our opinion," the commission stated, "the commercial advantages of a large increase in the development of power will not compensate for the great loss to the world of the inspiration, esthetic education, and opportunity for recreation which the mighty cataract affords. Over 800,000 people visit the falls annually, deriving pleasure and inspiration from them. The United States government has reserved lands of striking picturesqueness, grandeur, and interest, regardless of their value. An illustration may be given in the instance of the city of New York, one of the many hundreds. There the municipality has acquired in Central park property which is estimated to be worth $220,000 and has spent millions upon its improvement and ornamentation.

These illustrations would seem to prove conclusively that the people are not inclined to offset mere commercial values against the intangible but none the less great advantages found in the preservation of the great works of nature."

"No one believes more heartily than I do," said Senator Cullom, "in the preservation of our great natural wonders and especially the Niagara Falls, but I will not consent to any step which would place even an ultimate limit upon the growth of Chicago and the health of the people of the city and upon the greatness of Illinois. The drainage canal was constructed so that Chicago might be made a healthy city whatever its developments. It was built at great expense by the city, and no other part of the union contributed a cent.

"I do not see that the general government has any right to prescribe how little or how much water shall flow into the drainage canal or at least that it should attempt to limit the development of any section of the country solely to gratify an esthetic taste. I put health above esthetics. No one can foretell the size Chicago ultimately will attain.

"Mustn't Hamper Chicago"—Cullom.

"Unquestionably it is destined to be one of the greatest cities of the world, rivaling greater New York and even London in its population. Moreover, we must not lose sight of the fact that the middle west is demanding and will have an outlet from the great lakes to the gulf, and to achieve this it will be necessary to build a waterway, at first perhaps fourteen foot, but later on deep enough to accommodate ships of a greater draft than twenty feet.

"The drainage canal will be an important part of this waterway. That canal has a depth of twenty-two feet. It would be wrong, in my judgment, for congress to put any limit upon the draft of the canal, and I shall oppose it. I shall be glad to hear what Mr. McCormick has to say and shall press his views upon the earnest consideration of the committee on foreign relations and upon the senate."

Secretary Taft, who probably will be one of the associate justices of the Supreme court and undoubtedly will be called upon to consider the constitutionality of any such legislation, has informed the president that the recommendations of the waterways commission suggest the question of whether such legislation is within the limitations of the legislative power of congress, when applied to nonnavigable parts of a stream which is within the borders of a state and which is only partly navigable, and if the use of the water to be inhabited does not affect navigation in the navigable part of the stream below.

Taft Favors Treaty Settlement.

It is evident the secretary had in mind the drainage canal, which is exclusively a state and not an interstate project. The secretary thought that the treaty power exercised by the president and senate with respect to a stream which forms a boundary between this country and Canada would be subject to less limitation in this regard than the legislative power of congress. The secretary suggested it might be more advisable to effect the results sought through a treaty rather than through a statute.

The negotiation of a treaty will be taken up by Secretary Root in a short time. There are many indications of an active public interest in this subject, the president, the state department, and congress being deluged with resolutions and petitions relative to the preservation of the falls. The committee on rivers and harbors recently has reported favorably to the house a joint resolution along the same lines.

Will Protect Drainage Canal.

The secretary does not doubt that the New York legislature and congress would enact the legislation necessary to put a treaty into effect. It is evident, however, from the temper of the representatives of Illinois in congress, that they will not consent to any treaty or legislation limiting the capacity of the drainage canal; and they expect to have the support of all the representatives of the great middle west, who appreciate that if such a limit as recommended by the waterways commission be adopted there will be no chance for the construction and operation of an adequate waterway connecting the great lakes and the gulf.

SUBSTITUTE FOR "BIG STICK."

Admirer Sends President Roosevelt Four Foot Weapon from Swordfish Caught Off Bay State Coast.

Cleveland, O., April 8.—[Special.]—Within a week President Roosevelt is likely to abandon his big stick and take up the sword as his official weapon.

The sword is now on its way to Washington. It is sent to the president by Charles J. Higgins of Cleveland, who caught it in the ocean off the Massachusetts coast. It is four feet long.

This sword originally was the nasal adornment of a big swordfish which might still be enjoying his watery life had it not been that he suddenly developed an inordinate taste for hardware.

GENERAL STRIKE AT HAVANA?

Unions Would Tie Up All Industries in Support of Electric Railway Employes.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HAVANA, April 8.—A general strike to support the striking employés of the Havana Electric railway has been called for tomorrow. There is some doubt whether the call will be responded to heartily, as an open air meeting the men held today was not largely attended, whereas the unions are calculating that thousands should strike. The electric cars are being run fairly regularly with new hands. The police made several arrests of incendiary speakers at today's meeting. The police evidently are well prepared to deal with trouble. Employés complain they are overeager to interfere.

Royalty to Give Concert for Equestrienne.

Baroness de Rhaden in the Ring.

Princess Louise of Belgium and other royal persons are among the patronesses of a concert to be given in Paris for Baroness de Rhaden, the once famous equestrienne of the Paris ring, who has been living in poverty with her mother since she was stricken blind eight years ago. Her late husband, who was a Russian army officer, once killed one of her admirers in the circus ring. The baron died in 1897.

HOUSE TO HONOR CANNON.

SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY TO BE MARKED BY RECEPTION.

Enthusiastic Friends of the Speaker Propose to Make Gathering in the House of Representatives on May 7 the Most Memorable Event of Its Kind in History of the Capitol—Even Talk of Developing Him as a Presidential Candidate in 1908.

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—The house of representatives is preparing to give a monster reception in honor of Speaker Cannon on his seventieth birthday, which falls on May 7, and the event will undoubtedly be one of the most memorable in the annals of the national capital.

The popularity of the speaker, which this event will demonstrate, is expected by some of his friends to show his availability as a presidential candidate.

When Mr. Cannon's name publicly was mentioned in connection with the presidential nomination a year or so ago, an unfeeling critic sprung age records, which showed the old war horse from Illinois was rapidly approaching the seventy year mark. Friends of the speaker declare, however, that when it comes to a discussion of age, he cannot be judged by ordinary standards. They assert that he is as young as any man twenty years his junior, that he is strong, vigorous, and aggressive, both mentally and physically, and that, unlike many old men, he has not lost the power of initiative.

Hard Presidential Fight Sure.

The conviction is growing in Washington that the next big gathering of republicans will witness one of the liveliest fights for the presidential nomination in the history of the party. The list available so far is made up of Root, Fairbanks, Taft, Shaw, Spooner, Foraker, and Knox, while Dolliver and La Follette have appeared in the offing.

Recent developments here would seem to indicate that, whether or not he has knowledge of it, Mr. Cannon's friends are grooming him for first place on the republican national ticket two years hence.

An important piece of news, having a bearing on national politics, came from Ohio last week. It was to the effect that the breach between the Hanna and Foraker factions had been healed, and that Senator Foraker will be presented to the next republican national convention as Ohio's candidate for the presidency, Secretary Taft to the Supreme court or not notwithstanding.

Foraker Boom Also Launched.

The Foraker presidential boom has been started, and additional significance is given to it in that it is started by men who were formerly identified with the Hanna faction in Ohio politics.

Representative W. B. Baldwin, a member of the Ohio legislature, who classes himself as a Hanna man, and who is a close personal and political friend of Senator Dick, stands sponsor for the Foraker boom in a formal statement in which he says:

"There is nothing to it but Foraker. I have felt the temper of the republican members of the assembly, and they are to a man for the elevation of our senior senator to the presidency. The members of the legislature will take the initiative in the movement.

Fairbanks the Darkest Horse.

"We are for the strongest man in the state as Ohio's candidate for the presidency. That man is undoubtedly Senator Foraker, and it would be foolish to think of any other name in this connection."

There is good reason to believe that Senator Foraker is being brought forward as a presidential candidate partly to head off Vice President Fairbanks. Political observers in Washington are awakening to a realization of the fact that unless they get a move on them the tall statesman from the banks of the Wabash may have the presidential plum in his basket before they discover that the fruit is ripe for the picking.

PLEAD THEY BE EXECUTED: ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL.

Conflicting Actions of the Rawlings, Father and Two Sons, Under Death Sentence in Georgia, Puzzle Officials.

Atlanta, Ga., April 8.—[Special.]—The Rev. J. G. Rawlings of Lowndes county, who, with two sons, is under sentence of death for the murder of the Carter children, and whose case is before the Supreme court of the United States, has written Gov. Terrell asking the executive not to delay the execution longer by granting any reprieve or respite. He declares they are tired of the whole affair and wish to be hanged on May 4, as per sentence.

A third son of Rawlings is to serve a life sentence for the same crime. The Rawlings had had trouble with Carter in Florida and stabbed him, but he survived. Carter moved to Georgia, and the Rawlings followed, entered his home, and killed his two children.

Despite the professed desire of the Rawlings to be hanged, they made an attempt at Valdosta last night to break jail. They had sawed some bolts, and in a few hours would have effected their escape.

Ziegler Sues for Divorce.

Youngstown, O., April 8.—[Special.]—Owen Ziegler, a former pugilist, yesterday filed a petition for divorce from his wife Anna, who is now an actress. They were married in Philadelphia and have one child, 12 years old. Ziegler charges his wife with desertion.

RUSS LIBERALS SCORE TRIUMPH.

Elect 178 Members of National Parliament, Exceeding Highest Hopes.

BLOW TO REACTIONARIES.

Balloting in Moscow Expected to Add to the Progressive Victory.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 8.—The electoral colleges in twenty-eight out of the fifty-one provinces in European Russia today elected 178 members to the national parliament—about one-third of its entire membership—and returns received up to midnight indicate that the wildest hopes of the liberals have been realized, the constitutional democrats and other progressivists practically everywhere having gained a tremendous victory over the octoberists and other conservative parties.

As far as is ascertained not a single reactionary candidate pulled through, and nowhere did even the octoberists score a triumph. The majorities obtained by the radicals clinch the character of the victory. From the Volga to the frontier of Poland and from the still icebound coast of Archangel to the Black sea the story is substantially the same.

The results prove beyond question that the calculations of the government have been rudely upset and that the opposition elements will control the national parliament by a decisive majority. Another crisis plainly confronts the government, for the sweeping character of their victory undoubtedly will encourage the liberals to push the government to the wall, and it would seem that the emperor must yield to the entreaties of those who counsel a final surrender by issuing a constitution to the people or dispersing the national parliament as soon as it assembles.

Educated Peasants Chosen.

One of the astonishing as well as hopeful signs for the future is the character of many of the peasants elected. Before the electoral college began to elect the members allotted a province the peasants separately chose one of their number as a candidate. This provision was designed to appease the peasants, and also was regarded by the government as insuring a conservative nucleus. But this calculation has been sadly upset, for in almost every instance the peasants elected not only were progressives but the most highly educated among their class, the majority of them at least having a high school education. A peasant in Simbirsk named Alladin was educated in England.

In the Volga district and the central provinces, where famine and agrarian disorders have been the greatest, the peasant vote was most radical.

Results in Outer Provinces.

In Samara, by a vote of 86 to 8, they chose M. Guttandont, a socialist, while the members elected by the college were a doctor, four zemstvoists, and five progressive peasants.

In far away Ufa, the border territory, the Orenburg Cossacks returned a solid progressive delegation consisting of four Russians and six Mussulmans.

The effect of the revolutionary outbreak at Sevastopol was reflected in the results in Taurida, which includes the whole of the Crimea, where the peasants chose a social revolutionist.

In the province of Grodno, in the Jewish pale, a solid progressive delegation was chosen, included among it being two Jews.

Tver, where Gov. Gen. Sleptsoff was assassinated Saturday, was swept by the constitutional democrats by an overwhelming majority. Ivan Petrunkevitch, the leader of the constitutional democrats and against whom the opposition was concentrated, and MM. Rodichieff and Kusminkaravieff were elected.

Among other prominent persons elected are Prince Balataiteff, the well known zemstvoist worker of Simbirsk; Prince Shakeffsky of Yaroslav, and Prof. Maxim Kovolevsky of Kharkoff.

In Minsk province the radical Russians and Jews and Poles formed a coalition and decided to put up a joint ticket comprised of four Jews, two Poles, and one Russian.

Moscow Votes with a Rush.

MOSCOW, April 8.—The Moscow municipal election, held today, was the culmination of a veritable whirlwind canvass. The result is not yet known, as the votes will not be counted until tomorrow.

Last night meetings were held in all the available public halls and in the streets. The best orators of the constitutional democrats, including Prof. Paul M. Miliukoff, M. Hesson, and others, came from St. Petersburg, and hundreds of speeches were made.

The Octoberists made a fervid appeal to the voters not to choose constitutional democrats, a majority of whom, they declared, would mean the ruin and division of Russia. The vote today was the heaviest ever cast here. Up to 3 o'clock over 30,000 of the 50,000 registered electors had voted.

MILITARY PROBLEM AT MANILA.

Conditions Declared Unfavorable for Expected Arrival of First Infantry.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

MANILA, April 8.—The anticipated arrival of the First infantry on the transport Kilpatrick is causing embarrassment to the military authorities here. It possibly may be necessary to reëstablish a provisional camp on Luneta, as Camp Stotzenberg, the brigade post eleven miles from Manila, has an inadequate supply of water. Malaria is prevalent there, and there are no quarters for married officers, their families living in tents. The officers severely criticise the war department's insistence upon establishing a post at Camp Stotzenberg despite the protest made by Gen. Corbin.

GREECE CELEBRATES: 2 KILLED.

Riots Follow Noisy Observance of Athens' Fourth of July and Troops Are Needed.

ATHENS, April 8.—In the celebration of the anniversary of the independence of Greece on Saturday the patriotic demonstrations were ended at 9 o'clock in the evening by a riot over the elections, in which two persons were killed and seventeen wounded. The troops then cleared the streets.

Why Many People Suffer from Constipation

A Sure and Safe Relief

Constipation is most often caused by a torpid liver or failure of the stomach and bowels to perform their proper functions. The condition is commonly due at first to irregular habits of living and improper food, and if properly treated can be readily relieved. It is, however, too often aggravated and made chronic by the use, as medicine, of powerful and expensive drugs, which purge and perhaps give temporary relief, but are so drastic in effect as to damage the tender lining of the stomach and bowels, leaving a condition worse than at first. This can, however, be avoided, and the bowels gently and thoroughly relieved by the use of Nature's own remedy—the famous Natural Mineral Laxative Water—HUNYADI JANOS—which has been relieving suffering mankind all over the world for nearly half a century. One dose, ½ a tumblerful, drunk on arising in the morning (slightly warmed for best results), will, within an hour, bring a delightful and refreshing relief. A whole bottle costs but a trifle, and it is best to keep one always on hand. Every Druggist keeps it.

ISLANDS RUINED BY WAVE.

PACIFIC STORM, FEB. 7 AND 8, COSTS 150 LIVES.

Anaa, a Coral Elevation, Suffers Most from Hurricane, Which Swept Tuamotu Group—Three of Its Six Settlements Practically Annihilated—Large City Traceable Only by Debris and Not to Be Seen from the Sea.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, March 27.—[Foreign Correspondence.]—The latest estimate of the number of lives lost in the hurricane of Feb. 7 and 8 is 150. Property losses will aggregate $1,500,000.

The British ship County of Roxborough of Glasgow was wrecked at Taharoa, Tuamotu islands, and ten seamen were drowned. The schooner Tahitienne broke up at sea near the Tuamotu islands, and Capt. George Dexter was swept from the wreckage after two days and drowned. It is reported that Mate Dick Chares was eaten by sharks. Five others of the crew perished. All of the Tautura's company appears to have been lost. Possibly twenty-five or thirty persons perished with the Elmeo, quarantine schooner.

Many of the Tuamotu islands were swept clear of all buildings and thousands of cocoanut trees. At Anaa, the center of the hurricane, a substantial stone structure at which over fifty persons took refuge collapsed, causing the death of forty-eight persons. A Roman Catholic priest, Father Paul, was drowned at Faite. The local government is caring for about 400 victims of the disaster at Papeete, and two small schooners are cruising among the islands with food and water.

Capsized Three Times in Five Days.

A small cutter of eight or ten tons was caught near Bira Bira, Leeward islands. William Buchin, a French trader of Bira Bira, and six others, including the native wife of one of the party, were in the cutter and could not enter the harbor on account of the rough sea. The cutter was blown out to sea. During five days the cutter was capsized three times. The party after many hours' struggle would succeed in righting the vessel, but finally the exposure and hardship weakened the strength of the woman and she was drowned.

A singular rescue occurred near Papeete, where an infant wrapped in a shawl was torn from its mother's arms by a strong wave. A few moments later, in reaching out to the limbs of a tree for support, she found her child in the tree practically unharmed.

No word has yet been received from the Marquesas islands. Flint island, west of the Marquesas about 300 miles, was badly damaged, only one house remaining standing. The Astral islands do not appear to have suffered any damage.

Anaa, the small unsheltered coral island of the Tuamotu group, on which most of the casualties thus far reported occurred, lay directly in the path of the tidal wave. There were six settlements on the island before the storm, but now scarcely a vestige of the three most important villages remains. Even the foundations on which they stood were made level with the sea, and nothing now remains except the jagged coral rocks, void of their former covering of sand.

Wave Sweeps Island Clean.

Off Tuuhora, the largest and most important city, where the Roman Catholic cathedral stood, nothing now remains by which the place can be recognized by passing craft. At Tekahora, on the extreme southeastern part of the island, the most lives were lost. About noon on Feb. 8 the sea began washing over the land, carrying away all movable articles. The fury of the sea continued to increase, and refuge was sought by the people in a large stone building. Twenty-eight persons on the inside and twenty-four on the outside clung close to the sheltered side.

About 3 o'clock a series of large waves broke upon the building, which collapsed, burying and killing forty-eight persons. Several others were swept away while trying to reach the rock house.

In all there were ninety-five deaths in this island at the time of the storm, and several have died since from injuries received.

HUNGARY FIRM ON SUFFRAGE.

Member of New Cabinet Declares No Part of Coalition Program Abandoned.

VIENNA, April 8.—Count Albert Apponyi, the minister of worship in the new Hungarian cabinet, in a statement made today, said:

"The Hungarian cabinet was formed on the basis of universal suffrage, and all other questions will be reserved for a parliament elected on this basis. No part of the coalition program has been abandoned."

The members of the new cabinet were sworn in at the Hofburg palace this afternoon. Afterwards the emperor-king held an informal reception, during which his greeting of the new ministers was most friendly.

From the Hofburg palace the ministers went to the Hungarian ministry, where they had their first cabinet council. It was decided that writs would be issued tomorrow calling for elections to be held on April 23. The new parliament is expected to assemble on May 19.

I. M. O. DISTURBS COUNCIL MAKEUP

Committee of Six on Organization Fails to Reach Common Ground.

DUNNE'S PLANS IN WAY.

Aldermen Who Sought West Baden for Seclusion Distrust Voters' League.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

West Baden, Ind., April 8.—[Special.]—A serious disagreement has arisen between the members of the aldermanic committee of six named to select standing committees for the next Chicago city council.

The trouble comes over the desire of Mayor Dunne to control the committees, more especially those on finance, local transportation, gas, oil, and electric light, and fire. He wants to organize all in the interest of I. M. O.

There is no dispute over the committee on local transportation. It is conceded on all hands the mayor can have the naming of the entire committee if he wants. The fight mainly is on the makeup of the finance committee. The mayor and his advisers think it necessary for their I. M. O. plans to control this, so as to insure favorable reports not only in the methods of spending the $75,000,000 they hope to raise by the sale of Mueller certificates but the expenditures from the general fund for experts and special counsel in other matters than the traction controversies.

Their attempt to control the finance committee is being opposed largely on the ground the city is in a bad enough shape financially now, and to intrust its financial affairs to the hands of impracticable men would spell bankruptcy for Chicago.

No Open I. M. O. Candidate.

So far no Dunne candidate against Ald. Frank I. Bennett for chairman of the finance committee has been named openly, although there has been gossip of Ald. Dever, Ald. Finn, and Ald. Zimmer. The Dunne aldermen have suggested that Bennett might remain as chairman if a majority of the committee were firm friends of the mayor. This naturally was rejected. Dunne's desire to own the gas, oil, and electric light committee is based on the fact that this committee has before it franchise ordinances for the Edison and Chicago Telephone companies. The mayor sees potentialities for I. M. O. in these lines of business.

He is after the fire committee in the hope ultimately of installing the double platoon system in Chicago. This also is another reason for going after the finance committee. It will necessitate a pretty heavy addition to the appropriation bill to get the money needed for the system.

Ald. Bennett, Bellfuss, Williston, Zimmer, Werno, and Bradley, making up the committee of six which is to select the council committees, got here early this morning and held two practically fruitless meetings during the day. They could not come even to an understanding which would form a working basis. They will try again tomorrow morning. There is hope an agreement can be reached before the council meeting Wednesday night.

Members' Stand Not Certain.

The members of the committee have not defined squarely their positions. Of the republicans, Bennett and Williston want to organize the council on a nonpartisan basis as the pledge signed by the majority of the aldermen requires. Bellfuss has not committed himself, and is claimed by the friends of Mayor Dunne who are seeking to organize the council on a partisan basis.

Of the democrats, Zimmer and Werno are relied on by the mayor to force through the I. M. O. organization, but Bradley is inclined to stick to his nonpartisan pledge.

The situation was put squarely in one of the debates today, when attention was drawn to the fact the original purpose of the nonpartisan organization of the council was to put the best men in charge of the committees, regardless of whether they were republicans or democrats. At that time the only partisan lines in the council were between republicanism and democracy. It was on this plea that the aldermen signed the Municipal Voters' League platform for a nonpartisan organization.

Just now, however, the only political issue before the council is I. M. O. and anti-I. M. O. It is not a matter of republicanism or democracy any longer. An organization of the council on Wednesday in favor of I. M. O. would be just as partisan an organization as would have been one of six years ago in favor of either republicans or democrats. Under the old partisan organization the cry was: "Put none but good party men on guard." Now the cry seems to be: "Put none but good I. M. O. men on guard."

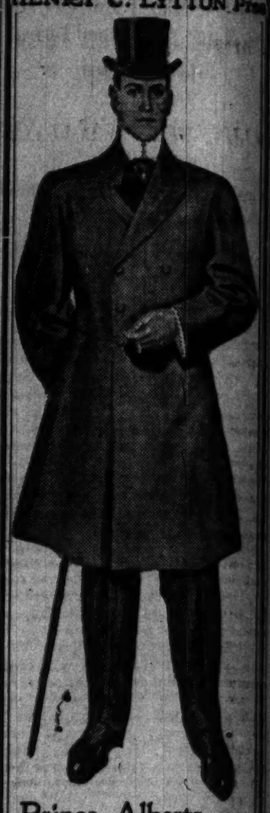

How Voters' League Works.

The situation would not be serious were it not for the Municipal Voters' League. That organization is credited here with trying to give Mayor Dunne a majority on the nominating committee. It also holds the pledges of fifty-five aldermen to support the selections of this nominating committee. It is known that Walter L. Fisher, who was president of the league at the time the committee was formed and the pledges given, is an I. M. O. advocate, and so is George S. Isham, its secretary, and Graham Taylor, and other members of the executive committee.

As for the city council proper, there is no question that a majority is opposed to the I. M. O. organization. The nominating committee came here to get away from the city hall interference. Nobody has shown up except Superintendent of Streets Doherty, and he comes here regularly at this time of the year anyhow. There are, however, several long distance telephone wires between here and Chicago.

Great Stream of Molten Lava Threatens to Ingulf Again Historic City.

PALL OVER SOUTH ITALY.

More Villages Destroyed, Thousands of People Fleeing in Terror.

shattered windows and cracked the walls of the buildings here, were experienced today. The entire population rushed to the streets, many persons crying, "The Madonna has forsaken us; the end of the world has come." Everything in Naples is covered with ashes from the volcano.

No trace remains of Boscotrecase, a commune on the southern declivity of the mountain, where up to forty-eight hours ago 10,000 persons lived.

Similar means of transportation are being Torre del Greco. The police and carbineers employed to bring away the people from are guarding the abandoned houses, and several members of the government also are there.

Lava Approaches Village.

A telegram received from the mayor of San Sebastiano, a village near the observatory on the northwest declivity of Vesuvius, says the lava is approaching rapidly and that the people are terror stricken. They have been for nights without sleep, he says, are destitute, and beg that assistance be given them.

The work of succor is hampered owing to delays to the railway service, which is interrupted by redhot stones thrown to a height of 3,000 feet falling on the tracks.

As yet it is impossible to count the craters that have opened and from which streams of lava have flooded the beautiful and prosperous land lying on the southeast shores of the gulf of Naples.

The atmosphere is heavily charged with electricity, and now and then the flashes of lightning are blinding, while the detonations from the volcano resemble those of terrible explosions.

Hundreds in Mad Flight.

A correspondent who went to the Boscotrecase and Torre del Annunziata districts on Saturday says:

"Along the road I met hundreds of families in flight, carrying a few miserable possessions. The spectacle of collapsed carts and fainting women was frequent. When one reached the lava streams a stupefying spectacle presented itself. From a point on the mountain between two towns I watched four rivers of molten fire, one of which was 200 feet wide and over 40 feet deep, moving slowly and majestically onward, devouring vineyards and olive groves. I witnessed the destruction of a farmhouse, which was enveloped on three sides by lava.

"Immediately overhead the great crater was belching incandescent rocks and scoriæ for an incredible distance. The whole summit was wreathed in flames and a perpetual roar was heard. Ever and anon the cone of the volcano was encircled with vivid electric phenomena, amid which the downpour of liquid fire on all sides of the crater was revived.

"In the evening there was a frightful shock of earthquake, which was repeated at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Simultaneously lava streams were redoubled and there was a rush of men, women, and children as they fled precipitately towards the sea. The lava had invaded the road behind them."

Smoke Hides View from Naples.

Another correspondent describes a visit made to Boscotrecase on Saturday, saying:

"As nothing could be seen from Naples owing to the dense, black pall of sand, half of Naples hurried to the threatened town by railway, electric tramway, motor car, and country cart. It was difficult enough to obtain a ticket and infinitely more difficult to obtain a seat in trains, although the service had been trebled. As far as the picturesque town of Portici the country lay desolate under a shroud of sand. Not a blossom could be seen on the withered trees and not a scrap of fodder on the ground for the cattle. Along the railway the people of the towns through which it passed stood watching with mournful surprise the procession of crowded trains.

"When we reached Boscotrecase at 4 p. m. we found only two or three houses outside of town had yet been destroyed, although with them vast tracts of vineyards had been devastated. The upper houses in the town which stand on the slopes of the volcano had been deserted, but the inhabitants are returning, as the stream of lava which had threatened them had ceased to advance. The second stream, however, is moving forward, but was not dangerous. This second stream surrounded and destroyed a cottage, but strangely enough a majestic pine tree stood unhurt in its midst. Elsewhere as the stream flowed slowly onwards three trees in its course shriveled up and burst into flames."

Seething Stream Destroys Houses.

The correspondent describes the subsequent reinforcement of the former lava stream at 5 o'clock Sunday morning by a fresh eruption, and says:

"Running like water, the revived stream reached the western end of town and in ten minutes destroyed twenty or thirty houses. The inhabitants fled from their homes. The two streams later united between Bosco Tre Case and Torre del Annunziata. Their width was at least 3,000 feet, and their depth 10. After destroying the watchman's house the lava crossed the railway, which runs round the base of Vesuvius, covering it for a width of 250 feet and wrecking trolley poles, wires, and telephone posts."

A description of the scene from Bosco Tre Case says:

"At sunset Saturday a fountain of fire burst through the dense smoke from the outer crater and rose to a height of 1,500 feet, breaking into millions of fiery bombs and glowing particles, which rained down the slope of the cone and rolled impetuously to its base on all sides. They seemed to dart upwards from several vents within the crater. There was a rolling sound and terrific explosions which never stopped for an instant."

Seek to Calm Populace.

The churches of the city were open all Saturday night and were crowded with panic-stricken people. Members of the clergy are doing their utmost to calm their fears, but the effects of their arguments go almost for naught when renewed earthquake shocks are experienced.

Prisoners in jails on the mountain side went mad with terror and mutinied and were only partly quieted by being brought here. But many fears have been communicated to the prisoners here, who may rebel at any moment.

Contrary to expectations, the sea has not yet shown signs of being affected by the phenomena, but fears are entertained that tidal waves may yet come and many craft have put to sea. Visitors to Naples are avoiding the hotels on the sea front, and the people living there are beginning to leave for higher altitudes.

Though there is much misery up to the present time there have been no fatalities, except at Portici, where an old woman died, supposedly from fright.

Duchess Angel of Mercy.

The duchess of Aosta, who always is to be found where misery exists, is not sparing herself in her efforts to alleviate distress. The people call her an angel of mercy. Today she took several children from their weary mothers and in her carriage conveyed them to the royal palace, where they will remain until conditions are brighter.

The royal observatory, which was destroyed, was situated nearly 2,000 feet above the level of the sea on Colle Canteroni, a ridge which in past eruptions of the volcano has separated the lava streams into two branches. The scientific deductions made by the observers there have often been the means of warning the people of impending eruptions, and doubtless have resulted in the saving of many lives. At the entrance to the observatory was a tablet erected to the memory of the tourists who lost their lives in April, 1872, while watching the eruption from the Atrio del Cavallo crater.

Vesuvius Mountain of Fire.

With the danger and horror of the situation aside, Vesuvius presents one of the most splendid sights imaginable. The mountain of fire, whose speech is by detonation and whose acts are destruction, seems like an enraged giant determined to make the pigmies of earth feel the might of his wrath. Here and there on the mountain side stand the blasted trunks of pine trees, their bare branches outstretched as if in protest against the devastation the volcano has wrought.

The town of Torre del Greco, which is in danger of being destroyed, has been overwhelmed by the power of Vesuvius sixteen times, yet the seventeenth city stands over the ruins of the first only four and a half miles from its destroyer.

Torre Annunziata, which also has suffered considerably by previous eruptions of Vesuvius, has extensive manufactories of macaroni.

Calamity Distresses Pope.

ROME, April 8.—Pope Pius is greatly distressed by the calamity wrought by the eruption of Mount Vesuvius. In talking to his secretary today he said:

"These are moments when my imprisonment is irksome."

His holiness personally will not be able to go to the scene, but he has sent a letter to Cardinal Prisco, archbishop of Naples, expressing his grief for the sufferers by the disaster and instructing him to distribute relief among them and to send to the vatican particulars of the eruption. He also gave the apostolic benediction to the faithful.

POMPEII AT BASE OF VOLCANO.

Pompeii, the world's most interesting ruin, now threatened with obliteration, is the only source of modern acquaintance with the domestic life of the ancients. Half of the ancient city of Pompeii has been excavated and work is proceeding on the other half, the Italian government for years having made annual appropriations for this excavation work. The city lay undisturbed under the lava for 1,500 years and its site was not accurately known until Charles III., in 1748, began excavations.

The only modern inhabitants of Pompeii have been the caretakers and guides placed there by the Italian government and who, for 2 francs, showed the tourists the ruins of the ancient forum, the amphitheater, the temple of Apollo, the homes of some of them fully equipped with the domestic utensils, etc., of the days when Pompeii was in its glory, the statues, jewelry, and a thousand and one things that have been uncovered.

Pompeii is situated on the shore of the bay of Naples, within a short distance of the foot of Mount Vesuvius. At the time of its burial it was a town of Campania. As a town of the living it had no great reputation except as a resort for Roman nobles and comparatively little is known of it, but as the most remarkable relic of antiquity in existence its fame is world wide.

Wonders Appeal to World.

The wonders of this ancient city and the horror of its destruction have made appeal to hundreds of thousands of English speaking people through Bulwer Lytton's splendid romance, "The Last Days of Pompeii."

Pompeii, like most of the cities in the beautiful country of that region, had a mixed population. A seaport town, it was cosmopolitan to a degree. Its origin is quite uncertain, but it passed in and out of the possession of many nations before it was finally conquered by the Romans after a long siege in 89 B. C.

Before the end of the republic Pompeii became the suburban home of many of the Roman nobles, who built beautiful villas in the neighborhood and greatly popularised the city among people of high degree. Cicero was one prominent occasional resident, and his letters frequently mention with enthusiasm his villa there.

Under the Roman empire the same custom continued, and during the first century of the Christian era it was a flourishing place with a considerable population.

Two Historic Events.

Only two historic events are recorded of the city during this period. The first was a fight in the amphitheater between visitors from the neighboring colony of Nuceria and the citizens of Pompeii, in which many were killed and wounded. As a result of this all gladiatorial and theatrical exhibitions were prohibited there for ten years. This was in 59 A. D.

Four years later the city was practically destroyed by earthquake. All the neighboring towns were injured by this disturbance, but Pompeii was the most severely affected. Most of the public buildings and very many of the private residences were destroyed or so badly injured that they had to be rebuilt. This work of restoring the city was actively under way when, in a day, the whole life of the city was wiped out and the very location of the flourishing little colony was lost, to remain so for many centuries.

Pompeii Destroyed in 79.

In 79 A. D., Vesuvius, which had been slumbering for unknown ages, suddenly burst into terrific eruption. Vast masses of earth and ashes were thrown into the air and fell in a great shower over the surrounding country, and lava spouted from the mountain's crater. The whole country was violently disturbed. Devastation was wrought all around the shores of the gulf and the two cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii were completely buried under dense masses of cinders and ashes.

The cities were destroyed in a different manner, however. Over Herculaneum there came a solid mass of volcanic tufa that obliterated it. Upon Pompeii there fell from eighteen to twenty feet of cinders, small stones, and ashes thrown out by the volcano. It has been established that this was all done by one eruption, though there are two distinct strata, the lower one of the stones and the heavier materials and the upper of fine white ash, which is often consolidated by the action of water.

The devastation was at least so sudden that the inhabitants had no chance to escape. They were caught like rats in a trap in their houses, in the streets, and in public buildings. Only a few blind people, familiar by the sense of feeling, were able to make their escape, the city being covered, it is believed, with a pall of blackness like the darkest night. People were overcome at their work and fell where they stood. Soon their bodies were covered with the fine ashes. As decay set in these ashes absorbed the liquids and a sort of petrification took place. In many cases a shell was formed from which an accurate mold of the bodies could be cast.

Roman Guards Buried Alive.

Some of the Roman soldiers, standing on guard, did not desert their posts and were slowly buried alive. Their remains are found today where they died, standing at attention, almost as unmoving as the shells of their bodies have been through the long centuries.

So entirely did this coating hide the city that its site was forgotten, and ancient topographers looked in vain for it. There were important changes in the topography of the country that helped to make its location difficult, and it was not till 1748 that it was accidentally discovered that the vineyards and mulberry grounds of the modern Italy covered the buried city at a point near the foot of the mountain. Herculaneum had been discovered before this, but, owing to the nature of its burial, its remains were infinitely less perfect and harder to get at than those of Pompeii.

Systematic exploration of the latter city began in 1755, though the work was not regular in character or scientifically thorough until the first years of the present century, when the French government began to take part in the work.

Two-Fifths of Towns Excavated.

The work of uncovering this ancient city is still under way. It has of late years been under the direction of Sig. Fiorelli, and has been carefully and thoroughly done. Photography has given important aid, and an accurate and complete idea of the ancient city is now at the service of all.

The town was irregularly oval in shape and was situated on a small elevation about a mile from the outer cone of Vesuvius, the hill evidently created by a previous outpouring of lava from the volcano. Before the great eruption its base was laved by the water of the bay, but the town is today more than a mile inland. The city was surrounded by a turreted wall, which is still preserved, and was quite regular in its plan, the generally narrow streets being nearly all straight and running at right angles. Only about two-fifths of the whole town has been excavated, but the excavations undoubtedly cover the most important parts and are sufficient to give a pretty exact estimate of the entire city.

The architectural and art remains that have been disclosed on the site of Pompeii are of remarkable interest and much beauty. They have given the world a picture of the life of eighteen centuries ago that was impossible before. The decorations of the houses, the work of sculpture, the public buildings, the baths, theaters, forum, and amphitheater, a hundred phases of that ancient life, have been brought to light in a wonderfully fine state of preservation. Even the bodies of the terrified inhabitants have been in a hundred of instances so preserved by the peculiar alkali covering that even their features were accurately preserved. No documents have yet been found in the ruins, though some inscriptions have, but the whole city is a document of inestimable value and interest, and itself tells a thrilling story of the terrific tragedy that blotted out its busy life in an hour.

Lava from Previous Eruptions of Vesuvius.

The picture shows, on the left, the observatory, which has now been buried by the lava streams.

Observatory Destroyed by Vesuvius' Eruption.

The observatory, which stood on the northwest slope of Vesuvius, was placed there to enable scientists to study the volcano and give warning of impending eruptions.

SET AUTO TRAPS TO STOP KILLING.

New Rochelle Police Bag Reckless Mahouts; Millionaire Yachtsman Caught.

JUDGE FOILS THIEVES.

Magistrate Stops Gang of Pickpockets, Who Are Attempting to Work on Car.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE.
New York, April 8.

Autoists Fall in New Rochelle Traps.

Owing to the killing last Sunday of Mrs. Betty Kuehler and her sister, Miss Alvina Stein, at New Rochelle by a speeding automobile the police made a big raid today on persons violating the speed ordinance. Chief Timmons set three traps for offenders, which resulted in thirteen of them being captured and fined sums ranging from $1 to $35 each.

Police were stationed with stopwatches and red flags. As the machines entered marked stretches they were timed, and all drivers going in excess of fifteen miles an hour were arrested. Judge Van Auken held court in the police station all day to try offenders and the building was surrounded by a large crowd of citizens, who ever since the killing of the two women have been worked up to a high state of indignation.

A fine of $100 was imposed on Leland H. Dustin, automobile agent, because he evaded the police last Thursday while running through the city at a rate of forty-five miles an hour. Dustin went to Larchmont, changed the number of his machine and his clothing so the police could not recognize him on his return trip.

One of the first cars stopped today contained Newberry Lawton, the millionaire yachtsman. Only a short time ago he entered a protest because he thought the speed laws were not being enforced in New Rochelle.

Magistrate Sees Pickpockets at Work.

Magistrate Moss told in the Tombs police court today, when thirteen pickpockets were arraigned before him, how he discovered three pickpockets working on a car early Saturday night. When the prisoners were arraigned, he looked them over and smiled.

"Are the three men here who were working on the Twenty-ninth street cars?" he asked.

There was a silence among the prisoners.

"I was going uptown to the Broadway theater last night," the magistrate went on. "At Third avenue a negro got on, and at Lexington avenue two priests. They, like myself, remained on the back platform. At Fourth avenue a well dressed man got aboard with two women, and he had no sooner done so than three smooth faced young men jumped aboard. They began jostling, and I knew what was going to happen if I didn't interfere. One of the three tried to get into the well dressed man's pocket and I called the turn on him.

"'Look here,' I said. 'You're not going to work that game if I know it.'

"The fellow looked at me in surprise and nearly collapsed. 'Guess we're on the wrong car, fellows,' said one. 'O, no, you're not,' I replied. 'You are are not going to get off until I see if the passengers have lost anything.'

"Every one began searching his pockets, and when I was assured nothing was taken I let the men go. I told them if ever they came before me there would be trouble. I did not see a policeman."

Boy Becomes Blind from Cigaret Smoking.

A pallid little messenger boy staggered into a drug store on Saturday and began groping along the cigar counter. Several clerks, on the lookout for signals of distress from all sorts of human craft that drift into the store, ran to the boy and he was conducted back into the prescription department. His eyes had a glazed appearance and he declared that he could not see. He was much frightened and thought he had been stricken blind.

He held firmly to several packages which he said he had been told to deliver in the afternoon and refused to give them up until assured they would be stowed away in a safe place. The boy said he had smoked many cigarets recently and feared they might have had something to do with the trouble.

An ambulance surgeon carried the boy out of the store in his arms and rushed him to a hospital. The boy's trouble was diagnosed as internal inactivity and cigaret smoking, and was soon relieved. Before night the boy was able to sit up. He announced he was going to cut out cigarets.

Man Puzzled Over Persecution of Wife.

Mrs. Otto Spahn of Pleasantville, Westchester county, still is being annoyed, this time by grown men as well as boys, while driving to and from the railroad station. Mr. Spahn himself is unable to account for the attitude of his fellow townsmen. He says his wife has been much broken up by the continuation of the shouts of "heehaw Maud" that greet her whenever she drives out, and is almost on the verge of nervous prostration.

She received a postal card on Tuesday which was mailed at Pleasantville, with a picture of a jackass and "Hee Haw" underneath. Mr. Spahn has employed a lawyer to assist him in the prosecution of his wife's tormentors. Seven boys, who were arrested and reprimanded on March 30 for yelling at Mrs. Spahn, have since then tipped their hats to her whenever they have met her. The case is one of deep mystery to citizens and officials.

Hospital Clerk Arrested as Army Deserter.

Robert Helfer, a messenger at Bellevue hospital, was arrested by two secret service men this afternoon and taken to Governor's island. He is said to be a deserter from Fort Leavenworth, Kas. Helfer had been employed at the hospital about six weeks. The secret service men came to the hospital ostensibly as visitors and asked to be shown about the various departments. Helfer was working in the information bureau. The secret service men engaged him in conversation and slipped handcuffs on him before he had a chance to make resistance.

Auto on a Rampage Hangs Over Cliff.

An automobile driven by W. P. Cronan of New York this afternoon at Puts Hill, Greenwich, Conn., smashed the steering gear crossing the trolley track. The car made a letter S on the highway and then dashed into the iron rail placed there to prevent people falling over a precipice. The rail was broken, but the rear wheels of the auto luckily got tangled in the iron. Mr. Cronan clung to the steering wheel, over which he was thrown. He was extricated by passing motorists. He came to New York, leaving his car by the roadside.

Riches Do Not Spell Happiness—Rockefeller Jr.

"Don't make the mistake of believing that in the possession of things there is happiness," said John D. Rockefeller Jr., to the bible class in the Fifth Avenue Baptist church today. "There is no real, permanent happiness in mere possession. Take my word for it, having wealth does not mean having happiness. If you believe so you may live to find yourself mistaken."

Mr. Rockefeller laid great stress on "take my word for it." To his class of bible students and the usual percentage of curious who add to the number of the Sunday morning gathering it seemed he almost was making a confession. Although he spoke in a raised voice, out of the even tones he always uses in biblical disquisitions, he did not seem inclined to linger on the question of wealth and happiness. He turned from the subject to the further consideration of the sin of coveting thy neighbor's goods.

"The other commandments," he declared, "are direct injunctions against the actual performance of wrong. The tenth commandment, bids us to avoid doing wrong in our thought. The thought is father to the deed, and the man who thinks evil is just as blameworthy as the man who does evil.

"Coveting is too common in this day. There is not a man who does not covet something his neighbor has. And how rife is the spirit of envy! The country boy comes to the city wearing clothes that are considered good apparel in his village, but when he sees the clothes of the city man he must have those. Instead of what he wears, and he gets them by one way or another.

"There is only one phase of covetousness we may rightly possess; that is coveting the spirit of brotherliness and the good traits of our neighbor. To secure these things it does not take away aught from the man whose virtues we covet. His store is not depleted."

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

Mlle. Robinne.

Mlle. Robinne is the newest stage sensation in France. She has taken the place Cleo de Merode, Cavalieri, and others have occupied in the hearts of Parisians.

Gadski Recital.

Like an echo of the grand opera week was the recital given in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon by Mme. Gadski—like an echo which in many respects was finer, purer, and more beautiful than the original sound itself. But few of the voices heard during the week were as excellent as is hers—none of them was superior, and few of the musical offerings were characterized by such good taste and such artistic finish. She was for many seasons one of the most admirable of the operatic stars who visited us; she now has become something higher and finer—a recitalist of excellent abilities. The beauty of her voice, the surety and accuracy of her manner of singing, and the intelligence and temperamental warmth she has come to display in her interpretation make her a concert artist whom it is ever a pleasure to hear, and admiration for whom is constantly deepened with each rehearing.

The gifted soprano was in the best of voice yesterday and in the most gracious of moods. She seemed to feel that the audience which comfortably filled Orchestra hall was completely in sympathy with her and that it appreciated and enjoyed all that she offered. She gave her ablest talents, and gave generously. The program opened with the "Hear Ye, Israel," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," and the noble aria was sung with a vocal purity and accuracy, a dignity of style, and a sincerity of feeling which made it one of the most gratifying and uplifting performances of the afternoon. Schumann's "The Lotus Flower," sung with rare appreciation of its dreamy, ecstatic character, Brahms' "Lullaby," the second stanza of which had to be repeated; Franz's elusive "Good Night," beautifully interpreted, and the same master's "Welcome My Wood" formed the first group on the program. The audience demanded more, and was accorded Schubert's "Erlking," which, barring a hurrying of the tempo, was effectively given.

The second division of the program brought Aylward's "Beloved, It Is Morn," Reger's simple, quiet "Prayer of a Child," Strauss' "All Souls' Days," which was interpreted in truly masterly manner and formed another high point in the afternoon's achievement; Ansorge's "Forest Joy," which had to be repeated; Mr. La Forge's "I Stood in Dreams" and "Retreat"—the latter written in the Tschaikowsky manner and a song of worth—and Bohm's "Thine Only." The encore to this group was Mrs. Beach's "The Year's at the Spring," sung three times in succession—something too much of a vernal equinox, perhaps, but it gave pleasure to the audience and apparently to the singer also. The third section of the concert was devoted to an excerpt from "Tristan and Isolde"—Isolde's recital to Brangäne of the meeting with Tristan. It was given with admirable understanding, excellent tonal quality, and effective dramatic intensity by Mme. Gadski, but its adaptability for recital use is open to question. Returning, the singer sang the Wagner "Lullaby"—was it to demonstrate that music drama need not damage vocal organs?—and then added the "Ho-Yo-To-Ho" from "Walkure," which a San Francisco writer described in a review as "a sort of yodel." This also was sung twice.

Frank La Forge was the accompanist and solo pianist and again demonstrated his thorough capability in both capacities. He played all save three of the accompaniments from memory and was so wholly in sympathy with Mme. Gadski's every intent and wish that the performance took on a harmony and completeness that are all too rare on the recital platform. Technically and tonally his playing is of uncommon beauty and his understanding of what constitutes a good accompaniment makes his work in this important field exceptional. As solos he gave the Brahms B minor Rhapsody and an Albumblatt and a Gavotte of his own composing. The Rhapsody was read with good understanding of its musical content, and the two original compositions proved skillfully made and effective.

At the theaters last evening all was quiet, there being no openings at any of the downtown houses, save the Great Northern, where the Rays appeared in their musical comedy, "Down the Pike." Most of the other houses were dark, the attractions at present there not giving performances on Sunday. "The County Chairman" began its second week at McVicker's, Digby Bell in "The Education of Mr. Pipp" entered on the second half of his stay at the Colonial, and "The Three Graces" at the Chicago opera house, and "The Umpire" at the La Salle started on another week of their run. At the Grand tonight Mrs. Carter will be seen in a revival of "Zaza," at the Illinois Miss Nethersole will give the only performance of "Magda" she will offer during her present engagement, at Powers' Miss Robson will appear for the first time here in a new comedy entitled "Susan in Search of a Husband," at the Garrick Miss Anglin will enter on the last week of her stay, presenting "Zira," and at the Studebaker "The College Widow" will continue its prosperous run.

Miss Nethersole, who is chronically addicted to the extra matinée habit, announces that next Thursday afternoon in response to the great desire of her fellow professionals to see her in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," she will give an extra performance of the Pinero play. The public will be admitted at the usual box office prices.

W. L. HUBBARD.

William Vaughn Moody, a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago, who has won a national reputation as a poet within the last six years, will make his début as a playwright at the Garrick theater this week. Miss Margaret Anglin has decided to put aside "Zira" the latter half of this week in order to produce Mr. Moody's realistic drama of western life, "The Sabine Woman." Three performances will be given, Thursday and Friday nights and Saturday matinée.

Miss Anglin had intended to bring out the play in Boston later in her season, but, believing that Chicago would give a hearty welcome to such an addition to the impoverished list of American dramatists because of the local movement for better plays and an endowed theater, she altered her plans. This sudden decision stopped the author in the midst of preparations for a trip to Spain, and caused him to take a train from New York to Chicago. He is expected to arrive here today. Rehearsals have begun, and Miss Anglin's players are already well up in their parts. The other members of the company share the star's enthusiasm for the play, and Miss Anglin herself declares:

"I am sure that 'The Sabine Woman' will be hailed by the discriminating as a great drama. It is the kind of thing that, if written by any of the famous Scandinavian or German dramatists, would attract widespread attention."

"The Sabine Woman" is in prose—Mr. Moody's first venture into this field—and is three acts in length. The scene of the first act is a ranchhouse in Arizona. The second is placed among the mountains, and the third in a small New England town. The characters are of two contrasting types—the men of the rugged west and the overcivilized east. Miss Anglin's rôle is that of a well bred woman who is compelled to face the problems of unsettled western life.

Mr. Moody's reputation as a poet rests upon three volumes which he has published. His first work was "The Masque of Judgment," a poetic drama which appeared in 1900. This was followed by "Poems" in 1901, and by "The Fire Bringer," another poetic drama, in 1904.

He is about 35 years old, and was graduated from Harvard university in 1868.

STRIKE MAY END TODAY.

MINERS IN PITTSBURG DISTRICT EXPECTED TO RETURN.

Reports from All the Bituminous Coal Fields Show More Settled Conditions—Windber Remains in Dangerous State, and Crisis Will Be Reached Tomorrow When Companies Will Evict from Their Houses Strikers Who Refuse to Work.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 8.—It is expected that 90 per cent of the miners in the Pittsburg district who have not been working will return tomorrow, while the storm centers in other districts are growing more settled and there is every evidence that the men will return to work before many days.

There was no disorder among the strikers at Windber today and no meetings were held. The crisis, however, will be reached on Tuesday, when the coal companies will begin the eviction from the company houses of those miners who refuse to return to work.

In the Irwin field it is reported that men are returning to work gradually, and that the strike will not spread beyond three mines. The production of coal has been increasing daily, except at the Penn station mines.

The strike at the Edna plants of the Pittsburg and Baltimore Coal company at Greensburg probably will be broken tomorrow. Many of the men desire to return to work.

The funeral of the striking miner, John Wessell, who was shot on Friday night, was held today. Miners from the surrounding districts attended in great numbers. At the services the priest pleaded with the miners to refrain from violence.

Say Operators Will "Stand Pat."

Philadelphia, Pa., April 8.—Reliable information from several sources in the Scranton region is to the effect that the operators will reject the miners' arbitration proposition tomorrow and offer no counter proposition.

It also is claimed that they will under no consideration consent to the recognition and checkoff questions, because they are unalterably opposed to the closed shop, in the first case, and because the checkoff demand could not legally be granted.

The operators are expected to stand pat on their first offer—a continuation of the commission's award for three years—and take the consequences. The independent operators have notified the big companies that they are ready to follow their lead.

Ready for New York Conference.

New York, April 8.—Some of the members of the Shamokin scale committee of thirty-six, to which has been intrusted the work of conferring with the anthracite coal operators in the matter of the differences that exist between the mineworkers and their employers, returned to the city today, and tonight they informally discussed their plans. The subcommittee will meet the operators tomorrow afternoon to receive the answer to the arbitration proposition made by the men last week.

President Mitchell and his associates have taken cognisance of the report that the operators may refuse the miners' offer and present a counter proposition to the effect that o board of arbitration be appointed to ascertain if there are any new questions on which the mine owners and the men differ, and are preparing to meet such a counter proposition.

No information was obtainable today to indicate what stand the operators will take.

PEKIN BANK DEPOSITORS TAKE OUT MORE WARRANTS.

Plan to Keep Arresting Officials of the Closed Institution Until They Make Good Losses or Go to Jail.

Pekin, Ill., April 8.—Three additional warrants were sworn out by depositors of the Zeis Smith bank today for Conrad Luppen, D. C. Smith, Henry Block, Habbe Velde, and E. F. Unland. These warrants will be served tomorrow morning, with the result that the bail will be increased $15,000 in each case.

Public indignation is growing and the depositors assert they will continue to swear out warrants until the partners either produce property enough to clear up the deficit or the bond has reached a prohibitive figure.

Additional details concerning the condition of the bank place a more discouraging light on the outlook for the depositors. It is feared the Peoria banks are creditors of the failed concern to the extent of $60,000, and the trustees intimate that not less than $30,000 of the partners' private funds will be required to liquidate the claims.

FUNERAL OF EDWIN C. SWIFT.

Packer's Body Is Laid in Receiving Vault to Await Arrival of Widow from Europe.

Beverly, Mass., April 8.—[Special.]—The funeral of Edwin C. Swift of Chicago, who died early on Thursday at Quincy house, in Boston, from pneumonia, was held today at Beverly Farms. The services were conducted in St. John's church by the Rev. E. J. V. Huiginn, assisted by the Rev. DeWitt S. Clark of Salem, who married Mr. and Mrs. Swift at Sagamore. The service was the simple Episcopal service for the burial of the dead. The honorary pallbearers were fifty in number, representing the various industries with which Mr. Swift was connected. The body was taken to Forest Hills cemetery and placed in the receiving vault to await the arrival of Mrs. Swift from Europe.

BISHOP B. W. MORRIS IS DEAD.

Dies at Portland, Ore., After a Service of Fifty-nine Years in the Episcopal Church.

Portland, Ore., April 8.—Benjamin Wistar Morris, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church for the diocese of Oregon, died shortly before 12 o'clock this morning. Bishop Morris was born at Wellsborough, Pa., on May 30, 1819, and was pastor and rector of churches at Sunbury, Pa., Manayunk, Pa., and Germantown, Pa., from 1847 to 1868, when he was consecrated missionary bishop of Oregon and Washington. Later, when the diocese of Oregon was established, he became its bishop. He is said to have been the oldest bishop in the United States.

OBITUARY.

MISS MARGARET O'BRIEN, 56 years old, who for fifteen years had been connected with the Chicago police department, as matron at various stations, died yesterday morning at her home, 714 Sixty-sixth street, after a long illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the Church of the Holy Cross to Monut Olivet cemetery. Before her illness Miss O'Brien was stationed at the Woodlawn police station.

W. W. MILLER, secretary of the Ohio state board of agriculture, died at his home at Castalia, O., yesterday of apoplexy.

HADLEY'S CASE NOT SERIOUS.

Physician Attending Missouri's Attorney General Says He Has Attack of Pleurisy.

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.—Dr. W. A. Clark, who is attending Attorney General Hadley, after a consultation today with two Kansas City physicians, made the following announcement regarding Mr. Hadley's condition:

"After a thorough examination today we all agreed that Mr. Hadley simply had an attack of pleurisy with effusion, which is being absorbed as rapidly as could be expected. He has not and has not had any symptoms of pneumonia, or typhoid fever, and absolutely no indications of a nervous breakdown from overwork.

"While it may be some time before the fever which is incident to the pleurisy is checked, yet there has been and is no question as to Mr. Hadley's complete recovery within a reasonable time."

Congressman Hamlin Renominated.

Sedalia, Mo., April 8.—Full returns from the Seventh democratic primaries assure the renomination of Congressman C. W. Hamlin.

PLANS TO OFFSET MUTUAL LETTER.

Untermyer Writes Note to London Relative to Insurance Affairs.

SCORES THE MANAGEMENT

Declares Suit Against McCurdy Was Instituted to Gain Control of Litigation.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—Samuel Untermyer, counsel of the international policy holders' committee, tonight made public a letter which he has written to Thomas H. D. Borridge, M. P., of London, relative to the Mutual Life Insurance company affairs.

In the letter, Mr. Untermyer says Charles A. Peabody universally is recognized as "the figurehead" of the Standard Oil group of financiers. He declares the management of the Mutual Life does not intend to push the suits which it has brought against ex-President Richard A. McCurdy; that the actions were instituted for the purpose of anticipating and getting control of the litigation which they knew was inevitable as the result of the recent disclosures.

This letter is intended to offset the letter written by the Mutual's general manager to London, in which he denied emphatically that the Standard Oil or any other financial group had any control over him.

Crowd Hears Insurance Talk.

Charles E. Hughes and ex-Mayor Seth Low made addresses in Carnegie hall today on the insurance investigation and its results. So many of Felix Adler's ethical culture flock and friends of the flock wanted to hear them that the hall was packed.

Mr. Low said three aspects of the situation were important, and that the incomplete and misleading bookkeeping which the insurance investigation showed was a feature upon which the public should reflect. Mr. Low said:

"In the counting house of my father, to keep books that were not complete and not honest was a most unpardonable sin. To keep books that intentionally misled was worse. When a public corporation fails to make its accounting full and accurate it fails in fundamental honesty.

"There is a popular impression in Wall street, I believe, that a trustee of a corporation is not under moral obligations; that he is a man on the inside, in a position and entitled to use his special information for his personal gain. This conception easily leads to putting personal gain above the welfare of the persons to whom the trustee is responsible, and eventually to absolute breaches of trust."

Praises Public's Moral Sense.

Mr. Hughes was introduced as a man who had performed a great public service without recourse to histrionics or claptrap, and who has reëstablished the old, clean ideals.

"The most striking result of the insurance inquiry, in my opinion," he said, "is the vindication of the sound moral sense of the public. It was public sentiment which demanded the investigation, supported the committee in trying times, and now makes the reforms imperative. The public demands that crooked paths shall be made straight. It is relentless in its demands that men who have been faithless in their trust shall be exposed and branded.

"There has come to the ordinary man in the street out of the investigation a truer sense of values. Of late the man who earns his bread by honest toil walks with a new sense of dignity, as if he has nothing to conceal, nothing to fear. Uncertainty and the rewards of dishonor stand out in bold relief. We have seen the president of a little insurance company, a man lately obscured and made insignificant by the strength and wealth of the presidents of the big companies, emerge a man among the weak. He who was lost among 'successful' associates now stands out as a truly successful man.

"Sad has been the fall of many during the last year, but powerful is the warning to the young men of the country. It turns one's attention to a career like that of Marshall Field as one worthy of emulation.

Impartial Enforcement of Law.

"There is just one way to achieve the end properly—withhold judgment until the facts are presented. Then let us have a prudent and impartial enforcement of the law. Obloquy will not do, nor will sweeping and hysterical condemnation, because the guilty then will escape punishment because of the broadness of the indictment.

"During many weeks of the investigation I found no desire, not even an implied attitude, on the part of any one with whom I was associated in my official capacity, to serve any interests except the welfare of the public. I heard no suggestion whatever from any of them except as a means of putting the insurance business on a firm basis."

Dr. Charles F. Judson, physician of Andrew C. Fields, said today:

"I have seen Mr. Fields and I have his word that he will make a statement to the press. To use his words, Mr. Fields said: 'When I am ready to make a statement I will give due notice to the gentlemen of the press so that no one will have a scoop.'"

Dr. Judson said Mr. Fields was improving, and if he has no drawbacks it will not be long before he will grant an interview.

"I realize that it will be a strenuous ordeal for him, because when he once starts to talk there will not be any letup," he said.

PITTSBURG EPIDEMIC GROWS.

More than One Hundred Cases of Typhoid Reported Within Last Twenty-four Hours.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 8.—More than 100 cases of typhoid fever have been reported in the last twenty-four hours, and the list to be reported to the bureau of health tomorrow is expected to eclipse in number any preceding day since the outbreak. The hospitals of Pittsburg and Allegheny are beginning to fill up with typhoid cases and from ten hospitals it is reported 421 cases have been admitted since last Monday.

HOLE IN STREET PAVEMENT AROUSES MILWAUKEE AVENUE

Wagons and Autos Damaged and Persons Injured by Striking Cavity Left by the Gas Company.

Several accidents which have been caused recently by a large hole in the pavement at Milwaukee avenue and Evergreen street have aroused the residents of that neighborhood to a vigorous protest against the neglect of somebody to make proper repairs. The asphalt and its bedding were torn away two months ago by the gas company for the purpose of putting in a new pipe. Since that time a hole a foot and a half deep and four feet square has remained.

I. L. Quales, a druggist, notified the company a month ago, and some cinders were poured into the cavity. During the last few days the filling has washed away, and wagon after wagon has bumped into the depression with more or less damage to the vehicles.

A bakery wagon driven by George Brunhorst struck the hole yesterday, and Brunhorst was thrown through the glass doors of the vehicle. He was severely cut. A little later an auto containing several women received a bad jolt in the same manner. A cab was smashed from the same cause.

Find Body of Missing Man.

Sioux Falls, S. D., April 8.—The body of Christopher Sven, a farmer, whose disappearance on Feb. 1 caused the arrest of twenty-four suspects, today was found in the river. It is thought that Sven walked into the river while intoxicated.

OPEN COURSE OF JOURNALISM.

Newspaper Work Added to the Curriculum of Studies at Missouri University.

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—[Special.]—The authorities of the Missouri university have decided to inaugurate a course of journalism.

Who's Who

WILLIAM MORRIS, the most distinguished artist and craftsman of the Nineteenth Century, was born in 1834, at Walthamstow, England, of Welsh-English ancestors. He was educated at Marlborough College and at Oxford. Where he formed acquaintance with Burne-Jones and other members of the "Brotherhood," who assisted him later in his industrial experiments. He was trained for the Church, but gave this up for Architecture and the "Lesser Arts."

He began to write poems and tales while at Oxford, and made himself one of the five leading English poets of the century, his poetic masterpiece being "The Story of Sigurd," the greatest modern epic. For a period of forty years he was engaged on one or another of the crafts and became a master workman in whatever he undertook.

For twenty years also he engaged militantly in social reform, as he saw that art could not be practiced successfully except in an environment of fellowship. He died in 1896, and lies buried at Kelmscott, on the upper Thames.

As a designer his work is wholly without counterpart. He made over 800 designs for wall papers, decorative fabrics, tiles, windows and the like. For beauty, suggestiveness and satisfying human quality his wall papers especially are unsurpassed.

It is a distinction of a kind that the Tobeys have the exclusive sale of the Morris fabrics in Chicago and the Central West.

HOUSING REFORM.

A recent issue of "Charities" is devoted mainly to the need of improved housing in Washington, D. C. It had been supposed that the national capital, with its broad tree lined streets, its lack of a manufacturing population, and its regular sources of income was a model residential city. In the main it is that, but its alleys make a contrary showing. Many of these have been converted from their original purpose and made into a subsidiary system of streets. Last year the police found 19,076 persons living in 286 alleys of Washington. These "alleys" are hidden inner worlds, standing often in close proximity to the chief centers of the city's wealth and culture. In their rows of shacks "little communities develop their own low standards of life."

The purpose behind the study which has been made of the housing situation in Washington is part of the plan to make that city, with its 300,000 population, a model for other American cities in its physical features. The plan is laudable. All American cities especially need stimulus and instruction respecting housing conditions for wage earners. New York has done much to meet its unique tenement problem. The dumbbell type of tenement house which came into existence there twenty-five years ago as a "prize model" has finally been forbidden in the new tenement house law of 1901, the proportion of interior lots allowed to be covered by new tenements has been reduced to 70 per cent, all rooms in new structures must be lighted, and the tenement house department organized under that law has made a record. The Boston health department has torn down some hundreds of dwellings unfit for habitation, and Philadelphia has displaced some of its slum areas by small parks.

The Washington study is a part of a new impulse which is manifest in regard to the housing question in many cities, including some of the second class. The Cleveland chamber of commerce, for example, is carrying on a careful study of the housing conditions in that city, and the effort for better dwellings for the common people is an important part of the general civic improvement movement which is taking shape among American municipalities.

A tenement house study was made in Chicago through voluntary effort half a dozen years ago, and the subject is being again inquired into here. Results thus far indicate that, while paving and sidewalk conditions have materially improved in the meantime, the bad housing conditions themselves have been aggravated rather than bettered. The Washington study will naturally receive special attention because of its connection with the national capital. This is proper. Washington should be a model city in its physical arrangements, and other American towns will welcome the establishment there of proper standards respecting such arrangements.

MAETERLINCK IN CONGRESS.

The Congressional Record is a periodical of diversified style. One of its recent issues shows markedly the influence of Maeterlinck. A small portion of a discussion in the senate illustrates this:

Mr. Hale—I see somebody has got a list here of bills "passed over without prejudice under rule VIII." They are prejudiced, because they are put in another class.
Mr. Spooner—They ought not to be.
Mr. Hale—They ought not to be.
Mr. Spooner—That is with prejudice.
Mr. Hale—That is with prejudice.
Mr. Lodge—Yes.
Mr. Hale—That puts it in another class. I do not know who did it. Nobody in the senate ever directed that it should be done.
Mr. Spooner—A bill ought to keep relatively the same position.
Mr. Hale—The same place. . . .
Mr. Lodge—There ought to be only two classes.
Mr. Hale—Two subdivisions.
Mr. Lodge—One under rule VIII, and one under rule IX.
Mr. Kean—I think most of these bills did go over without prejudice.
Mr. Lodge—Then it ought to be so stated.
Mr. Hale—Yes.

If it had been rehearsed it could not have gone off with greater smoothness. It seems almost incredible that this dialogue was not premeditated. It is so clearly in the style of Maeterlinck, in "The Blind," for instance, that it proves, if accidental, that the Belgian dramatist was not untrue to life in such passages of his plays. The simple repetition, the antiphonal nature of the alternate declamation, the absence of any such formality as addressing the chair, all make this a scene from some mysterious tragedy rather than a passage from a dull discussion in the pages of the Congressional Record.

The idea of producing in a representative assembly the effect familiar upon the stage is worth careful consideration by the statesmen at Washington. On one day Croly's Catiline might be the model for a debate upon the "Treason of the Senate." Another day it might be the turn of Shakspeare's Julius Cæsar. An address to the senate in stately blank verse would make a sensation greater than a business like talk in prose does. The theater has borrowed enough from the senate to pay back part of its debt. With the coöperation of a good stage manager the public interest in the senate would be increased to such a degree that the sign "Standing Room Only" would be a regular thing in the capitol.

With a publication of its own, in which no criticism of the performance is allowed except the words "Applause," "Loud Applause," "Loud and Continued Applause," congress would be assured that the production of each novelty would find at least one journal without an adverse word.

Being independent of box office receipts, the show could afford to put a sufficient time on rehearsal to insure a perfect performance before the public. Why stop with a fragment of Maeterlinck when Barrie, and Hoyt, and the Rogers brothers, and a thousand other models exist?

TOO MUCH COURTESY.

The council should treat the mayor with great courtesy, but it should not carry courtesy so far as to sacrifice its own dignity. A majority of the aldermen disagree with the traction policy of the mayor, and yet it is proposed in all seriousness that the mayor be allowed to select the members of the new local transportation committee and thus stuff it with his supporters.

It is argued that this is a courtesy which is due him, but nobody can give a valid reason why he should have a decisive voice in the makeup of that committee or of any committee. The subject is one which belongs exclusively to the council, and it should pay no attention to arguments that the mayor's wishes should be consulted. If the principle be established that a mayor's wishes were to be followed as regards the personnel of one important committee the next step would be to defer to them where other committees were concerned. Indeed, it is said that Mayor Dunne would like to control the finance and gas, oil, and electric light committees as well as that on local transportation.

The last named committee should represent the prevailing sentiment in the council and not the extreme views of the mayor, which are at odds with that sentiment. The majority in the council needs a committee that will conform to its policy and make recommendations that it can concur in. It should not consent to be hampered by a committee made up of doctrinaires who would keep in pigeonholes as long as they could sane and feasible propositions that might be referred to them, while they would make haste to report back with a favorable recommendation every project the mayor submitted. The minority should be allowed to have some of its best men on the committee, but it has no right to ask for the control of it.

The mayor appears to labor under the impression that he has almost exclusive charge of the traction question, and that the council has little to do with it, except to obey his instructions. This is a grave misapprehension. Each of them has something to do with the question, but the council is the predominant partner. It can get along without the concurrence of the mayor, for it can pass ordinances over his veto, but the mayor can do nothing without the assistance of the council. It can veto all his plans and he can do nothing.

The committee on local transportation should not be the mouthpiece of the mayor but of the majority in the council. It would be a gross exaggeration of the courtesy due him to permit him to select its members.

THE "FELLOW SERVANTS" BILL.

The house of representatives, by a practically unanimous vote, has passed the bill making railways liable in damages for injuries to employés caused by negligence of their fellow employés. The senate should take like action.

The rule of the common law, which the bill is intended to modify, is that an employer is responsible for injuries the negligence of his servant causes to a third person, unless the third person be a fellow servant. The exception of fellow servants was made originally upon the theory that an employé was acquainted with other employés with whom he worked, that he must be supposed to know if they were careless or incompetent, and that if they were so and he continued to work with them and got hurt by reason of their lack of care, he should be held guilty of contributory negligence and made to take the consequences.

Clearly this theory does not square with modern conditions. The brakeman or fireman on a big American railway knows few of his fellow employés, and cannot judge of their fitness for their duties. If an operator neglects to deliver an order, or the engineer, owing to overwork, goes to sleep and a wreck occurs, a brakeman is no more to blame for injuries he in consequence receives than is a passenger for injuries he receives. The common law rule is not fair now.

Damages should be given to employés under the same circumstances and for the same reasons that they are given to passengers. The unfairness of the common law rule has been recognized, and laws have been passed modifying it in several of the states as well as in England. In justice to the thousands of railway workers employed in interstate commerce the nation should follow their example.

A NEW NATIONAL AIR.

The suggestion that the United States needs a new national air with suitable words set to appropriate and singable music is not a new one, and more than once a prize has been offered for competition in this line. But the declaration of Secretary Bonaparte that in the opinion of members of the cabinet national music is a subject for legislative consideration and that congress must decide whether the country needs a new song has its interest. In all likelihood no amount of legislation would ever accomplish anything in this direction, for national songs which live are not a result of deliberate thought, but they spring into being at some special crisis in governmental affairs, or find inspiration under a stress of circumstances when stirring words, even though set to old and familiar music, so affect the popular mind that they make their way at once to a permanent place in the literature of a people.

The charge brought against the American national hymns is that they have been stolen from the songs of other nations and thus leave us open to the criticism of plagiarism and to the more humiliating accusation of lack of native ability. Or if this is not urged against a song, it is said that the airs are not easily singable because the range of voice is greater than that found in the ordinary audience desiring to join in the singing. A further attack is made against the sentiment expressed by the words, which may appear too puerile, as in the case of "Yankee Doodle," or of a temporary character, as in "Hail Columbia," or too violent, as in certain parts of "The Star Spangled Banner." All these points are fully discussed by Richard Grant White in his "National Hymns," and by Louis C. Elson in "The National Music of America."

But the fact remains that, in spite of unfavorable criticism of words and music alike, certain songs appeal to the popular fancy. Their musical setting may have been stolen, their sentences may be full of doggerel, but if they have the right jingle the people will sing them, and the fact that some of the songs survive in the face of all the deserved criticism shows that they have something of strength in them, and that legislation can never change them or stop their use. Some of the songs of the late George F. Root, for instance, would not stand the test of a professor of belles-lettres, but soldiers, sons of soldiers, and grandsons, too, will continue to sing them because of the merry melodies which set the feet in motion and make the blood run faster. A competition would probably fail to produce a song which would set aside those which have come from the spontaneous expression of the heart in some time of excitement.

In 1861 a number of Americans offered a prize of $500 for words and music of a national hymn. They received 1,200 manuscripts from various parts of the world. They filled five large waste baskets with the rejected contributions, and, after three months' faithful study, they reached the conclusion that not one of the 1,200 poets and composers had produced anything that was or could be expected to become a national song. It requires inspiration rather than legislation or the stimulus of a money prize to create a real national hymn.

THE NEOLITHIC MAN.

The body of a man who lived more than seven thousand years ago, the oldest man of whom we have any record, is now reposing in the Egyptian gallery of the British museum. He was found on the banks of the Nile in upper Egypt. It is not known just how long ago he lived, that is, to a year and a day, but his antiquity may be inferred from the statements of the antiquarians that he considerably antedates Menes, who ruled in Egypt five thousand years before Christ, so that, compared with him, Belzoni's mummy, who "walked the streets of Thebes three thousand years ago," is a modern.

This patriarch of the race was buried in a neolithic grave with his neolithic pots and kettles and the neolithic flints with which he procured subsistence carefully arranged about him. There are no inscriptions on these utensils, no epitaph on his gravestone, for he lived long before the invention of writing. This patriarch, older than the oldest mummied king, who hunted along the Nile ages before the foundation of the pyramids was laid or the mysterious sphinx began to hide its secret from man, who has been taken from his quiet grave, where he had slept these many thousand years, and transferred into the very heart of the world's bustling metropolis, was ignorant of the conditions, impulses, or incentives of modern life. He knew nothing of books, of business, of politics, or organized labor, of amusements, of society, of money. But was this neolithic man less happy than we are who know of all these things? Knowing nothing of books, he was spared much "weariness of the flesh." Knowing nothing of business, he was spared its worriment and possible bankruptcy and defalcation. Knowing nothing of politics, he knew nothing of corruption. Knowing nothing of industrial life, he was not concerned about hours, or pay, or strikes. Knowing nothing about theaters, he was not bored with bad performances nor exasperated with extortionate prices. Knowing nothing of society, he did not have to listen to its small talk, follow fashions, or ruin his digestion. Knowing nothing of money, and having no need of it, for all the world about him was his, he ought to have been ideally happy.

The apostles of gloom will say that the neolithic man was happy, much happier than we, with all our vaunted knowledge and refinement. They will say he lived when the world was fresh and in its teens and man's hand and the "tooth of time" had not marred the beauty of the new creation. The more dispassionate verdict will be that while the neolithic man escaped many of the vexations and troubles of this age, he knew nothing of its peculiar pleasures, and that if it were possible to count up his days of unalloyed happiness it would be discovered that he had no more of them than the average man of this age. The venerable relic of neolithic days had the toothache, no doubt, but no dentist to relieve it. His eyesight grew dim and he had no spectacles. There are many robbers and murderers in Chicago, but life and property are safer here than they were on the banks of the Nile in the good old prehistoric times. Then nearly every man distrusted everybody else and had to be continually on guard against unexpected, hidden foes. There cannot be much happiness where life is full of fear.

A GENEROUS Easter offering on the part of Weather Forecaster Cox will be highly appreciated next Sunday.

IT will take quick work to abate the river tunnel nuisance before next Sunday.

MAYOR DUNNE tells his audiences in other cities that "the municipal ownership question is settled in Chicago." As a matter of fact it isn't quite settled yet, but the indications are that another election would settle it effectually.

JOHN ALEXANDER MOSES announces in a voice of thunder that he will smite with his right hand and lay low. After he has made a few preliminary passes in the smiting process he may wish he had contented himself with merely "laying low."

BUT Zion City is apprehensive that it has overestimated the stiffness of its backbone.

THE tailors whose shops have been robbed lately complain of unjust discrimination. "Why," they ask, "don't the burglars tackle a millinery emporium once in a while?"

JOHN A. LINN, in his turn, has found that the way of the transgressor is substantially as described by Solomon.

UNPREJUDICED observers are inclined to think that the inhabitants of the villages on the slopes of Mount Vesuvius have no just cause of complaint. Certainly the old volcano has thrown out enough hints of its intentions, in all these hundreds of years, to have satisfied any reasonable person as to its true inwardness.

DOWIE also had a bar'l, but it was of a different kind. It was used to hold the contributions of the faithful, and Dowie had the spending of its contents.

IT is intimated that "an ex-mayor" may not indulge in his usual hunting and fishing diversions this spring. Watching the municipal ownership tangle is affording him all the amusement he needs.

IT will be just "Jocko" Briggs' luck, after he has been found not guilty of burglary and discharged, to be rearrested immediately on a charge of cruelty to animals.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1906: By the Marquise de Fontenoy

IN view of the impression which has been created that exception is taken by the Austrian emperor and by his government to the appointment of Mr. Francis as ambassador to the court of Vienna, it may be just as well to state that quite the contrary is the case. In fact, the new envoy is an old friend and former colleague of the Austrian minister of foreign affairs, Count Golouchowski, who spent a number of years at Bucharest as Austrian plenipotentiary there when Mr. Francis was American minister in Roumania. Moreover, the change will be welcomed by the Austrian government, which had been much displeased by the activity of Mrs. Bellamy Storer in Austrian politics.

In order to understand the situation at Vienna it is necessary to call attention to the fact that a liberal administration has been in office in Austria for some years, and that it has secured the enactment of laws and is committed to a program of legislation to which the old aristocracy and the church party strenuously object. Nor is the opposition confined to the clergy and to the nobility. Several members of the reigning house are openly hostile to the government, and in one case, indeed, an archducal palace became for a time to such an extent the headquarters of the foes of the administration as to excite criticism in the press and in parliament and to result in interference by the old emperor, who maintains the most strictly constitutional attitude, loyally indorsing the action of the cabinet and sanctioning legislation even when personally distasteful to him.

The American ambassadress, being an ardent Catholic and imbued with all the religious zeal of a convert, found it difficult to refrain from expressing her views pretty freely about church politics in Austria. She openly sympathized with the cause of the clergy and of the nobility in their fight against the administration. This naturally constituted a claim upon their good will, and in this way secured the favor of those leaders of the aristocracy most conspicuously identified with the opposition, as well as a footing in their salons. She became a friend of Princess Hohenberg, the morganatic consort of the heir apparent, was often a guest at the Belvedere palace, and entertained the princess at the American embassy.

Moreover, when, in deference to parliamentary criticism and to the remonstrance of the emperor, the archducal palace to which I have referred above ceased to be the rallying ground and headquarters of the clerical and nobiliary opposition, its rendezvous was transferred to the salons of the American ambassadress. While this, of course, served to endow Mrs. Bellamy Storer with a degree of popularity among the aristocracy that has never been accorded to any other ambassadress, and caused the grande monde to open its arms to her, it excited the ill will of the government, and it was not long before her interference in the domestic politics of Austria became a subject of newspaper comment.

Of course, the temptation for foreign diplomats at Vienna to pursue the course adopted by Mrs. Bellamy Storer is great. To be in the Austrian capital and to be excluded from the great world is extremely unpleasant, not to say humiliating. On the other hand, diplomatic office and official rank carry absolutely no weight in a social sense in the Kaiserstadt and confer no admission whatsoever to the salons of the old aristocracy—salons that are the most exclusive probably in the world, but most delightful when you have the entrée, owing to the complete absence there of all pose and affectation. Everybody's ancestry and status are so well known that there is no inducement whatsoever for people to pretend to be more than they really are, and, then, everybody is more or less related.

There has been no demand for the recall of Bellamy Storer by the Austrian government, such as it made not long ago for the withdrawal of the papal nuncio and of his auditor in consequence of their too indiscreet association with the political adversaries of the administration. But the latter cannot be expected to feel kindly towards Mrs. Bellamy Storer, and will welcome the suppression of her husband, though the change will be regretted by Viennese society.

Today King Leopold celebrates his seventy-first birthday, infirm as far as health is concerned, but still in the full enjoyment of that keenness of intellect which has won for him the reputation of being the cleverest and most astute man of business of old world royalty. While his private life has been beneath rather than above reproach and has contributed to rob his old age of those domestic affections and of the popular respect and veneration which he would otherwise enjoy, it cannot be denied that as a sovereign he has an immense claim upon the gratitude of his subjects, having in every way fostered the trade and industry of Belgium, thereby increasing her prosperity and her economic importance in an altogether phenomenal fashion. He has by his statecraft won for Belgium in the concert of nations a position altogether out of proportion to the smallness of her area and of her population, and has moreover, to all intents and purposes, invested her with the possession of an immense colonial empire, which differs from the transpontine dependencies of so many other powers in that it not merely pays its expenses but yields colossal profits.

Indeed, as a sovereign and from a Belgian point of view, Leopold has been an altogether admirable monarch, and it seems base ingratitude that his people should entertain so little affection for him. The fact of the matter is, however, that he is the most unlovable character that it is possible to conceive. There is no pretense of any affection between his three daughters and himself. With his brother, the late count of Flanders, his relations were strained. He held no friendship whatsoever with his wife, the late Queen Henriette, during the last ten years of her life, and only keeps up a sort of pretense of paternal regard for his nephew, the heir apparent, Prince Albert, who is his antithesis in everything.

Then, too, the king is intensely cynical, is disposed to sneer and to sniff at everything, and is charged with being devoid of a single spark of chivalry or generosity. The most incredible stories are told of his meanness and of his greed, and there has been little that is kingly in the sharpness with which he has been ready to drive a bargain in his personal business transactions. He was one of the few people who made large sums through his investments in the Panama canal, and has money in all sorts of enterprises and undertakings in this country, as well as in China, Persia, Russia, and on the Congo.

The management of his colossal private interests alone is sufficient to monopolize the attention of not one but of several clever financiers, and yet he manages everything himself, as those who have had business dealings with him can testify. With all that he finds time to fulfill his duties as monarch of Belgium and as sovereign of the Congo. His death will be a great loss to Belgium in many respects. It will, however, excite but little sorrow, and it is doubtful whether there will be a single sincere mourner at his funeral.

Apropos of King Leopold, it may be mentioned that his eldest daughter, Princess Louise, figures as at the head of the list of titled patronesses of the concert which is about to be given at Paris by Baroness Jenny Rahden, the beautiful equestrienne, who was suddenly stricken with blindness some years ago whilst doing some high school riding at the Hippodrome, and who has been dependent upon the charity of friends and sympathizers ever since.

It is perfectly right and proper that Princess Louise should do all in her power to assist a woman so overwhelmed with misfortune as the blind baroness. But it is amazing, in view of the extraordinary scandals of which the princess has been the heroine during the last few years, that ladies of the old Faubourg and of the great world at Paris should be willing to have her name figure in conjunction with theirs in the list of patronesses. It merely goes to show, what I have often said before in these letters, that a woman of royal rank can commit any indiscretion short of felony without losing social consideration.

For a Change.

"You don't mean to tell me that you have named your baby 'Ananias'?"

"Yessuh," answered Uncle Ben. "Da's his name."

"But Ananias was the most untruthful man in history."

"Dat's de reason. We's gwinter put dat boy in politics. We's been namin' children 'George Washington' foh years an' it didn't do no good. Now we's gwinter try de other feller."—Washington Star.

LITERATURE

One of the most entertaining and valuable popular books on philosophy and modern science is "EVOLUTION THE MASTER KEY" (Harper & Bros.), by C. W. Saleeby, M. D., Edin. The book is entertaining because of its lucid style, and its avoidance of technical terms and abstruse phraseology. It is valuable because it is thoroughly up to date, giving a clear and succinct outline of philosophy—particularly the synthetic philosophy of Herbert Spencer—in its relations to the latest discoveries in science, including the marvelous properties of radium and radio activity.

In brief and in sum the work is a vindication of the evolutionary philosophy of Herbert Spencer in which the learned physician endeavors to show that it has stood, and probably will forever withstand, the tests of time. The essential statement of this philosophy may be expressed in an uncritical fashion by the old saying that "nothing is constant but change." There may seem to be exceptions. Some men may believe that "the British empire, or the solar system, or the supremacy of Shakspeare or Beethoven will last forever." But it is said that when some one assured Herbert Spencer that the synthetic philosophy would endure throughout all coming time he replied: "Shall my words be the only things in the universe that do not evolve?"

The author makes it clear that the so-called Darwinian theory is only one part of the universal scheme of evolution which embraces all that exists, from the atom to the siderial systems. "The popular use of the term evolution," he says, "to signify the notion that man is descended from a monkey, is little less than an abuse of the term." Further along he says: "The laws by which phenomena change Spencer founded upon a rock, indeed—the doctrine of the conservation of energy—and it is of not a little interest that the element radium, which was for a little while supposed to invalidate this law, has turned out to be a perfect demonstration of evolution in a realm where none but the thoroughgoing Spencerian had thought to find it."

The distinguishing mark of the philosophic temper, according to Dr. Saleeby, is the love of truth, which he declares is the rarest of virtues. Among other proofs that the love of truth is not common property he gives the following:

It is the almost incomprehensible fact that there exist today a whole host of parents who do not believe in the historical accuracy of Adam and Eve, and who repudiate the doctrine of eternal torment, the most immeasurably horrible and inhuman of all human conceptions, and yet consciously permit their children to be taught and to believe in the literal truth of that Babylonian legend and of a dogma which conceives of deity as the devil himself.

The one chapter in Spencer's First Principles, Dr. Saleeby says, which has not withstood the test of the forty most rigorous years in the intellectual life of mankind is that entitled "The Indestructibility of Matter."

"Of course the law of the conservation of matter still holds for the ordinary purposes of the chemist," he says. "If you weigh and then burn a candle in suitable conditions, you can show that nothing was lost in the process—the resultant gases contain all that was in the candle," but "if, as is already abundantly proved, matter is but a transition stage in the evolution of something else, we can plainly no longer speak of its conservation." This constant changing of the ultimate components of matter he regards as still further confirmation of the universality of evolution.

Within the last few years—since the discovery of radium—the leading scientists of the world, including the illustrious Lord Kelvin, have been forced to the conclusion that matter is not indestructible. The disintegration of the radium atom is held to be proved. Atoms have been dissolved into electrons, so small that the distances between them "are relatively as great as those between the planets of the solar system." In size they are to the atom as a period on a printed page to the Masonic temple. True they possess mass and inertia, but modern scientists contend that mass and inertia are properties of electricity—in short, that all matter is an electric phenomenon. The electron, they contend, is really no more than a transient expression of relation. All of which may be conclusively clear to men of science, but the ordinary layman still will be unable to conceive abstract relation; he cannot understand relation except as the expression of the kinship, attitude, or position of one thing to another thing. In other words the ordinary mind is so constituted that it cannot conceive of relation without conceiving of things related; therefore, to such a mind, the dictum of the scientists to the contrary notwithstanding, the destructibility of matter still is inconceivable.

Dr. Saleeby's book is well worthy of the attention of those who desire to acquire a clear grasp of the view of the universe as entertained by the world's greatest thinkers in the light of the latest discoveries in the realm of science.

With a sure hand and a conscious power Mr. Vincent Brown has written "THE SACRED CUP" (G. P. Putnam's Sons). The story of the struggle in the heart of each of the principal characters between the call of duty, response to which would occasion tumult and dishonor, and a placid, a palliating acceptance of the state of affairs. The most doubtful character, when confronted with his sin, does not shirk his responsibility. There is nothing that offends; with delicacy, sincerity, and all embracing charity the story is told—the story of the rector of "a starvation parish," who finds it necessary to shelter a fatherless child for its mother's sake. Apparently time brings no light, until the minister, obedient to the demand of his conscience, refuses the "sacred cup" to a communicant, a prospective groom.

"THE COLONEL'S DREAM" is the title of the latest book by Charles W. Chestnutt, whose stories of southern life are usually most successful, both in portrayal of southern manners and customs and in the art of story making. In this last particular, however, this novel fails. A southern man, whose mature years have been spent in the north, returns to his boyhood home, surprised to find changed conditions, or, as it may be, his own changed point of view. The striking contradictions of certain phases of southern life today are well presented, but there is no suggested solution of these or of the more human interests of the story. A promising love affair, a reminiscence of the colonel's youth, is lamely turned aside at the last; the colonel practically washes his hands of the whole situation and returns north to wed a widow whose name has been mentioned in the first chapter of the book. If this final impression of incompleteness is the one Mr. Chesnutt wished to convey, he should at any rate have made his intention more clear to the reader. (Doubleday Page & Co.)

In the "SONNETS AND SONGS" of Helen Hay Whitney, one has only to turn to the first number to discover the chief fault of modern verse. The mind starts down as many different avenues of thought as there are lines. It is strange that the simple rules of unity and coherence, so obviously necessary to a larger work, should not be just as obviously insisted upon in the imagery of a short verse. If it is the old story of a struggle for rhymes, a struggle in which even Rossetti sometimes went under, then would it not be better to discard the sonnet for a less arbitrary form? But it is not, we suspect, so much a matter either of arbitrariness of form or of simplicity of theme as it is of the exceedingly "mixed metaphor" of the nineteenth century mind. It seems hardly possible for one to think in purely poetical, unreasoning fashion, in the unanalytical, beauty loving fashion of Omar or Keats without the intrusion of the psychological quirks and turns of a Henry James. In other words, one would eat one's cake and have it, too. One may enjoy the rose, but one must watch and keep a close report of oneself at the same time.

And, saying so much in a general way, one has said the worst that can be said of Mrs. Whitney's work. If it suffer with the general tendency of the age, there is in it, nevertheless, much that is above the age. Especially in these sonnets is there an unusual sincerity and depth of feeling. "After Rain" is one of the simplest and most perfect of the sonnets. The songs are pleasing in melody and rhythm. (Harper & Bros.)

A TRIP TO EUROPE IN AN ARM CHAIR

BY CORA ROCHE HOWLAND.

YESTERDAY was Palm Sunday and we spent the day joining religious Neapolitans at their devotions. There was an interesting rite, incident to the season, which we saw on our way to Santa Trinita Maggiore, where we attended morning service. Across the street in front of us, suspended from the upper windows by a wire, was a curious little figure, in which were stuck two feathers, one black, one white. While we were looking at it a woman leaned out from her balcony and plucked out the shorter black feather, leaving the white one still swinging in the breeze.

"What is that for?" we asked our driver. With melodious speech and lively gestures he explained the figurine was hung up there when Lent began, but that it had at that time seven feathers in it, one white and six black. It was meant, he said, to show to passersby that the people in the house have had no dispensation whatsoever in the fulfillment of their Lenten obligations. Every Sunday since it was placed up there one black feather had been pulled out, and next week, on Easter day, the white one also will be extracted before the figure is filled with explosives and blown to pieces.

Today we again engage a cab by the hour and drive about a little to get a few more glimpses of this quaint and dirty city we are in. We want to study the people as they are under the stress of the great excitement which is filling Naples over the eruption of Vesuvius. All night the streets were thronged with people who watched with superstitious awe the column of fire that rose fully 1,000 feet in height and the great masses of molten lava that leaped up in the air and fell heavily to earth again, carrying destruction with them. The fact which excites the people most, however, is that the mountain is "sweating fire"—to use an expression of an Italian scientist—that is, opening up new craters which discharge burning streams of lava that surround and ruin neighboring villages on the mountain's slope.

As we stand within the flowery walls of Naples and look upon the mountain's fiery crest we realize the appropriateness of Goethe's words, "Vesuvius is a peak of hell rising out of paradise." For all of the volcano's lower slopes are fertile vineyards, where is grown that famous wine of ashes, the Lacrima Christi. And just above are hardened lava streams, contorted like lizards and crocodiles in agony.

NEAPOLITAN COSTUMES.

Today the agitation is great in Naples. There is so much uncertainty about the mountain; nobody knows what it will do. The air is filled with tiny particles of sand and ashes. Special prayers are being offered in the churches for the safety of those in danger, and Cardinal Joseph Prisco, archbishop of Naples, whose birthplace is Bosco Reale, one of the threatened towns, is planning to go to the endangered villages to try what he can do. The people are asking, with awe and veneration: "Will he excommunicate the mountain?" Every one is in the streets and every one is talking. Their greatest reassurance lies in the fact that the statue of St. Ann has been taken to the mountain side to confront the burning lava tide. We have some difficulty in persuading the cabman to leave his gossip and take us about the city. We try to pick out a horse that does not look as if it might fall down and die at any moment. There is small chance for choice in this regard, so we compromise with our sensibilities by selecting the one that has the brightest pompon on it, the gaudiest little flag beside its ear, the shiniest metals on its trappings. Here's just the nag; he has upon his harness a tiny horn and crescent, which serve as amulets to ward off the evil eye, and also a figure of the Madonna and of a saint whose official duty it is to be kind to animals.

We can hardly make our way through the streets, so thick are the crowds of people. We get mixed up with a herd of goats, a peripatetic dairy, driven through the streets by a lean caprajo, who does not forget business in the emotion of the hour. Our halt among his living milk cans gives us a chance to see how he manages his trade. He milks the goats in the street, filling little pails that are let down to him and pulled up again by strings that are manipulated from the upper stories of the houses. Now he is leaving his herd in the street to care for themselves while he takes one of their number upstairs with him to satisfy the demand of a customer who has yelled her orders down to him from a third story window.

He is not the only one who tends to business while others rave. A peddler, driving a mule that has upon its back two great panniers which are filled with fruit and vegetables, shouts his way along the street. A penny for this, a penny for that; he offers a whole meal for a family for less than 5 soldi.

This nonchalance in regard to the bad temper of Naples' troublesome volcanic neighbor, on the part of one who knows the nature of the crater, reassures us to the extent that we decide to carry out our scheduled plan and visit Pompeii. There may be danger in the expedition, but we'll take the risk. Certainly the threatening mountain will add a touch of local color to the aspect of the dead old city. The "Last Days of Pompeii" will become real to us in a way it could not under other circumstances.

On our way to the railway station we manage to take in a circuitous drive through a poorer quarter of the city where the streets are wide enough to allow a cab to pass. Although much of old Naples was torn down after the cholera epidemic in 1884, and has been rebuilt in the years since with improved houses and widened streets, there still are neighborhoods where people live in windowless rooms just off the street, which serve them as shops by day and living rooms by night. In no American slum can we find the counterpart of certain noisome holes which poverty utilizes for human habitations.

Our drive to Pompeii is an interesting one. Everywhere are evidences of the excitement of the people. Groups in the high roads stand looking toward the mountain. In one suburb, where long strings of macaroni are spread on wooden frames to dry, all the populace are in the streets. The roads are filled with refugees of the mountain villages. Carabinieri pass them, going toward the mountain.

Pompeii, city of the dead, lies silent, sleeping, undisturbed by all the agitation of its neighborhood. In one way it reminds the visitors of the mummies that one sees in museums; it is a dead thing which has been disentombed and put on exhibition for the curious to stare at. The ordinary tourist does no step into the past in coming here. He comes because it is written in the guide-book that the place is worth a visit; and when once here he does not for a moment forget the present. Today, of course, he would not come at all. Torre Annunziata, one of the imperiled towns, is but half a mile away. To others, however, who know more about the city's story, it is impossible to visit its silent streets without a new awakening of the intellect. As you traverse its deserted ways, whose paving stones show ruts of wagons and prints of horses' hoofs, you cannot but feel the majesty of a history whose eloquence resounds unendingly throughout the walls of time. Yesterday and today, how close they are, especially with old Vesuvius spitting fire and brimstone at the sky above. And we, who come from a distant continent, how near we feel to all this civilization of the past.

It belongs to us, indeed, as not ungrateful heirs of all the ages, just as the poetry of the world does, the art, and the great thoughts of all who went before us. Had destiny decided that we, as individuals, never should come hither, to hearken to the voices of unremembered days, to see Vesuvius threatening there gigantically against the vaulted sky, we would have lost a portion of our birthright. For this is what it means to travel through ancient countries of the earth; we come into our own peculiarly, as children of today.

The houses marked down on our map of Pompeii have pleasant names, which they have gained because of treasures which they held when found. There is the "House of the Wounded Adonis," "the House of the Labyrinth"—so called because a mosaic of Theseus and the Minotaur was found in it; there are the "House of the Little Fountain," "The House of the Faun," "The House of the Tragic Poet." The furnishings of these old, euphoniously designated houses we saw in Naples yesterday, in the different rooms of the museum. There are temples, too, which should be visited, the theater upon the hill, and the famous forum, never finished, where one can get the finest views from Pompeii of the mighty mountain which ever, even in comparatively peaceful mood, flames its defiance at the sun and stars of heaven.

We must observe, before we leave this buried city, that it is, so archeologists claim, the best source from which to learn what the domestic life of the Romans really was. Briefly sketched, its history is as follows: Originally settled by the Oscians, and thoroughly imbued with the civilization of classic Greece later, in 82 B. C. it fell into Roman hands and became so Romanized by its conquerors that by the time of its final destruction, in 63 A. D., it had been rebuilt in Roman style. The final catastrophe, wherein the city was buried under successive layers of ashes, red hot pumice, and ashes again, did not take place until August, 79 A. D.

So deeply was the city covered by Vesuvius that during the middle ages the place was practically forgotten, its site being a historic mystery, which no one had either the wish or enterprise to solve. Excavations here were not begun until 1748, when the attention of Charles III., who had been more than interested by the recent discoveries in Herculaneum, was called to this other buried city of treasure by a peasant who discovered paintings and sculptures here when digging a well. From that day to this the work of unearthing the city has gone on. The Italian government makes an annual appropriation for the purpose.

We turn to leave the somber, lonely place. Our feet may be the last that tread these streets. Who knows? And as we go a poem comes to our mind, which, like the sentimental tourists that we are, we quote:

The silence there was what most haunted me.
Long speechless streets, whose stepping stones invite Feet which shall never come; to left and right
Gay colonnades and courts; beyond, the sea,
Heartless, of that forgetful Pagan sea;
On roofless homes and waiting streets, the light
Lies with a pathos sorrowfuller than night.

JEWS PERSECUTED FOR JUDAS' KISS

Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, in Sermon, Analyzes Gospel Story of Passion Week.

CALLS BETRAYAL RIDDLE.

Says Narration Is Badly Confused and Engenders Hatred of Hebrews.

To the New Testament story of the fatal kiss of Judas with which he is represented as betraying Christ, Dr. Emil G. Hirsch yesterday ascribed much of the persecution of the Jewish people. This act of betrayal, in connection with the remaining statements that the Jews were responsible for the crucifixion of Jesus, Dr. Hirsch said, had poisoned the minds of the western races against the Hebrews.

The speaker was preaching in Sinai temple on "The Story of Passion Week in the Light of Jewish History and Literature." All the stories in the gospels purporting to give the life and death of Christ, he said, were filled with evidence of their non-Jewish origin. They were written, he pointed out, at third or fourth hand, by persons ignorant of Jewish customs, and the intent was to present matter which should appear to fulfill Old Testament prophecy.

"Not in a spirit of defiance but for the purpose of defense," Dr. Hirsch said, "it is proposed to analyze the incidents of the passion week as recorded in the gospels. No chapters have brought upon the Jews greater woe than those on which rest the deepest mysteries of the Christian faith. Easter, which might be the glad festival of humanity risen to greater love, often has flooded the ghetto with blood.

Christ's Teachings Wholly Jewish.

"We have no quarrel with Jesus' life or his teachings. He lived the high and noble life that every true Jew loyal to the teachings of Judaism ought to live. He taught no other life than that which was the hope and light of the synagogue."

Dr. Hirsch then passed on to a criticism of the narrations in the New Testament. The scene presenting the entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem, he said, "reveals a striking confusion of the festival of the tabernacles with the ceremony of welcome."

"Jesus is greeted with the cry, 'Hosannah in the highest,'" the speaker went on. "'Hosannah in the highest' looks suspiciously like a mistranslation of the Hebrew phrase, 'Hosannah Rabba,' the name of the seventh day of the festival of booths. The evidence is strong that the entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem did not take place in the manner here given, the late authors confounding the fall festival with the Easter ritual.

"The people welcomed Jesus to the city with exuberant joy if we may credit the gospels. They loved him, they listened to him.

Judas' Kiss Unintelligible.

"That Judas Iscariot had to kiss him to point him out to the soldiers becomes simply unintelligible on the assumption that Jesus entered the city in state, taught publicly in the temple, drove out the money changers therefrom, and was so popular that the priests had to fear lest his arrest should lead to revolt and riot. But this Judas' kiss has done more to bring hatred upon the Jew than any other factor.

"The motive of Judas is most perplexing. The Jewish scholar detects an attempt to introduce into the life of Jesus Old Testament details. Joseph is sold by his brothers. According to rabbinical poetry Moses died receiving a kiss. The death of Jesus is preceded by a kiss. Judas is a psychological riddle. There is in the gospels and in Jewish literature no warrant for the rôle he played.

"Yet the Jew now living is made to be a counterpart to this Judas. Children's minds are poisoned in the schools with the story that of all mean and sordid traitors none was blacker than this Jew, and forthwith the presumption is created that every Jew is a Judas, selling the best of his friends for filthy lucre.

Discrepancies in the Trial.

"The trial of Jesus and the crucifixion conflict with every principle of Jewish criminal law. Pilate, according to Josephus, more than once gave to his soldiers the command to cut the mob to pieces for resisting to his wishes. The Jews did not crucify Jesus. Let the Romans be held to account for the death of Jesus, not the Jews.

"Even Christian scholars look upon the story of the resurrection as mythological. Jews believed in national resurrection. We hope and pray for the rise of humanity. Jesus loved men and out of his love for his race he dreamed of the gladder days when death of soul and tears of anguish would not befall the heavily laden."

Rabbi Defends His Faith.

The first of the "free thought" lectures arranged by the Study club of the Universalist Church of the Redeemer, was delivered last night by Rabbi Jacob Jacobson of the Zion temple, on "Why I Am a Jew."

"I am a Jew," said Rabbi Jacobson, "because I was born and raised a Jew, and because I believe in the sublimity of the Jewish religion.

"The story of the betrayal and crucifixion is abominably untrue, and only serves to keep alive the prejudice against the Jew."

LONG ILLNESS CONQUERED BOY.

Bennie Lapawsky Dies of Tuberculosis After Years of Suffering and Many Operations.

After submitting to operation after operation in the hope that he might be cured of the spinal trouble which from infancy threatened his life, Bennie Lapawsky, 8 years old, died early yesterday morning at the residence of his parents, 442 Union street. Bennie was injured by a fall when he was scarcely able to walk.

He realized his trouble and begged to be taken to the hospital. He was treated at the Jewish dispensary and at several of the city hospitals, but his injuries were found to be incurable.

This did not cause Bennie to give up hope. He went to a school for crippled boys and there brightened the lives of his little playmates. Then tuberculosis developed and he was taken to his parents' home.

STRAW BONDS CAUSE LOSS

POLICE MAGISTRATES' ACCOUNTS FOUND $10,000 SHORT.

Controller McGann Investigating Quietly Preparatory to Installation of New Municipal Courts—Discovers That Many Fines Are Not Collected Because the Man Giving Security Has No Property or Palms Off False Name and Address.

All the police magistrates of the city have been under a quiet investigation by City Controller McGann, who already has brought to light a deficit in their accounts estimated at $10,000.

This shortage, which Mr. McGann says is spread evenly over the entire system, "without conspicuously hitting any one magistrate," is due to their inability or failure to collect fines from "straw," and, in many cases, fictitious bondsmen whose signatures they have accepted.

Prosecuting Attorney Howard O. Taylor has assigned four investigators to the task of running down these missing bondsmen in the hopes that the shortage in the account may be reduced and the offenders punished. The justices themselves are not held liable, except for possible censure in failing to have the bondsmen identified and their property scheduled.

Preparing for New Courts.

"What prompted the investigation," said Controller McGann last night, "was the desire to get all our accounts straightened out before the new municipal court judges come in. When that occurs there will be but one general docket, with one clerk, and the existing confusion will be done away with. For that reason we determined to go through the police accounts with the utmost care and bring them to a close.

"The unpaid fines run up into the thousands of dollars, but the bulk of them is accounted for through two channels—the fines which are worked out in the bridewell and those which are appealed. For that reason there is always more or less dragging, and the police magistrates themselves often lose track of the cases.

"This has made it possible for 'straw' bondsmen—that is, bondsmen without adequate property—to sign bonds with impunity, and even has led some men to sign fictitious names in the belief that they can disappear before detected.

Names and Addresses Fictitious.

"Over and over again we run across the name, for instance, of 'John Doe, 411 West Madison street,' and discover that no person of that name has lived there. This practice has grown to a reckless extent, and our inquiry, coming at this time, may serve to put the new municipal court officials upon their guard. The fines thus forfeited and uncollectable range from $10 to $100.

"The reason this situation has grown up is partly through a confusion in functions. It never was known which office was responsible."

GIVES JANE ADDAMS HALO

JENKIN LLOYD JONES CALLS SETTLEMENT WORKER A SAINT.

Susan B. Anthony, Lydia Maria Child, and Dorothea Dix Also Canonized by Pastor of All Souls' Independent Church—The Rev. Dr. Lambert Says Model Wife Makes the Home Her Throne—Bishop Fallows Pleased with Election Result.

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, in his sermon to his confirmation class in All Souls' Independent church yesterday, classed Jane Addams among the saints.

"The Roman Catholic church," he said, "holds no monopoly of saints. Before the Catholic church was, and outside of its pale in Christian history, there have been gentle men and strong women who have 'strung the thread of their lives with beads of love and thought.' We have but to think of John Howard giving his life for the prisoners, of Dorothea Dix growing old in the service of the insane, of Lydia Maria Child sacrificing everything in the interest of the slave, willing to leave her place among the most cultured in the city to nurse John Brown in his prison when he was under sentence to be hanged.

"And then think of her who was a few weeks ago laid to rest, mourned by the nation, honored the round world over, she who devoted her life to an unpopular cause, who in her youth was spurned, scorned, arrested, under sentence of imprisonment, all for an ideal—an ideal not yet realized. Susan B. Anthony argued well for the enfranchisement of women, but Susan B. Anthony herself was a vindication of her theory, a justification of her claim more powerful than anything she ever wrote or said.

"Think of our own Jane Addams—slekly, alone, with a little patrimony that would have enabled her to live her life comfortably, quietly, easily, among her friends—but choosing to live among the foreign born, the unlettered, the uncleanly, and perhaps the coarse, over there in Halsted street, making of an old, dilapidated, neglected, abandoned mansion the center of a group of buildings that radiate life, cheer, joy; that attract the cultured, the wealthy, the traveled—the most conspicuous glow point in the city of Chicago.

"Do not these non-Catholics deserve the halo?"

Depicts "The Model Wife."

"The Model Wife" was the subject of Dr. A. R. Lambert's sermon in South Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

"I can think of no greater menace to the well being of our republic," the minister said, "than the tendency of the times to depreciate the value of the home. That husbands spend much time that belongs to the home in other environments, such as the club, fraternal organizations, lingering over their 'cups,' etc., is indeed reprehensible; but for the housewife to turn over the care of the manse and the care of her children to domestics, in order that she may give her time and attention to social functions, club life, etc., is to undermine the foundations of our republic.

"The model wife's highest ambition is found in the effort to build her life, through the years, into the lives of her loved ones—causing these to feel after she has gone that 'she, being dead, still liveth.'"

Consciousness of the Dead.

The Rev. Dr. John Balcom Shaw, pastor of Second Presbyterian church, in a sermon on "The Relation Between the Living and the Dead," cited passages of scripture in support of his contention that persons whose earthly life is ended are aware of the doings of persons still living on earth.

His argument was based mainly on the parable of the rich man and Lazarus.

"Jesus is our authority," he said, "for believing that the dead know all about the living. His teaching is confirmed by Moses and Elijah's course on the mount of Transfiguration. They knew when Jesus started up the slopes of Hermon, and were there to meet him.

"Space can no longer be a barrier to us in the other world, and, of course, our powers of perception will be infinitely sharper than here. But if they were not, if immediate vision be denied us, the angels are continually passing from heaven to earth and back again, and why should they not be a constant source of information as to the affairs of earth?

"I believe that the citizens of heaven are always aware of what we, the citizens of earth, are doing.

Discredits Spirit Messages.

"Christ does not say there is absolutely no communication between the two worlds, but he does not deny to Dives any direct communication with his family, the inference being that if he could not communicate with them on the most vital question of life—their eternal destiny—there is no subject upon which they might need to be or are in conference.

"My own belief, after having attended seances with the greatest mind reader known to the world, is that all the phenomena can be traced to hypnotism and mind reading. In the absence of definite and provable conclusions, and in the face of all the fraud and quackery of which spiritualism has been convicted, I prefer to believe that any sensuous communication between the two worlds God has forbidden for some wise reason."

Pleased with Election Result.

In the prelude to his sermon Bishop Fallows of St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church said:

"Chicago has just shown what can be done when a united and determined effort is made for the welfare of the city. It is but an earnest of still better things that are to follow if the same unbroken front is presented for their attainment.

"We can have a city that shall be a praise in our whole country and in the world if good men and women will not grow weary in well doing. While we rejoice in what has been accomplished we must not stand still. The army that fights in intrenchments is beaten,' said Napoleon. 'Forward' must now be our war cry."

"Chicago Is Growing Better."

In Third Unitarian church the Rev. Fred Alban Weil said:

"Conditions should be such that vice could not hold up its head in this city in open defiance of law to corrupt the innocent. Chicago is growing better. It will be yet more ideal when each one of us understands that we possess something vastly more potent than wealth—in an unconscious influence. This is ours through our opportunity and ability to live rightly. Then in right living without knowing it we are molding a cleaner Chicago, not only through our own life, but through the unconscious influence we exert upon others."

The Rev. Edgar H. Libby, pastor of North Congregational church, declared that the signs of the times indicate that the world is to witness a greater religious revival than any which has occurred previously in the history of Christianity.

"All the signs of the times," he said, "portend that we are at the beginning of one of the mightiest manifestations of the power of God in saving grace which the world has ever witnessed; a movement which shall exceed Pentecost, which shall exceed the Whitfield revivals, which shall exceed the Finney revivals, which shall exceed the Moody revivals, which shall exceed all previous revivals.

"We have been passing through a period of tremendous spiritual drought. Churches have gone to sleep, and have forgotten that their chief business is to save men."

Problem of the Immigrants.

"The Religious Problems of a Great City" was the subject of the Rev. Frank G. Smith's sermon in the Warren Avenue Congregational church.

"Probably more than a million people will come to us during the year from foreign countries," he said. "More than 200,000 of them will not be able to read or write; half a million of them will bring less than $30 with them; but every one of them will have a soul; devil or angel lurks in the clay of every one of them, waiting for development.

"They will go to the great cities; they can go nowhere else. Where will those who come to Chicago go? Where would you go if you landed in a strange city with a little family, it may be, and less than $30 in your pocket? You would go to its cheapest and most squalid quarters, and so will they, and unless we pour our means and ourselves with great warm hearts of love into those quarters and take hold of them with the irresistible power and tenderness of the gospel of brotherly love the devil, instead of the angel, will come forth and stalk abroad in our city, adding to her crime and degradation. God help us to see clearly our great opportunity."

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

The members of the bridal party which is to attend Miss Elizabeth Chew, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Hamilton Chew, and Mr. Theodore Weems Forbes at their wedding April 18 have been announced. Miss Margaret Hiss of New York is to attend the bride as maid of honor and there will be four maids, Miss Jane Forbes of Baltimore and three Chicago girls, Miss Charlotte Gregory, Miss Emily Blair, and Miss Nanniie Thomaeson. Mr. Forbes will have Mr. George Crosen as best man and the ushers will be Mr. Payson Thompson and Mr. Notley Williams of Chicago and Mr. George Williams and Mr. James Bristoe of Baltimore.

The wedding will be an afternoon celebration in St. Chrysostom's church in Dearborn avenue, Bishop Anderson to perform the ceremony at 3 o'clock. A small reception will follow at the Chew residence, 23 Astor street. The bride and groom will go to Europe on their wedding journey and after Dec. 1 will be at home at 1206 North Calvert street, Baltimore.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Helen Hoyt Capp, formerly of Bloomington, Ill., to Mr. Frederic L. MacFarlane of Chicago. The wedding will take place June 6.

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt and her children returned to the White house this morning from their cruise in the waters of the West Indies. Mrs. Roosevelt is much benefited by the complete rest she has enjoyed, and looks much better for the trip. The children came home in their usual jolly mood, tanned by the southern sun and in the best of spirits at being home again. They say they have had a delightful trip. Their homecoming was much the same as that of any other pleasure seekers who have found what they went for but return to their own home glad at last to be back.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont entertained at dinner tonight complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll, now of Paris, who are on their way to their ancestral home in Maryland and are stopping in Washington en route. Among the forty guests were the Netherlands minister and Mme. Van Swinderen, the Swiss minister, Mr. Vogel; Senator and Mrs. Rayner, Col. and Mrs. Denny, Commander and Mrs. John C. Raspopoff of the Russian embassy, Mr. Smalley, Mr. Creighton Webb, Mr. Frank Mitchell, and Mr. George Hollen.

The Easter season will be launched by the Easter breakfast Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean will give at Friendship, and Friendship will be the scene of the garden fête to be given for the House of Mercy next month, which will be the most attractive charity affair of the season. There will be among other attractions a dog show, with the following to see it through: The Cuban minister, Señor Quesada; the chargé of Panama, Señor Arosemima; Capt. Archibald Butt, Capt. Gulick, Capt. William M. Wright, Col. Biddle, Mr. William Penn Creeson, Mr. John Siebert, Mr. John Wilkins, and others. The most fashionable leaders of society will have charge of the vaudeville show and various booths, and Miss Townsend and Miss Elkins will be among the young women who will ride in the miniature horse show.

The Mexican ambassador and Señora Casassus will leave Washington tomorrow and will spend holy week out of town. They leave early in May with their children for a trip abroad and will not return to Washington until next fall.

Mrs. Shaw, wife of the secretary of the treasury, has returned from a three weeks' visit in Des Moines and Chicago, and will go to New York on Thursday en route for Europe. The Misses Shaw have been studying in Paris all winter and Mrs. Shaw is going over to join them.

Mrs. Root, wife of the secretary of state, and Miss Root have gone to their home in Clinton, N. Y., for a visit of a few weeks.

Gen. and Mrs. Corbin are expected to arrive in New York April 9, and after a visit with the former's daughter, Mrs. Parsons, at Ardsley-on-Hudson, they will come to Washington for a visit.

PLEADS FOR FACTORY GIRLS.

"Everybody Works but Father," Miss Mary E. McDowell Declares in Lecture, Is Not a Joke.

Miss Mary E. McDowell of Chicago University settlement, in an address before the cooperative class of the First Congregational church, Evanston, yesterday, sought to arouse interest in a bill now before congress providing for an appropriation of $500,000 for the purpose of investigating the industrial, social, moral, educational, and physical condition of women and children workers in the United States.

"'Everybody works but father' is not a joke," she said. "Father cannot get work often because his position is occupied by a woman for reasons which we should investigate.

"We are far behind foreign countries in our appreciation of industrial and social conditions governing the lives of women. We have only one law regarding them, and that forbids their being employed in mines.

"The awakening is coming, but before we do accomplish another great American revolution we must secure the proper enlightenment and not obtain our information from sensational newspaper headlines and magazine articles."

$40,000 Fire in Port Huron, Mich.

Port Huron, Mich., April 8.—[Special.]—A $40,000 fire in Port Huron's business section occurred at an early hour this morning. The fire started in Wolfe & Rubenstein's store and destroyed it. Two other stores were badly damaged.

PLAYHOUSE WILL ESTABLISH A CHECKROOM FOR BABIES.

La Salle Theater Wants Three Nurses to Care for Little Ones While Mothers Are Enjoying the Show.

A checkroom for babies is to be established at the La Salle theater. It will be opened to the patrons of the playhouse as soon as three nurses can be selected to take charge of the room. Applicants for the position are to be told about the duties this afternoon.

The checkroom idea for babies was brought to light yesterday by an advertisement of the theater which appeared in THE TRIBUNE.

The plan is to employ the nurses to attend to the wants of the little ones while the mothers enjoy the play. By this arrangement it is believed that many women who heretofore were unable to attend the theater can do so.

BERNHARDT IN CITY FIVE HOURS

Divine Sarah Passes Through Chicago on Way to Battle Creek, Mich., Engagement.

With three sleepers, two baggage cars, a fox terrier from New Orleans, three variegated Easter chicks from Topeka, and last, but emphatically not least, the divine Sarah herself, the Bernhardt special arrived at the Central station from Kansas City shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. After a stay of five hours the train left over the Michigan Central for Battle Creek, Mich., where the company is to play "one conteenous night" in Camille this evening.

Almost before the train had stopped Mme. Bernhardt signified her readiness to enter into conversation on almost any subject.

"What about having to perform in a tent?" she was asked.

"A-a-ah!" she exclaimed, burying her head in her arms. "I only weesh we could have done it oftener! It was—what you say?—sport. So—bizarre!"

After next week's engagement in Chicago the company will proceed directly to the Pacific coast. From Seattle they will go by steamer to Dawson City, Alaska.

First Methodist Church Services.

The second and closing week of a series of noonday Lenten services at the First Methodist church will begin with a meeting at 12 o'clock noon today. The services will be in charge of the Rev. M. M. Scholle's Good Furniture.

An Upholstering Talk.

¶You must buy upholstered furniture on faith or on the reputation of the house selling it. Where there is no opportunity for an examination of springs and filling materials, you are at the mercy of the firm who makes the goods. We do our own upholstering. The combination of good wages and steady employment attracts high-class workmen to our shops, and they stay. Some of these men of ours have literally grown up with us. ¶The best of materials are given these men to work with, and they are made acquainted with the shop motto—excellence. ¶Knowing these things we offer our upholstered pieces to our public and say "these are from our own workrooms." "Nothing better can be produced in upholstered furniture." "Every piece bears our guarantee." ¶There is satisfaction in selling such goods and equal satisfaction in buying them. ¶A magnificent stock of covering materials to select from.

We do re-upholstering, and give old furniture a new lease of life. The same care for the details in the old work as in the new.

THE PAIN AND THE PERIL.

When the kidneys are sick, every sudden twist or movement sends a sharp pain coursing through the back. As the trouble gains ground, the pain strikes you first in one place then in another, until you never know when or where it will come next.

Backache, rheumatic pain, sciatica, gout and lumbago are brought on in most cases by an excess in the blood of uric acid, a dangerous poison that should be filtered off by the kidneys and expelled with the urine. Uric acid poisoning is a serious danger. It has a weakening and debilitating effect on every organ of the body. It clogs the kidneys themselves, and the urinary channels, causing distressing urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. It also crystallizes into gravel, and stones in the kidneys; it disturbs the action of the heart, liver, stomach and brain, causing headaches, dizzy spells, dimness of eyesight, nervousness, depression, languor. Colds and changes of weather make these troubles worse.

There is only one way to permanently rid the system of uric poison, and that is to cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills have been curing and are curing sick kidneys throughout the civilized world. This great specific cleanses the kidneys, relieves the congested state, and permanently strengthens them. The pills dissolve gravel or stone, and help the kidneys to filter the blood perfectly. They clean the urinary passages and regulate the passing secretion. To prove it we offer testimony of residents of this city.

"Every Picture Tells a Story."

CHICAGO TESTIMONY.

John Ross, tanner, of 231 North Ada street, says: "I am glad to add my testimony to the indorsements of Doan's Kidney Pills. My wife and I have both suffered from kidney troubles, and in my case the kidneys were not only irregularities of the kidney secretions, but also severe aches and pains in the back and down across the loins. I happened to read an advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, and determined to try them. I got a box from the store of the Public Drug Company at 150 State street and used them according to directions. The results of the treatment have convinced me that the pills are all right and do all that is claimed for them. They are the best kidney remedy I know of."

ALL CLUBS AND SOCIETIES OF CAGO UNITE FOR SUFFRAG

After Week of Unprecedented paigning Every Organizatio City, Including the Public S Teachers, Pledges Itself to Right to Have Provision in Charter Giving Them Right to Vot at All Municipal Elections.

With a massmeeting held at Hull under the auspices of the Women's Union league, a period of campaigning women's suffrage unprecedented in th nals of Chicago woman's clubdom c yesterday afternoon.

The meeting was held for the direct pose of enlisting the support of the wo women of the city. But coming at th efforts of a week of activity which has enliste efforts of those who hitherto have been sidered most conservative with regard movement, it served to give an impet the campaign which, it is thought, is to result in the securing of the municipa lot for Chicago women under the provi of the new city charter.

Speakers at the meeting urged upon hearers the necessity of concerted, organ and immediate action. Miss Mary McD of the University of Chicago settlement sided and addresses were made by Louise Kilbourne of the Teachers' fe tion, Miss Josephine Casey of the ele railway employés, Mrs. James of Colo and others. A general discussion foll the address.

Results of Week's Campaign.

The results of the week's campaign be summarized as follows:

Every woman's club of importance in C was pledged to support the effort to secure ipal franchise for women under the new cha The League of Cook County Women's Clu formed the movement.

The conservative Chicago Woman's club, never before has gone on record as favorin frage, passed a strongly worded resolution municipal suffrage.

All of the settlements' women's clubs put selves on record as demanding the ballot first time.

The Chicago South Side club and the Wes club, two other unusually conservative wo organizations, did likewise.

The Chicago public school teachers took cause.

WOMEN DEMAND TO VOTE.

ALL CLUBS AND SOCIETIES OF CHICAGO UNITE FOR SUFFRAGE.

After Week of Unprecedented Campaigning Every Organization of City, Including the Public School Teachers, Pledges Itself to Join Fight to Have Provision in New Charter Giving Them Right to Ballot at All Municipal Elections.

With a massmeeting held at Hull house under the auspices of the Women's Trade Union league, a period of campaigning for woman's suffrage unprecedented in the annals of Chicago woman's clubdom closed yesterday afternoon.

The meeting was held for the direct purpose of enlisting the support of the working women of the city. But coming at the end of a week of activity which has enlisted the efforts of those who hitherto have been considered most conservative with regard to the movement, it served to give an impetus to the campaign which, it is thought, is likely to result in the securing of the municipal ballot for Chicago women under the provisions of the new city charter.

Speakers at the meeting urged upon their hearers the necessity of concerted, organized, and immediate action. Miss Mary McDowell of the University of Chicago settlement presided and addresses were made by Miss Louise Kilbourne of the Teachers' federation, Miss Josephine Cafey of the elevated railway employés, Mrs. James of Colorado, and others. A general discussion followed the address.

Results of Week's Campaign.

The results of the week's campaign may be summarized as follows:

Every woman's club of importance in Chicago was pledged to support the effort to secure municipal franchise for women under the new charter.

The League of Cook County Women's Clubs indorsed the movement.

The conservative Chicago Woman's club, which never before has gone on record as favoring suffrage, passed a strongly worded resolution urging municipal suffrage.

All of the settlements' women's clubs put themselves on record as demanding the ballot for the first time.

The Chicago South Side club and the West End club, two other unusually conservative women's organizations, did likewise.

The Chicago public school teachers took up the cause.

Will Move on Charter Convention.

Presenting a solid front, the clubwomen, the teachers, the women of Chicago who are employed in the shops and at trades, and mothers who never before have permitted their names to be linked with any concerted reform movement, will appear before the charter convention at the proper time and demand that a plank be inserted in the charter which will give women the right to vote at all municipal elections.

Petitions also will be presented to the charter makers by all the various organizations represented in the general movement, and speeches will be made in the convention by as many prominent women as the delegates will consent to hear. From now until the final plea is made before the convention several large massmeetings will be held each week to arouse other women to action.

The women are making an organized fight for the ballot in city elections. They have cast aside the old suffrage organizations, and the former leaders, though active in this fight, are not leading it. Mrs. Ellen M. Henrotin, twice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, former president of the Chicago Woman's club and the Fortnightly, is president of the campaign committee. Miss Jane Addams, who never has been known as an out and out suffragist, is vice president, and the secretary is Miss Florence Holbrook, principal of the Forestville school.

Reasons Why Women Should Vote.

Mrs. Henrotin in the afternoon briefly outlined the reasons why women should be allowed to vote at municipal elections. She summarized the reasons as follows:

The changed powers of the municipality have made it more paternal in its relation to the residents of the city, and every question which now interests the men also interests the women.

The women are just as vitally interested in the health of the city as the men and should have just as much to say about the measures taken to protect public health, etc.

Sanitary inspection concerns women as vitally as men.

Women are as deeply interested in the transportation problem as men and will be affected as much by its solution.

As many women as men reside in the tenements and they are as much interested in tenement inspection, etc., as men.

Clean streets and alleys concern women as much as men.

It is clearly woman's right to have something to say about the laws providing for the protection of her children and also for her protection.

Women are deeply interested in the Juvenile courts, in all the courts—they are litigants as well as men.

There is scarcely any branch of city government in which women do not share equally with men.

The increased intelligence of woman and her increased interest in broader affairs.

Increased property qualifications. Chicago women are large property holders and heavy taxpayers.

The immense number of women in the industrial world make it imperative that they should have the right to assist in the framing of laws to protect them, etc.

Mrs. Henrotin declared she believed the women will be successful in their fight.

THE AMATEUR GARDENER

Flowers for the Gardening Beginner.

To make his flower garden a continual delight, the amateur should study the characteristics of the flowers he grows and see that each serves a purpose. If he loves fragrance, nicotiana affinis, with its abundant star shaped white flowers, is excellent, and a fragrant novelty which presents a striking contrast to this is nicotiana sandræ, with deep pink, almost red flowers. These above all are excellent for borders, planted in front of taller growing shrubs.

For a bed where a mass of yellow is desired, golden California poppy is useful. It must be sown where it is to bloom, as it does not transplant well. Its flowers are not adapted for cutting. For side and back fences clumps of single and double hollyhocks in mass are good. A flower which grows nearly as high as the hollyhock is rudbeckia golden glow, which produces a wealth of golden flowers good for cutting. It is a good plan to devote the space in front of one fence to dahlias and cosmos, for these are sure to please the most fastidious flower lovers. The cactus and decorative forms of the dahlia are becoming more and more popular every year. The tubers may be stored in the cellar in winter like potatoes. If there happens to be a sunny exposure in the garden, plant a few pompon chrysanthemums, which are hardy. They will give an effective display of tiny flowers in the autumn. The Drummond phlox are exceedingly pretty, low growing annuals, exceedingly showy in mass. In warm and exposed situations they last but a few weeks in bloom.

Rules for a Rose Garden.

The amateur will find it advisable instead of propagating rose plants to buy good one or two year old plants, if he wishes to add rose bushes to his garden. They may be had for low prices. The younger ones will produce fewer flowers the first year, but they will be satisfactory and in the second year will be at their best.

They should be obtained when the gardener is ready to set them out in beds, preferably in April, although they may be planted later. The beds may be of any size and form. It should be in the open, where plenty of sunlight may reach the plants. It is an advantage to have it protected from high winds, as there then will be less trouble from mildew. The soil should be rich loam, well drained.

When the plants are set out, thoroughly water them, so as to settle the soil well around the roots. Rapid growth should follow. The only further treatment necessary is to keep the soil well stirred around the plants. If the summer is dry and warm a layer of pine needles or fine manure may be put on the soil around the plants. This would make less cultivation necessary; the ground would not dry out as rapidly. For many varieties of the rose which are not entirely hardy an additional covering should be put around the plants for protection in extreme winter weather. In the spring this covering —composed of manure preferably—may be spaded into the soil and will act as a fertilizer. In covering the plants for the winter care should be taken not to allow the tops of the plants to be bent down under the weight of the protective material and the snow which may come later. Pruning should begin the middle of March, all dead wood and weakly shoots being removed. The weaker growing plants should be cut down so as to leave but four or five buds on each shoot; the stronger ones may be left much higher.

Rules for Raising China Asters.

Much difficulty often is experienced by amateurs in growing China asters successfully. Sometimes this is due to a fungus which attacks the plants when they are beginning to bud. More frequently, however, failure is due to inexperience on the part of the gardener.

It should be borne in mind by the planter that the China aster, being an annual, must not be retarded in its growth from the seedling stage to maturity. Young plants often are shocked by want of water, lack of nourishment in the soil, being planted too thickly, or having been, when planted, sickly, stunted plants, without vitality. In buying plants from a florist, only those with healthy foliage of a deep green color should be chosen. Yellow looking ones are starved and never will recover.

The plants should be set out in a well prepared bed. They should be one foot apart each way. They do not require any excessively rich soil. If the soil is of a clayey nature, little artificial fertilizer is necessary. On sandy soils a heavy coat of well rotted manure, two years old, covering the ground four inches deep, at the least, is essential. Such soils, unless enriched every year, will not be productive.

Gardeners who prefer to grow their own aster plants from seed can do so by sowing the seed in open ground, in trenches, one and a half inches deep and one foot apart. As soon as the soil has lost its soggy condition in the spring prepare the trenches, digging deeply, breaking up large lumps and raking the surface evenly. The bed must be kept moist until the seedlings appear, and when they are three to four inches high they should be thinned out one-half.

Easily Grown Bulbous Plants.

The amateur gardener should find room in his garden for gladioli and tuberoses. Several dozen of the hybrid lemoine and childsii gladioli will be valuable for cutting purposes. In any soil where corn grows well they will bloom abundantly. They do best where the soil is quite sandy. The same is true of the tuberose, the single varieties of which usually are considered the more artistic. The bulbs of the gladioli and tuberoses increase every year, thus enabling one to increase the size of his collection.

All of the lilies are grand and do well in sunny locations and rich, well drained soil. The golden banded Japanese lilies are pretty, with rich markings. Some of our own native lilies are extremely handsome, such as lilium superba and lilium canadense. The Madonna lily is one of the most beautiful of the hardy white lilies, and is good for cutting.

The poker plant is a satisfactory hardy bulbous plant, and if planted in mass gives a blaze of color for many weeks during the latter part of the season. Hybrid snap dragons are excellent for cutting as well as effective in an outdoor bed for display.

WAR AGAINST CONSUMPTION PRODUCING GOOD RESULTS.

Death Rate from This Disease in Chicago Reduced in Fifty Years from 25.7 to 11.7 Per 10,000 Population.

Encouraging results in the battle for the eradication of consumption are cited in the bulletin of the city health department for last week.

Within half a century the death rate from consumption in Chicago has been reduced from 25.7 to 11.7 per 10,000 population of the city. The last mentioned rate was for the year 1905. The average yearly death rate from consumption for the decade 1850-1865 was 25.7 and for the decade 1896-1905 it was 15.3 per 10,000 population—a decrease of 40.5 per cent.

"The present citation of these figures," the bulletin says, "should be an encouragement to the participants in the anti-tuberculosis congress now in session in this city. No more favorable field for organized effort against the disease could be desired. If these results could be achieved through general sanitary improvement only it is not too much to expect that the white plague may be entirely suppressed in this favored city by the specific agencies proposed to be employed."

Two deaths from cerebro-spinal fever were reported last week—the first since September, 1905. Five other cases are under treatment.

In view of the serious nature of this disease and to the end that the present threatened outbreak may be restricted as much as possible, the health department urges physicians "to report to the department every case of cerebro-spinal fever that may come under their care, so that a sanitary inspection may be made of the house and premises and defects be remedied."

Seventy-eight more deaths were reported than during the previous week and 148 more than in the corresponding week of 1905. The increase in the annual rate is equivalent to 13.5 and 25.3 per cent respectively. The larger part of this increase was among persons more than 60 years old. There was a marked decrease of deaths from infectious and contagious diseases.

HARPERS BOOKS

THE SPOILERS

By REX E. BEACH.

This is a story written by a strong man, of a strong man, for strong and grown up men to read. It is a tale such as is told by a man perhaps once in a lifetime—a tale of impetuous emotion, of brute strength and courage, of swift and passionate love and hate—a tale which tells itself without fine words — vigorous, forceful, mighty. There is no room for the violet conventions of society in that robust land where "Never a law of God or man runs north of Fifty-three."

The only law is the law of possession, of individual conscience, and of hunger—the hunger for gold digged out of the hills, and the blinding hunger of man for woman and for woman's love. It is a story of today, but it goes back to the root of things, and is true of all men and all real women since time began.

SPECIAL SALE OF WEBER PIANOS USED BY THE OPERA ARTISTS

The most important event in Chicago's piano trade is this Special Sale of Pianos used by the great stars of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company during the recent operatic season.

The Weber is the Piano of the Opera.

Upward of thirty Uprights and Grands were required to supply the needs of the various artists in their apartments. We have put them in perfect order and now offer them to the public at

IMPORTANT REDUCTIONS IN PRICE.

These Pianos Are Practically New in Every Respect.

The Weber is one of the very few pianos the prices of which are ABSOLUTELY STABLE. It is not possible to buy a new Weber for a dollar less than the advertised price. This "Opera Sale" is therefore an exceptional opportunity to secure a good Weber, used for only a short period, at a substantial saving.

Notwithstanding the reduced prices, the pianos have an added value in the estimation of many people by reason of their distinguished associations. Each instrument will be plainly marked with the original price and the special sale price. Included in the collection are the Weber Baby Grand which Caruso had in his apartment and the Weber Parlor Grand which Mme. Eames played so delightfully. Also the Weber Uprights used by Plancon, Scotti, Homer, Walker and other leading stars.

The usual liberal terms will be extended to all persons desiring to make purchases on the monthly payment system.
Pianos of other makes will be received in part payment.
The Lyon & Healy complete guarantee covers each instrument.

Inasmuch as these pianos were the personal choice of great artists there is an additional reason why this sale should appeal to all persons who wish to secure a really fine specimen of the craftsmanship of the celebrated Weber factories.

Because of its rich sympathetic tone-quality, the Weber has for years been the choice of great artists. AND THIS SPECIAL SALE PRESENTS AN EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY TO SECURE THE IDENTICAL INSTRUMENTS THAT THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY STARS SELECTED FOR THEIR PERSONAL USE.

WHITE SOX TRIM COLONELS 7 TO 3.

Jones' Regulars Hit Kenna for Thirteen Safeties in the Second Game.

NEW MEN STARS AT BAT.

O'Neill Bags Four, with a Total of Seven Bases, and Hemphill Three Singles.

Louisville, Ky., April 8.—[Special.]—Chicago's White Sox No. 1 scored their second victory over the Colonels today, but the game was hard fought and the American league team won only by the hardest sort of work. The final score was 7 to 3, but this in no way indicates the closeness of the contest.

The game was won in the first inning when the veterans of the local team booted the ball on almost every occasion offered. As a result the Chicago team piled up a total of four runs in this period, in spite of the fact Kenna was pitching good baseball.

Jones' men did not make a misplay nor was there an error of judgment. Besides they accumulated a total of thirteen hits off the poet pitcher's delivery, which practically accounts for the result, as the Colonels made only eight safe drives off Twirlers Walsh and Owen of the White Sox.

In the second inning Brashear hit a long drive to center, which Manager Jones pulled down after a hard run. In the fifth inning Catcher Stoner hit one almost to the center field fence, but Jones got it near the gate, as it was going over his head, after a sprint of over fifty yards.

The star play of the game, however, was made by Brashear. This occurred in the fourth inning. Isbell hit a screaming grounder between first and second. Brashear, who had started toward second, made a dash at the ball and by tremendous effort stabbed it with his left hand as it was going towards right field.

O'Neill again was the star of the game as far as batting was concerned. Out of four times up the visitor drew two singles, a double, and a triple and also made a pretty sacrific hit. He certainly has played a star game for Chicago during the two contests here. Frank Hemphill, who is also a candidate for the Chicago outfield, hit out three safeties. Score:

ROLLER SKATERS GOOD IN MUD.

White Sox No. 2 Defeat Omaha Team on Sloppy Field by Score of 12 to 1.

Omaha, Neb., April 8.—[Special.]—Although O'Rourke tried his best pitchers today, he was barely able to save Omaha from a shutout at the hands of the White Sox, No. 2. The game was played on a muddy field, between showers. Canvas had been stretched over the slab and home plate, but the rest of the field was a mud puddle. Chicago won, 12 to 1.

It was chiefly a batting match, and a total of nineteen hits for the visitors to the Omaha's seven tells the story. Several hundred fans stood out under threatening clouds and umbrellas to watch the aggregation of physical giants which constituted the Chicago team. Seldom has a team of larger average size been seen on an Omaha diamond. Besides, they punished the Omaha pitchers unmercifully.

In the fifth Pennell succeeded in putting the ball over the right field fence, driving in two men ahead of him, and in the seventh Green put it over in the same spot with two men on bases.

McNeeley started to pitch for Omaha and succeeded in holding the Sox to four hits in three innings. From this point, however, the locals were unable to withstand pressure at any point. Omaha scored in the third, when Runkle singled, was sacrificed to second, went to third on Perring's out, and scored on Gonding's double. Score:

Columbus, O., April 8.—[Special.]—Lajoie's colts walloped the American association pennant winners here today, 3 to 1, with ease. Poor base running on the part of the visitors cost them at least three runs. Lajoie, at his old position, showed he has regained his old time form, covering as much ground as ever. Rhoades, one of the veteran twirlers, pitched the last four innings and allowed one hit, a scratch at that. Score:

JOHNSON ASSIGNS UMPIRES.

Plans Practically Completed for American League Opening—Evans to Work with Sheridan at New York.

President Johnson of the American league practically completed plans yesterday for the opening of the championship season, with the assignment of umpires for the initial series.

Evans, the new man on the staff, will work with Sheridan, the veteran, for a time, and they are assigned to the New York opening. O'Loughlin will be sent to Washington. Connor and Hurst, who were taken on in midseason last year, will be partners at Detroit, where the White Stockings begin the race, and Connolly will handle the St. Louis opening alone.

Mr. Johnson plans to leave today at 5:30 p. m. for the east, stopping first in Philadelphia, where he will attend the banquet to be given by the Quaker City newspaper men to Lave Cross, former captain of the Athletics, tomorrow night. From there he plans to go to Washington for the opening game there with the Athletics on Saturday. A complete swing around the league's circuit will follow and Mr. Johnson expects to be gone from local headquarters for a month.

Ganzel Announces His Lineup.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 8.—[Special.]—John Ganzel today announced his lineup for the coming season as follows: First base, John Ganzel; second base, Morrissey; shortstop, Groeschow; third base, Havel; left field, Collins; center field, Backof; right field, Geyer; pitchers, Vas Anda, Bliss, Miller, and Graham; catchers, Hawkins and Smith. Kenedy will remain with the club as utility man. He is a good first baseman, catcher, and outfielder, and a fair sticker.

Cardinals Get Pitcher Puttmann.

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—The release of Pitcher Ambrose Puttmann of the New York American league baseball team was purchased today by the St. Louis Nationals.

At the Billiard Halls.

At Patterson's—Pierce defeated Fallon, 75 to 74. This afternoon Childs and Ridley will play at three cushions.

At Bensinger's—The 14 inch balk line tournament will begin tonight with these entries: Collins [200], Walker [185], Baggott [175], Barrett [170], Thompson [160], Howard [160], Stearns [160], Hood [160]. In the first game Walker will play Stearns.

DIAMOND GOSSIP.

Numerous changes have been made in the Philadelphia National league plant, the hanging galleries having been removed and plans put into effect to increase the seating capacity in anticipation of a better showing in the race this year.

Philadelphia fans are pleased with the work of Brouthers, the youngster secured from Montgomery to fill Cross' place at third. He is no relation to the famous Dan of the same surname.

Parent, the Boston shortstop, enjoys the distinction of never having been tossed out of a game by an umpire. His side partner, Ferris, does so much kicking that Parent wouldn't have a chance to butt in if he wanted to.

Pittsburg has sent Catcher Archer back to Atlanta. He was recalled, after having been farmed out, when Peitz was laid up in a stabbing affair. It appears Heine is expected to be all right again.

Nick Altrock posed for a photo the other day with the mascot of the New Orleans park, a monkey. It is going to be used for a puzzle picture.—"Chicago Tribune." Maybe Nick intends to make monkeys of a few batters.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. It wouldn't be his first offense.

NATIONALS FAIL TO PLAY.

SPRINGFIELD AND GRAND RAPIDS GAMES PREVENTED BY RAIN.

Manager Chance's Men Get to Park at State Capital Just in Time to Get a Drenching—Will Leave for Champaign for Contests Today and Tomorrow—Second Division Squad Departs from Michigan Town to Join First Section at Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., April 8.—[Special.]—Manager Chance will take the Chicago Nationals to Champaign tomorrow morning, where they will play on Monday and Tuesday with the University of Illinois team previous to their departure for Cincinnati, where they open the season on Thursday.

Rain prevented the game between Chicago and Springfield this afternoon. The visitors arrived at the park in time to receive a drenching and immediately returned to the hotel, where they spent the afternoon and night.

Chance believes his men are ready for the opening of the National league season, and seems confident he has a pennant winning bunch. "The two games at Champaign will round the men into the best of condition," said Chance. "The team, I believe, is composed of the best men in the league, and I am confident it will bring the pennant to Illinois this year."

Call Off Game at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 8.—[Special.]—After their baseball appetites had been whetted by an eleven inning game on Saturday between the second division of the Chicago Nationals and the local Central league club, Grand Rapids fans were obliged to go hungry today, the second and closing contest of the series being declared off on account of wet grounds caused by constant showers.

The Chicagoans departed for Champaign, Ill., tonight to join the first division. Nearly all the Nationals visited Jack Morrissey, captain of the Grand Rapids team, at a local hospital today to express their sorrow that he should meet with accident in a game with them which probably will end his playing days. An X-ray photograph of Morrissey's broken leg was taken today.

REDS DEFEAT DETROIT TEAM.

Even Up the Interleague Series by Winning Game by a Score of 8 to 6.

Cincinnati, O., April 8.—[Special.]—The reds evened up matters with the Detroit Americans at League park this afternoon by taking the second game of their interleague series, 8 to 6. By bunching hits off Overall in the third, the visitors took the lead with two runs, but were permitted to hold it for only one inning, when the score was tied by the locals, who forged to the front in the fifth. Detroit made it a tie again in the seventh. The reds' batting rally in the eighth practically ended the contest. Score:

WILLA CAPTURES SKAT PRIZE.

Wins First Honors in Final Tourney of Chicago League—Oelrich Is Second—250 Players Compete.

More than 250 players competed in the sixth and final monthly skat tournament held under the auspices of the Chicago Skat league at the Sherman house yesterday afternoon. First honors went to Fred Willa, who won with nineteen games and 618 points, after the games lost had been deducted from the total. Players from several of the neighboring states participated in the games.

The prize winners were: First, Fred Willa, 19 games, 618 points; second, A. Oelrich, 627 points; third, P. Bamberg, 17 games, 618 points; fourth, C. Kessler, spade solo against six matadores, 77 points; fifth, E. Berthold, 16 games, 602 points; Sixth, F. Schierling, spade solo with six matadores, schneider; seventh, E. Alvin, spade tourne against nine matadores, 70 points; eighth, S. Blank, 18 games, 412 points; ninth, H. Fritsche, 14 games, 564 points; tenth, H. Stuchart, diamond solo against six matadores, 63 points; eleventh, C. H. Mattmueller, 18 games, 524 points; twelfth, A. Hauke and R. H. Winter, split with 15 games and 563 points; thirteenth, A. Nolan, high game, 110 points; fourteenth, E. Wimpfheimer, spade tourne against six matadores, 40 points.

Hauke, who comes from Milwaukee, was the only out of town player to get in the prize money. The victorious players in the competition for round trip railroad tickets to the national congress to be held in Buffalo in the near future were R. C. Mahler, Max Wortsmann, Dr. A. L. Schaliack, L. Grant, J. M. Barth, and J. A. Krautsberg of Chicago.

PILLSBURY TO BE TAKEN EAST.

Chess Player, Who Is Mentally Deranged, Will Be Removed from Battle Creek to Atlantic City.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—A letter received at the Brooklyn Chess club today from William Penn Shipley of the Pennsylvania Chess association says Harry Nelson Pillsbury, the greatest chess genius since Paul Morphy's day, is to be taken from the Battle Creek sanitarium, where he has been for the last month, to a sanitarium in Atlantic City. By this change it is hoped there may be some slight improvement in Pillsbury's mental derangement, which at times amounts to violent insanity.

Physicians in Philadelphia had a consultation, at which they concluded Mr. Pillsbury's mental condition was caused by strain of that form of chess known as "blindfold," during which the player remains in a room by himself and plays the game entirely from memory, while his opponent moves for him from the table.

SOCCER ELEVENS PLAY TIE GAME.

St. Louis Team, Reinforced by Two Stars, Able to Hold Chicago Men Even.

SCORE AT FINISH 4 TO 4.

Home Aggregation Makes Good Uphill Fight in Second Half; Few Local Contests.

Reinforced by "King" Finnegan and Ammanns, the St. Louis soccer team yesterday made amends for its heavy defeat of Saturday by playing a tie game with the Chicago association football club on the Wanderers' grounds at Parkside. The score was 4 to 4.

While the vistors were stronger the home side was weaker, as S. Govier was unable to play on account of a bruised arm, and the rearrangement threw Spencer and Carragher out of their regular positions. From a Chicago standpoint the play lacked some of the brilliancy of Saturday's game, but as a well fought contest in which interest was sustained up to the final whistle it took precedence.

Defending their goal in determined fashion against the spirited attacks of the Missourians, who had a strong wind behind them, the home team twice had their goal captured in the first half. On change of ends they faced an uphill battle. Early in the second half Chicago scored its first goal only to have St. Louis make another. Nothing daunted, Chicago counted twice more and was on even terms.

Extra Period Not Suggested.

Again St. Louis went to the front, but the Chicago men once more were equal to the occasion and, putting on a little extra steam, were able to tie the score. As the majority of the players were well tuckered out an extra period was not even suggested.

The rejuvenation of St. Louis was due largely to the fine work of Finnegan, whose work in the pivotal position of the defense turned the St. Louis line into something like a combined force. His long passes to Ammanns on the outside left made that wing a much stronger factor than on Saturday. Riordan on the outside right did not have as much work to do, but was always dangerous.

Chicago's rear line of defense was kept busy and performed well, apart from two mistakes, both of which resulted in goals, and in each instance the men were hard pressed. On the front line Watt and Govier tired towards the finish, but worked hard.

St. Louis Begins Attack.

St. Louis won the toss, and took the south goal, with a heavy wind behind it. The visitors pressed at once, Riordan shooting across the goal mouth. Chicago invaded and Robinson stopped Thompson's shot. From a corner kick Riordan sent the ball through the goal, but no one touched it, and the point did not count. After ten minutes of play Riordan, from thirty-five yards out, scored a great goal, the ball grazing the under side of the bar. St. Louis scored its second goal on a long kick from midfield, Dixon, who was close pressed, missing his kick and Peltier tipping the ball through.

Two minutes after the interval Shallcross, from a narrow angle, banged the ball past Robinson for Chicago's first count. It was the opening of a busy time, for Finnegan passed away out to Ammanns, whose clever center hit the post and came to Reed, the midget tipping it through. Three minutes later Thompson transferred to Spencer, whose well placed shot just eluded the outstretched fingers of the big Missouri goal and passed under the bar.

Fierce Battle Near Finish.

Still fighting hard, the local men went down the right wing, Spencer was bowled over by Lynch, but Thompson jumped in and lobbed across the goal to Watt, Govier, and Shallcross. The last named headed through, scoring one of the prettiest plays of the match. With the score 3—all the battle waged fiercely. Finnegan sent a high shot on goal, which the wind blew back, causing Archibald to get his head in the wrong place. Little Peltier dashed by him and scored, putting the visitors again in the lead.

For ten minutes Chicago was unable to count. Then Thompson beat his way past Lynch and shot at Robinson. His clearance went only a few yards out and Thompson, quick to seize the opening, scored Chicago's fourth goal. Lineup:

St. Louis [4].		Chicago [4].
Robinson	Goal	Linley
Lynch	Left back	Dixon
Smith	Right back	Archibald
Ryan	Right half back	Williamson
Foley	Left half back	Brown
Finnegan	Center half back	Carragher

LOCAL SOCCER LEAGUE GAMES.

Hyde Park Blues and Calumet Reds Tie in Match, Which Is Finished in a Driving Rain.

Outside of the St. Louis-Chicago match local association football interest centered in the meeting of the Hyde Park blues and Calumet reds for the Peel pennant. The former's grounds were in bad shape, and the teams adjourned to Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue, where they had to wait until the match in the reserve division was over. This led to shortening the halves to thirty-five minutes. The result was a tie after a hard fought battle.

Neither side was able to score in the first half. In the middle of the second half Pellett counted for the home side. The blues rallied, and Evans evened up matters. This half was played in a driving rain. Lineup:

Calumet Reds [1].		Hyde Park Blues [1].
Myer	Goal	Wright
Murray	Right back	Heale
Darby	Left back	Rodgers
Stephenson	Right half back	Linacker
Grossman	Center half back	Barker
Harris	Left half back	Shepherd

Pellett	Center	McNichols
T. Bowman	Outside left	A. Watt

Goals—Pellett, Evans. Referee—Sharples.

The Pullman Reserves defeated the Calumet Greens in the reserve division, 3 goals to 2. The time was shortened to thirty-five minute halves to make room for the senior contest. Lineup:

Calumet Greens [2].		Pullman Reserves [3].
Grossman	Goal	Holmes
J. Darby	Right back	Sutton
M. Donnelly	Left back	Parkinson
E. Darby	Right half back	Wettingell

Goals—C. Donnelly, Harris, Smith, Erickson, Crowther. Referee—Napier.

Only one game was played in the Blue division of the league of association football, the Lake Shores defeating the Thistles by 4 goals to 1 at the foot of Indiana street. Lineup:

Lake Shores [4].		Thistles [1].
McMahon	Goal	Russell
Brennan	Right half back	E. Kelly

Referee—Sullivan. Goals—Ward, 1; Dockery, 1; Carlon, 1; Cartis, 1; Flaws, 1.

The Campbell Rovers were disappointed by the Metropolitan Rovers in the game scheduled for yesterday. The game will be played at a future date.

The Celtics proved easy victims for the South Chicagos at Bessemer park, the score being 5 to 1. The game was a fast one, notwithstanding the soft condition of the grounds. The work of the South Chicago backs was clever and balked the Celtics at nearly every turn. Lineup:

South Chicago [5].		Celtics [1].
Sulski	Goal	Coughlin
W. Clark	Right back	P. Cunningham
J. McCarthy	Right half back	McKeon
Hartman	Center half back	Buckley

Speedway for Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 8.—[Special.]—The Furniture City Driving club has appointed a committee and instructed it to purchase a strip of land 100 feet wide and half a mile long, paralleling one of the avenues of Grand Rapids, to be converted into a speedway.

RACING NEARS AN END.

REMARKABLE SEASON AT NEW ORLEANS SOON TO CLOSE.

Turf Conflict in Crescent City, Which Promised to Be Bitterest Ever Started, Will Wind Up Peacefully Next Saturday—Louisiana Jockey Club Has Final Week to Itself—City Park Finishes in a Blaze of Glory—Horses Going to Nashville.

New Orleans, La., April 8.—[Special.]—Tomorrow marks the beginning of the finish of the most remarkable racing season that ever has taken place in America. What promised at the outset to be the bitterest turf war that ever was started will end peacefully next Saturday when the flags will be taken down from the grandstand at the Fair Grounds. The Louisiana Jockey club will have one week to itself, and the old track will be the scene of an unusual activity for six days.

It has been a weary grind of money losing on both sides, but neither is complaining. The City Park club, which closed its gates yesterday, explains today that it was simply out of courtesy to the Nashville club, which is affiliated with the American Turf association, that it did not go on as long as the older organization. Horsemen and independent bookmakers who participated in both meetings hope for a continuance of these tranquil hostilities next year, but this is hardly possible.

More than 1,450 Races Run.

More than 1,450 races have been run in New Orleans since Thanksgiving day, with $400 the smallest purse. This does not include five races that have been pulled off every Sunday at the half mile track across the river. This is a record which New Orleans has either to deplore or to be proud of. As to which, it remains for the legislature to decide.

The City park season closed yesterday in the usual blaze of glory. Ed Corrigan did not participate in the festivities. He left early in the week on a business trip to the north, thereby avoiding many touching incidents. He has a clear plurality over the money getters at the new track, and his nephew, Pat Dunne, is an easy runner up. To show that there are not any hard feelings, many of the stockholders, horse owners, and bookmakers of the City Park club have planned an excursion to the old track tomorrow. The plan is to swarm on P. A. Renaud and tell him what a good fellow he has been and what a nice, clean fight he put up in face of what looked at the outset like overwhelming odds.

Profitable Week Planned.

The Louisiana Jockey club intends to make most of its clear week and has taken up all complimentary badges. For the next six days the price of admission will be $1 a head for everybody but horsemen, jockeys, and recognized turf reporters. The week's business should be profitable, as there are thousands in town still waiting for getaway money.

Most of the horses which have been engaged at City park will go to Nashville if they can get there. Some of the bookmakers will take a chance at the Fair Grounds, where it is understood they will be welcome. At the close of this week the Fair Grounds horses will line out for Memphis, and it looks as if there will be a congestion of racers at Montgomery park.

NASHVILLE MECCA OF TURFMEN.

Horsemen Arriving Daily for Meeting Which Begins Wednesday—Corrigan on Hand with Fifteen Racers.

Nashville, Tenn., April 8.—[Special.]—Horsemen from various sections are arriving daily for the spring meeting, which opens on Wednesday at Cumberland park. Ed Corrigan, with fifteen horses, got in today from City park, New Orleans. Included in the string were the Derby candidates Creel, Goldie, and Kargut, but whether or not any of these will start depends on their final trials. The horse special from City park will arrive tomorrow, and the 200 horses making up the shipment will swell the colony to 1,000 animals.

Minnie Adams, the probable favorite for the Derby, was breezed seven furlongs this morning in 1:30. She negotiated the distance handily. Kercheval, which is Minnie Adams' strongest opponent for the classic, also was out, but nothing fast was asked of him, his trainer preferring to give him his "final prep" tomorrow. These two horses are the choices for the big race, but in Debar, Hollowmas, and Orbicular they will have strong rivals, and at this time the field seems to be well balanced.

More than the usual interest is being manifested in the meeting. The new management has helped the sport considerably and unless indications miscarry this will be the most successful meeting ever seen in Nashville.

AQUEDUCT IS SOON TO OPEN.

Carter Handicap to Feature Start of Metropolitan Racing Season One Week from Today.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—The Metropolitan racing season opens at Aqueduct one week from tomorrow with the $10,000 Carter handicap at seven furlongs the chief attraction. From a formidable list of entries a field of twenty or less will go to the post.

Roseben, which has 129 pounds, is an improbable starter, however, unless Dave Johnson, his owner, changes his mind at the last moment. The big horse has not shown the required quality in his workouts and today it was reported he would be pointed for the Metropolitan. It looks, therefore, as if August Belmont's Lord of the Vale, with 120 pounds, would be the actual top weight. This horse is in great shape just now, and John Whalen, who has prepared him for the Carter, thinks it will be an easy victory for him.

Ram's Horn may go, but there is nothing definite yet about him. Alex Shields doubtless will start Ormonde's Right and the Albemarle stable is sure to be represented either by Santa Catalina or Bohemia, both good mares. Whimsical is in high favor and will be heavily backed if he goes and the track is fast. Race King at 100 pounds is not to be overlooked, and Disobedient, Ben Hodder, and Workman, which have been racing at the winter tracks, are also to be reckoned with.

TOURNEY OF I. B. A. OPENS ON MAY 12.

Plans for State Bowling Games Completed—Event to Run for Two Weeks.

LOCAL ROLLERS IN FORM.

League Contests Result in Good Work; Blue Islands Still Lead in the Monroe.

The executive committee of the Illinois Bowling association met yesterday and completed plans for the state tournament. Two weeks have been allotted for the purpose, beginning May 12 and winding up May 26, or sooner if possible. It was decided to play the tournament on eight alleys abreast and blank forms for bids will be mailed local alley keepers.

Entries will close on May 3 and the public drawing for places will occur three days later. As in former years all the league champion teams and individuals will be allowed to enter free, extra entries paying at the rate of $2 a man. Out of town teams will be allowed to choose their own hours to bowl.

Those in attendance at the meeting were Chairman F. L. Pasdeloup, Secretary Howard, W. V. Thompson, Charles Wilson, M. Benzen of Joliet, George Randall of Aurora, and George Needham of Rockford.

Bowlers Do Good Work.

The bowlers settled back into regular league play after their two weeks lay off at Louisville last week, some fine playing resulting from their efforts. In the Monroe league the Blue Islands still retain their commanding lead, with the Hofmanns second, six games behind. The individual contest has tightened up considerably with three men above 200, Wolf topping the league, a shade less than a point ahead of Dave Woodbury, with Vollmar third.

The Howards are safely intrenched in the lead in the Chicago league, five games ahead of the Brunswicks, the Hofmanns and First Nationals trailing one and two games behind Gruver's men. Four men have records above 200, Frank Bartsch of the Howards being on top with Frank Brill, Dave Woodbury, and Phil Wolf all within striking distance.

Columbian Knights in Lead.

In the Coöperative league the Columbian Knights have a two game advantage on the Pinzons, their nearest competitors, with the Gunthers third. Harry Klene leads the individuals, with Oscar Schmidt second, and Harry Steers third.

The Gunthers are first in the Lake View league, with Birk Bros. second. Ernest Peterson has a two point lead over Ernie Schneider in the individual contest.

The West End and Northwest leagues close their schedules this week. The standing of the leagues and the leading individuals follow:

NEW RECORD BY DRUMMERS.

Averaging 1024 2-3, with 1,079 as high game, the Drummers set a new record for the Business league. Richards was the individual star, with an average of 236, while Walton had 230. The Garibaldis were easy victims, dropping the three games. In the other series the Clerics won the odd game from the Commissions. Scores:

STOCK PRICES STAND FIRM

ADVANCE IN MONEY RATES HAS LITTLE EFFECT.

Manifest That Securities Are Held by People Who Can Carry Them—Bank Statement Deficit Results in Only Small Decline—Chicago Edison Bought Freely, but Other Local Public Service Shares Continue Weak.

Market conditions were given a new turn in the week just closed when call rates ran up to 30 per cent. Such an advance was altogether unexpected, but the market acted as it has done continuously under adverse conditions. It sold off slightly, but nothing like a break was recorded.

As long as general business conditions continue good and there is no loss in crops, the stock market seems destined to be impregnable. It has within the last year withstood every ordinary shock, and it is manifest that securities are held by people who can carry them. There is no reason for selling since the investment return is good and there is nothing better to be bought. Only when conditions suggest a widespread shrinkage in values whereby it would be possible to save large losses by selling at ruling prices and getting investments back at much lower ones, will there be a motive for large holders to dispose of securities. That condition is not in sight, so the market may be expected to go through moderate fluctuations, being bulled and beared occasionally by the large speculative crowds.

Bank Statement Deficits.

Contrary to expectation the surplus reserve of the New York Associated banks was permitted to be wiped out in Saturday's statement, and the item became a deficit to the extent of $2,710,625. Following the appearance of the figures, the stock market sold off slightly, and then had a small upturn at the close. The course of quotations merely afforded another illustration of the underlying strength in the market. Just why the usual method of saving the reserve was not taken, does not appear, except that the cash loss was so heavy, it would have required a reduction of $30,000,000 in deposits to overcome the decrease.

The last previous deficit shown was on Dec. 9, 1905, the figures then being $1,246,500. The following Monday call rates advanced to 27 per cent. In the next two weeks they were between 15 and 16 per cent, and on Dec. 28 touched 125 per cent. This deficit followed one on Nov. 11, 1905, of $2,428,800. On that occasion, money touched 25 per cent, but such a large amount of outside funds was attracted that the price within a week broke to 4 per cent. The other deficits in recent years were on Sept. 20, 1902, when the loss was $1,642,050. Money ranged for a time from 20 to 35 per cent. On Nov. 11, 1899, there was a deficit of $2,788,950. On this occasion the call rate touched 186 per cent. In the case of each of the four deficits preceding that one shown Saturday, the loss was made up in the statement next following.

The cash loss in the figures of last Saturday was $7,904,200. Deposits decreased but $839,200, so that the loss in cash differed but little from the change in reserve. The figures follow:

Chicago Stocks.

In the local stock market the vote on municipal ownership questions did not have material influence. There appears to be nothing ahead but more litigation, and those who own street railroad securities are prepared to see them either do something better or lose more in value. The present holders are prepared to see the finish, whatever it may be.

The Chicago Telephone company is no nearer a renewal of its franchise than it was one week ago, though additional concessions have been offered. It is within bounds to say that the grafting by the American Telephone company through making the Chicago company buy at exorbitant prices all its devices from the Western Electric, owned by the American, is considered almost outrageous. It is so abnormal as to be grotesque.

Chicago Edison shares firmed up and were freely bought for that stock. There was more activity in Chicago Subway, but the price showed small improvement. In the bond department, prices were fairly steady. Illinois Tunnel 5s were well supported.

Bank Share Market.

The local bank share market continues to drift downward. The business is light, but the bid and asked quotations find a somewhat lower level. Earnings of the banks are unusually good, but events of the last few months have disturbed investors in bank shares. No new demand has appeared and this makes the market an unsatisfactory one. Following are quotations:

Trade in Wholesale Lines.

The volume of trade in wholesale and jobbing circles was of unsatisfactory proportions. For raw materials generally the demand was unabated, and the quantities absorbed, particularly of steel, woods, and furnace products, were almost unprecedented. There were encouraging reports from the manufacturers, who have received a large number of advance orders.

Traffic returns reported by the railroads radiating from Chicago continued largely in excess of any previous year, indicating that the movement of general merchandise is particularly heavy, inasmuch as the grain shipments are comparatively light in the west.

The cash demand for grain showed some improvement during the week, and some fairly large sales were made of corn and oats. The demand for provisions for immediate consumption was large. Eastern buyers also took a large percentage of the hog receipts at this point.

So far there has been no inconvenience caused by the coal strike, the local supplies being ample for present needs.

The general good inquiry throughout the middle west for retail goods was evidenced by the receipt by many jobbers of reorders. Light summer goods were active and strong in price. The enormous extent of building operations continues to keep wholesale dealers in lumber, hardware, paints, oils, glass, and other building materials busy. The seasonable weather marked the starting of many new building projects.

The wool market was reported quieter, although there was a firm undertone in view of the continued strong advices received from foreign markets and the high prices which are asked for domestic clips in the interior.

Some improvement was reported in the demand for pig iron in the west. The feature of the market was a widening of the inquiry, mainly for third quarter or second half deliveries. There was said to be little iron bought for shipment after July 1, and hence the inquiry for later shipment is expected to increase in the next few weeks.

BANK SHOWING NO SURPRISE.

New York Stock Market Men Prepared for Statement—Prospects for Coming Week.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, April 8.—[Special.]—The bank statement showing yesterday was not a surprise in view of the course of the money market during the week and of the reports of the known movements of money. The stock market yielded ground but slowly after the publication of the bank statement and from the vantage point of some earlier advances. The closing tone was irregular, with evidence of some support here and there. The last occasion on which the banks showed a deficit in the surplus reserves was on Dec. 9 last.

It was in the week following that speculative activity became most pronounced on the stock exchange, the aggregate sales for the week rising to over 9,000,000 shares, with advances of from 4 to 9 points in such stocks as Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, St. Paul, and New York Central, in spite of the continued strength in the money market, which culminated in the last week in December in the 125 per cent money rate.

The speculative contingent in the market today were inclined to make much of the analogy. There were many rumors current in the stock market also of large gold engagements for import to be expected next week, following arrivals in London. Loans at the stock exchange made on Friday carry over until Monday so that the call loan market of yesterday was merely nominal and offered no light on the probable course of next week's money market.

Total sales of bonds, par value, $1,715,000.

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

LONDON, April 8.—Rates for money were easy in the market yesterday, though discounts were firmer. Trading on the stock exchange generally was stagnant. Consols receded. Americans opened firm, improved to above parity, became inactive, and closed fairly firm. Foreigners idle, continental operators being engaged in preparations for the Russian and German loans. Russian imperial 4s were in demand. Japanese were dull. Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 101¼.

PARIS, April 8.—Prices on the bourse yesterday were steady and business was dull. It is now reported that the Russian loan will be issued on April 26, and that the amount will be $180,000,000. Russian imperial 4s were quoted at 83.50 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 520.00. The private rate of discount was 2 15-16 per cent.

BERLIN, April 8.—Prices on the boerse yesterday were firmer, but speculation was limited.

TRADERS ACT WITH CARE.

WHEAT OPERATORS MORE CAUTIOUS; NEWS BEARISH.

Crop Conditions Are of the Ideal Sort, but Sellers Are Less Aggressive in Movement Against Prices—Strength of Cash Wheat Sustaining Influence—Corn and Oats Affected by Wet Weather—Sentiment in Provisions Shows Little Change.

Traders in wheat last week exercised more caution in their operations than for a long time. Neither the bulls nor the bears saw their way clear to venture boldly, although the latter had the greater part of the news on their side. The bearish sentiment, so long predominant, seemed not to have been weakened, but those who can see nothing but a lower level for the grain lacked either courage or energy to continue selling on the old pretentious scale. The uncertainty of the outcome of the May delivery created no small degree of nervousness among the more timid shorts and sapped much of the former aggressiveness of the more daring pessimists.

The factor that served as the principal stone in the foundation of the bearish sentiment was the fine weather and the excellent prospects for the next crop in the winter sections. Reports as to the condition of the growing plant were most favorable, but the bulls believe that the time for evidences of damage worked before the west received its generous snowfalls soon will appear to offset some of the encouraging advices now deluging the market.

Northwestern Receipts Heavy.

The receipts of wheat at the northwestern points continued heavy, and word from Minneapolis bears indicated that the liberal run to market would continue for considerable time. Buying by millers for immediate requirements was an influence that went farthest toward curbing the aggressiveness of the bears and inspiring shorts to covering. A fact that also added to the spirit of caution was the relative strength of wheat in the cash markets as compared to the May price. The grain that is to be delivered on the speculative contracts held above the May throughout the most bearish periods of the week; this in the face of reported dullness in both the domestic and foreign demands for flour. Although export sales of wheat were small, the fact that some of the American grain was taken by Europe was an argument that prices were not hopelessly far from a "working basis."

The government's report on the condition of winter wheat, to be issued tomorrow, is expected to be bearish, and the whole trade is looking for such a statement.

"It is when everybody is bearish," said a reputed conservative, "that something unexpected happens. There is but little reason to expect that the government's report will be other than bearish, but it will show the condition on April 1. I have heard from the most trustworthy sources that damage has been worked to the growing plant—damage that will not be seen until the plant reaches higher. It is too early to bank definitely on the new crop, although its present condition seems to be ideal."

Statistics for the week were of the old bearish sort. World's shipments were large, with America offering comparatively little to the foreign supplies; the visible showed more than 46,000,000 bu, and the amount on ocean passage exceeded 50,000,000 bu. In view of these figures, the strength of the better grades of cash wheat, such as must be delivered on the speculative contracts, was given additional significance.

Traders look for a scalping market for some time to come, with values keeping within a narrow range, although sensational developments in the May would not surprise some of the operators, who are moving with caution on the possibility of startling action.

Corn Displays Strength.

Corn displayed strength the greater part of the week, chiefly on the apprehension of late seeding, a light movement from the farms, a good cash demand, and a decrease in both the visible and the amount on ocean passage. The visible showed a decrease of 2,221,000 bu, and the amount on passage a loss of 1,126,000 bu. The weekly clearances at the seaboard were large enough to help the bullish sentiment. The bulls—and there are some powerful operators among them—figure on a continuation of a light movement from the interior, and on an improving inquiry from the south and southwest, whose supplies, they say, are at low ebb. The bears, on the other hand, declare that around May 1 the movement from the farms will be large enough to overshadow the bullish arguments and work for a lower level of values. Wet weather kept the roads in the belt in poor condition, thus combining with the activity of farmers in their spring farm work to curtail shipments to market.

Wet Weather Affects Oats.

The weather played the principal part in the oats situation, creating much nervousness among shorts, because of its retarding seeding operations. Another factor that lent to the uneasiness of the shorts was the position of the leading long interest, which, according to present indication, intends to take delivery when the May contracts mature. The visible supply showed a substantial decrease, but the stocks still are large. The shipping demand showed a good color, with values displaying a fair degree of firmness.

Profit Taking in Provisions.

Although there was considerable profit taking in the provision market last week, there was not much on the surface to change the bulls from their old sentiment. There was some indication of a better movement of hogs from the farms, but the arrivals of meats were small, and the shipments of both meats and lard large. Stocks are unseasonably light, and students do not see much promise of an enlargement of them. The packers appear to be in control of the market at this time, but they are not venturing boldly either way. There has been considerable new investment buying of late, but the effect of it has been offset by realizing by those who had good profits in sight.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

James A. Patten continued to take an extremely bullish view of the provision market. He said: "I still believe that these provisions are going to sell much higher, especially lard. I predicted some days ago that lard would sell in this market above 10c a pound. I still think so, only I have raised the price to 11c. I was talking with a prominent lard exporter this morning and he told me that he had sold lard for shipment to Germany this morning and that they were bare of stocks over there and would continue to take it. Price now looks high, but it will sell higher without any doubt."

A Toronto crop report claims that wheat has emerged from winter in excellent shape and prospects are most satisfactory. In some parts of Ontario the crop has had practically no covering, but has emerged in good shape, strong and hardy; however, the small snowfall has left the crop without a proper supply of moisture, and it will require a good rainfall this month and also freedom from the dry, cutting winds that are sometimes experienced at this season. Prospects in the west are particularly bright. Seeding is general in northern Alberta and in the Saskatchawan valley from its boundary north to the limit of the grain area. The snowfall there also has been light, but frost was heavy and penetrated the ground to an unusual depth, thus insuring the plants an added supply of moisture in the early stage of vegetation.

The next banquet of the Board of Trade Bohemian club, which will be the last of the season, will be held at the Auditorium hotel Monday evening, April 16. A strong program has been prepared, including addresses, music, and various specialties. It is expected that 150 will sit at the tables.

Europeans express doubt that any such amount of flaxseed as 6,000,000 bu has been sold for export from this country. Those of the foreigners even admitting such a possibility declare that this side cannot spare that much of the seed, that it would have to cancel or rebuy half of it. The Duluth Commercial Record, which has gone into the flax situation thoroughly, says that the 6,000,000 bu includes the year's business—that which went forward last fall, and with this it figures that the estimate is too small. It believes that present export engagements for shipment during the spring and summer will aggregate 4,500,000 bu, possibly 5,000,000 bu, and sees no reason why it should be brought back.

It is understood that the board of trade will petition the federal Circuit court at Madison, Wis., for temporary and permanent injunctions against the board of trade of Superior, Wis., and its officers—T. J. Roth, Charles A. Erhart, George B. Hadnall, A. M. Lent, H. T. Fowler, M. C. Wright, T. J. Solon, Samuel Crumpton, Samuel Turney, and Peter Simon. The court will be asked to restrain the Superior exchange from using the quotations of the local board. The quotations of the Superior board of trade are distributed, it is claimed, by telegraph to the bucket shops throughout the west under the name of "Superior board of trade quotations, Chicago delivery."

LONDON MARKET IS APATHETIC.

Fails to Respond to Peace in International Politics or to Reduction of Loan Rate.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1906: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, April 8.—The coming of peace in international politics has not had any effect upon the markets here and there is little likelihood of any change for the better before the advent of summer. The tone, upon the whole, is good and the prices firm, but that is about all that can be said for it.

The government policy in South Africa and other causes continue to keep business in a depressed state, and at the same time, as the Statist remarks, "all these influences which are affecting business are but temporary, and after a while we shall see business broadening and prices advancing. It always will be borne in mind that the markets of the world are so closely interconnected that each one influences the other, and in the present condition of things the influences working for improvement are greatly stronger than those making for depression."

On Thursday the bank reduced the rate to 3½ per cent, and it had not the least effect on the markets. In fact, the reduction of the rate was looked upon with some degree of suspicion as being a possible precursor to an earlier issue of Irish land stock than the market wanted.

The fact that in New York at the time money rose to a high range caused a sharp setback in securities for a while, but there has been the usually sharp rally later, and on a balance the quotations generally are higher than they were last week.

Grand Trunk stocks have been dull on statements by Sir Charles Rivers Wilson at a meeting held on Thursday in regard to the outlay necessary on the locomotive renewals being not considered of quite a satisfactory nature. It is intimated the company would be involved in heavy taxation charges on its Michigan lines.

WILLIAM KENT PENS REPLY TO CONGRESSMAN J. R. MANN.

"Special Privileges," He Says, Were Procured by Official, Who Declined to Insert Compensation Clause.

William Kent wrote a letter yesterday in reply to the attack which was made upon him last Saturday night by Congressman James R. Mann. The reply follows:

"In the matter of the residence of Kirk Hawes I am at error, and apologize for having laid so much stress on a minor matter. The question of the fitness of James R. Mann for public office scarcely depends upon the geographical location of any one's dwelling. James R. Mann feared the adverse influence of Kirk Hawes if he failed to prosecute the scheme of opening up Kimbark avenue by special assessment, and acted accordingly.

"James R. Mann next calls up certain conduits across Forty-third street and Calumet avenue connecting certain buildings belonging formerly to my father and now to my mother as a proof of my receiving special privileges without compensation to the city.

"He neglects to state that he procured the passage of the order or ordinance. He further neglects to state that, when I desired to pay compensation to the city, he advised me that the matter could not be passed with such a clause, as the "boys" considered that a bad precedent. He not only procured the passage of this order or ordinance 'as a favor from the boys' but prevented its being held up in the public works department.

"At present my mother is paying $60 a year for 132 feet of new conduits which are not 'special privileges' in the sense of excluding any one else or hampering any other use of the streets. If I as a private citizen offered to pay compensation and Mann as a public official left it out the narration of the objectionable aspects of the case by Mann would seem to reflect in a direction not meditated by him.

"When the city wants pay for the privilege the city can have it, but if on any basis of figuring the gas company and Edison company should pay a similar rate to the $60 a year on the new conduits, there would be no call for other taxes and gas would cost $10 a thousand.

"But Mann got the privilege for me and refused to put in compensation. If it was such a breach of trust why did he do it?

"I am going to California for three weeks, though not at Mann's invitation or expense. During my absence I hope he can satisfy the people of the district as to the mileage grab, the Elkins-Mann bill, his browbeating, bulldozing tactics in the Bacon controversy, and many other items that may occur to him from time to time. He ought to get his friends and political coparceners, Braden, Madden, Jamieson, Smyth, Blount, Lorimer and Walsh to make a few speeches for him, which might help some.

"Or if he finds it pleasant to spend the next three weeks in attacking me, who am not a candidate, that, too, may help some. I am sorry that it has been necessary to stir up such a creature, but if it hadn't been stirred up some of our people might not have known what it really was."

Congressman Mann denied last night that Mr. Kent had mentioned compensation in connection with the conduit.

"That was before the days of compensation," he said, "and it occurred to neither of us. Personally, I do not believe in compensation for a matter of that sort, but Mr. Kent has talked loudly in favor of it and I thought it proper to point out the inconsistency in his position. The statement that I prevented him from offering such compensation is unqualifiedly false."

IN THE NEW YORK MARKET.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The dry goods market yesterday remained firm, but has been rather quiet during the week. Recent cuts in bleached goods have been restored and leading tickets placed at value. Southern mills also were firmer in their quotations on brown cottons. Finished goods in wash goods and white goods lines were active. Silks were slow, manufacturers taking orders for fall at old prices. Linens and burlaps were active and advancing.

Metals—There was no quotable change in the metal markets today, and business was quiet as usual in the absence of cables. Spot tin is quoted at $28.15@28.25. Copper is firmly held, with lake quoted at $18.50@18.75; electrolytic, $18.25@18.50; casting, $18.00@18.25. Lead shows no fresh feature, with spot quoted at $5.35@5.45. Spelter is unchanged at $6.10@6.15. Iron is steady at recent prices.

Butter—Weak; receipts, 5,429 packages. Street price, extra creamery, 23@23½c; official prices, creamery, common to extra, 15@23c. Butter in Philadelphia 1c lower; extra western creamery, 23c; extra nearby prints, 24c.

Eggs—Firm; receipts, 11,967. State, Pennsylvania, and nearby fancy selected white, 22c; do choice, 19½@21c. Eggs in Philadelphia 1c higher; nearby fresh and western fresh, 19c at mark.

Poultry—Alive, quiet; western chickens, 12c; fowls, 14c; turkeys, 16@18c. Dressed—Western chickens, 10@18c; turkeys, 16@18c; fowls, 11@14c.

Marshall Field & Company

TODAY BEGINS THE LAST WEEK BEFORE EASTER. Immediate buying of spring apparel is now at its height. Our great stocks were never in better condition than right now. The assortments are more extensive, more thoroughly complete, and contain far greater numbers of high class novelties and exclusive creations of distinctive individuality than in any previous season. Every section of this store teems with interest at this time. The opportunity to make selections from the widest possible range of desirable styles is now at its best. The style supremacy of this store is especially emphasized throughout these lines.

The New Semi-Tailored Costumes: A Charming Easter Week Display.

Throughout this week, modes of surpassing beauty are to be shown in unequaled numbers in these elaborately fashioned tailored styles—Semi-tailored costumes; a comprehensive presentation comprising practically every worthy original production from every designer of note—many are reproductions of imported models.

Light in weight and light in color, these Semi-Tailored Costumes are undoubtedly entering upon their period of greatest popularity, especially for dress wear. Their favor throughout the spring and summer seasons is assured in the picturesque little Boleros and Etons with the effectively designed three-quarter sleeves.

Blues from the delicate light shades to navy, and old rose from the deeper rich shades to the pale pinks have never been in such high favor. The season's color innovation is the almost excessive use of the lighter shades, among which are the blues and old rose. Laces dyed to match are among the most frequent motifs in the trimmings.

In Semi-Tailored Voile Costumes the selling has been exceptionally heavy during the past few weeks—extensive purchases have been made especially for this week—handsome new and original styles have never before been shown in such variety at such interesting prices. Special attention is directed to special numbers in plain colors and checks at $45.00, $55.00 and $57.50.

Exclusive Easter Designs in Boas, Stoles and Liberty Scarfs.

Aside from their necessity as a protection, the charm of these elaborately fashioned light fluffy neck pieces will make them almost indispensable for wear with Easter costumes. We offer what we consider to be a collection unrivaled in the great numbers of novelties and in the special merit of each style. First Floor South Room.

Ostrich Boas, in the season's fashionable lengths, $10.00, $12.00, $15.00 to $45.00.

Coque Boas, very attractive styles at moderate prices, $4.50, $6.50, $12.00 to $30.00.

Marabout Stoles, in a wide range of new effects, $5.00, $6.50, $8.50 to $35.00.

Numerous very effective styles are shown in Stoles of ostrich feathers, and ostrich feathers in combination with marabout, $25.00, $35.00, $45.00.

Liberty Boas, in an abundance of the favored styles, especially in black, $3.50, $4.00, to $15.

Liberty Scarfs and Squares, in plain colors and a variety of the beautiful color effects, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00 to $7.50.

New Ribbons for Easter.

New styles, colors and exclusive designs from the leading French, Swiss and American makers form by far the handsomest and most varied assortments we have ever shown.

Novelty Ribbons, in pompadours, Persians, Roman stripes, taffetas and satins, from 3½ to 12 inches wide, yard, 25c to $4.00.

Satin and Taffeta Ribbons, 5 inches wide, in black, white, cream, two shades of light blue, two shades of pink, Nile, Turquoise, empire green, royal blue, navy, cardinal and brown, yard, 25c.

Narrow Fancy Ribbons for dress trimmings, ribbon stocks, belts and numerous other purposes, 1½ to 2½ inches wide, in Persians, warp prints, Jacquard designs, gold and silver flowers. First Floor South Room.

Rare Odors in Easter Perfumes.

The skillfully blended odors from the leading French and American perfumers find representation in our lines.

An exceptionally large and attractive purchase from one of the best sources of high-grade American hand-painted China. Most of the designs are original with this studio, the names of the artists appearing on nearly every piece.

Bread and Butter Plates, 85c—Fruit Plates, $1.25
—Tea Cups and Saucers, $1.75—Salad Bowls, $3.50.

A splendid assortment of the larger pieces especially suitable for gifts is also included. Fourth Floor Annex.

Exclusive Easter Coats for Women.

The remarkable popularity of coats for every occasion—motoring, carriage wear, afternoon promenades, and evening wear—indicates a widespread appreciation of the necessity of the separate coat in the spring fashions. Fourth Floor North Room.

Among the many clever new modes meeting with favor in our displays are the jaunty Etons, Box Coats and Pony Coats in silks and broadcloths and the three-quarter Coats in loose or semi-fitting models of silks, chiffon broadcloths and laces.

In the Eton Coats, one of the very attractive styles is a reproduction of one of our exclusive models—made of taffeta and broadcloth; $20.00; others from $12.50 upward.

Semi-fitting Coats of peau de soie, trimmed with braid and silk embroidery, and lined throughout with peau de cygne, specially priced at $27.50.

In the short, loose Broadcloth Coats, three of the very attractive models are handsomely trimmed with fancy braids in black, white or champagne, $35, $40, $47.50.

Evening Coats and Capes, many of them exclusive models, are shown in an unequaled variety of the season's most effective designs and all the light, delicate new shades.

Seasonable New Silks Specially Priced.

Natural Shantungs and Pongees are to be very extensively used for making practical spring and summer coats, dresses, automobile wraps, traveling garments and pajamas; three lines have been priced unusually low—26 inch, yard, 75c; 33 inch, yard, 85c; 36 inch, yard, 85c and $1.00. Second Floor South Room.

Natural Color Pongee with colored embroidered dots, in shades of navy, pink, light blue, lilac, white and black, yard, 75c.

Fancy Striped and Checked Wash Silks, on white grounds, appropriate for women's and children's dresses and separate waists, yard, 75c.

Broken assortments of Foulard Silks, in one and two-tone printings for house gowns and kimonos, also in small neat effects for street wear, yard, 75c.

Double Width Printed Satin Liberty—a beautiful imported fabric in several styles, white printing on following grounds: copper, salmon, myrtle, brown, prune, violet, tan, navy and black, 44 inches wide—special, yard, $1.50.

In Moderately Priced Trimmed Millinery:

Easter Week Sale $10 and $12 Hats.

The heavy spring selling in these moderately priced lines and the anticipated requirements of Easter week have served as a remarkable impetus to our designers in their efforts to excel all previous efforts in our present displays.

Visitors will immediately appreciate the fact that such another collection of $10.00 and $12.00 Trimmed Hats has never been offered in Chicago.

There are appropriate styles for every occasion—turbans, toques, brim hats, and the smartly trimmed new sailor shapes, all in such a variety of color effects and different designs that every woman will find a wide range of becoming styles for selection. Fourth Floor South Room.

Every hat excels in value as well as in style excellence at $10.00 and $12.00.

Exclusive Fabrics in Colored Dress Goods.

An inspection of our beautiful spring and summer colored dress materials will reveal all the most favored weaves, affording important and authentic information regarding all the latest and best styles. Many of the numerous weaves and designs are exclusive—a feature which adds much to their value with discriminating women. Second Floor South Room.

Cluny Lace Curtains at April Sale Prices.

Our Cluny Lace Curtains merit their popularity—they come to us from our Paris factory—and owe their general excellence to expert workmanship and good taste in the selection of the qualities and styles of the nets, scrims, edges and insertions used in their composition. We show the largest collection of Cluny Lace Curtains in America. Sixth Floor South Room.

A special feature of the April sale—500 pair of Cluny Curtains with French scrim centers, two and one-half inch edge and insertion, pair, $5.85.

White Waists: Unrivaled Style Varieties

The completion of our preparations for Easter promises to make this by far the busiest week of the spring season. Several weeks of critical inspection of the advance ideas of the leading designers, and our extensive orders, have brought to this section a splendid selection of worthy new styles.

The greater numbers of these have arrived during the past few days—modes embodying many entirely new ideas.

The first and most conspicuous object president's wrath is Upton Sinclair, a book, "The Jungle," which deals wi alleged conditions in the Chicago stock and which has harrowed up the feeli thousands of readers over imaginary sp in the great packing houses. This boo its charges have been made the subject official investigation by experts from t partment of agriculture, sent out by order of the president.

Author Is in Queer Positio
The author of the book in questio entertained at the White house the oth at luncheon and was questioned generou the president as to the facts which leged in his sensational novel. The charges corruption on the part of gov ment officials, and Mr. Sinclair repeated stories to the president and vouched fo truth.

He probably was unaware of the fac at that very time there was here in W

President Roused by Book.
It was about a month ago that so the extraordinary statements contain "The Jungle" were called to the attent the president. Mr. Roosevelt is an o orous reader. He can get through a history or a sensational novel with facility. It did not take him long to the gist of "The Jungle," and it can b safely that this book shares the honors three or four recent magazine article having roused the president to a point he decided it was necessary for him t take something in the nature of a denunciation of the irresponsible w who attack the honesty of governmen cials without producing any evidence.
He found that in "The Jungle" not were conditions in the packing hous
Chicago painted in the most startling but it was asserted that the govern inspectors whose duty it is to look aft purity of the meat were contemptible ers, who for a few dollars of personal were willing to put in jeopardy the and daily health of thousands and te thousands of innocent American people of foreigners as well who were depe

Disprove or Punish Offenders.
The president determined, therefore, he would use the great power at his di to do one of two things. Either he would those unfaithful public servants to the tentiary or he would pillory the author book by holding him up to public disapp as a man who was willing to attack the acter of responsible public officials wi being able to make good.
In a recent address the president strong ground on this subject. He in that the professional reformers, the upli the graft writers, and magazine fault fi who have occupied so large a share of p attention of late either should prove so their charges of corruption, in which ca would guarantee to send the guilty men t penitentiary, or else be convicted befor public of befouling the good name of th public and scandalizing us before the pe of the earth.

Roosevelt Gets Busy at Once.
With President Roosevelt to see an know always is to act. He called at upon Secretary James Wilson, who is at head of the department of agricult which has direct charge of the inspectio the meat products at the packing house
Chicago and elsewhere. A complete s mary of the charges in the novel was pared.
There were allegations that rats and f and known people as well, occasion got into the vats and were sold to the pu as prime sausages or lard or somethin that sort.
The real thing with which the governm had to do, however, was the clearly expres charge that the government inspect whose duty it is to examine and to tage meat intended for export, were dishone that they connived with packers in per ting diseased meat, to be sold to the p lic, and that they did not properly atten their duties. Furthermore it was all that certain packing houses were kept such filthy shape it was impossible to those sanitary meat products.

Commission Goes to Chicago.
Armed with instructions from the pr dent of the United States to strike and st not if they found anything wrong at Chic and with a parting word from the secret of agriculture that the packers were be prosecuted and not protected by the gov ment, the investigators started for Chic on March 12. The commission consiste pathological bureau of the department agriculture; Dr. R. P. Steddon, head of inspection division of the agricultural partment; George B. McCabe, solicitor the department of agriculture; and Irvin

Few, official stenographer.
Each one had, beside his official instr tions, a copy of "The Jungle," and they w told to consider it in the light of an offi complaint and investigate everything it which was definite enough to be looked i
